POLICE GUARD MOVIES AFTER 3 ARE BOMBED

Owners Will Retain Nonunion Men.

Independent motion picture theaters were opened last night under heavy police guard as a result of the bombing of three of the houses early Friday morning. The bombings marked the first violence in the dispute between the theaters and the Motion Picture Operators' union headed by Thomas E. Maloy, $25,000 a year business agent, who is now in New York. Police protection was ordered immediately after the attacks, which, police said, were prompted by the labor dispute. Instructions were given to keep loiterers away from the vicinity of the 104 independent houses engaged in the fight with Maloy, and to "shoot to kill" in any clash with terrorists. The order followed a conference between State's Attorney Swanson and Acting Police Commissioner Alcock.

Refuse to Deal with Maloy.

At the same time it was announced by Attorney Theodore Levin, counsel for the theater owners, that no further negotiations would be conducted by the owners with Maloy. They will deal only with a reputable official of the organization, he said, in an effort to settle the disagreement as to the number of union operators to be employed. At present the theaters are employing nonunion operators.

The theaters bombed were the Olympia, 4635 South Ashland avenue, which is owned by Aaron Saperstein, president of the Allied Theater Owners' association, which locked out Maloy's union; the Ridge, at 1550 Devon, and the Ray, at 2638 East 75th street. The explosions occurred almost simultaneously, shortly after 1 a. m.

Give Up Mediation Attempts.

State's Attorney Swanson and his assistants, Attorneys Charles E. Lounsbury and Charles Bellows, had attempted to mediate in the controversy between the owners and the union, which insisted that two operators be employed at each theater although the owners say one is sufficient. Yesterday Mr. Swanson said the time for mediation had passed and that his duty was to prosecute the bombers and see that future protection was assured.

"Any persons loitering around the theaters, in the front or in the alley, had better watch out," Prosecutor Swanson said upon emerging from the conference with Commissioner Alcock. "They might be shot."

"The theaters will be operated under full police protection," said Alcock.

Owners' Wives Visit Mayor.

Mayor Cermak was visited by a delegation of forty women, headed by Mrs. George Paul, and Mrs. L. G. Pierce, wives of theater owners, who appealed to him for assitance, saying their bread and butter depended upon the earnings of the theaters. He assured them of protection.

"The bombings have stirred up things which will cause a reaction against the union," Mayor Cermak said when the women had departed.

Assistant State's Attorney Bellows commented on the fact that Maloy is in New York.

"Every time Maloy leaves town there is trouble," he said. "It seems he is establishing an alibi."

Bellows and Lounsbury discussed the advisability of asking the forfeiture of the bail of Maloy and his assistants who were indicted two months ago on charges of conspiring to ruin the business of the theater owners and to extort money and of misappropriation of funds. They decided not to take this step.

To Keep Nonunion Workers.

Attorney Levin and Mr. Saperstein called together a number of the theater owners and the decision was announced to refuse further to recognize Maloy and to continue operations with nonunion workers.

Two union operators who were arrested earlier in the day were released last evening by Prosecutor Bellows. They were J. E. Behlke, 5349 Montrose avenue and Joseph Kreamer, 100 Main street, Evanston. Kreamer is a steward of the operators' union and was formerly employed at the Ridge theater.

"The men had perfect alibis and we could not hold them," Prosecutor Bellows said.

A third operator, Fred Schrader, 1517 Waveland avenue, was still held pending the disposition of habeas corpus proceedings.

Prosecutors Bellows and Lounsbury served notice on the city that they would ask the revocation of the licenses of more than 100 union operators classified as "permit men."

RAIDS IN PEORIA TO DRY UP MEET OF LEGIONNAIRES

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—One dry agent was slugged over the head with a board and seriously injured tonight as a small army of prohibition men swept through the city in a general raid to dry up all wet spots on the eve of the state convention of the American Legion, which opens tomorrow.

The raids resulted in the closing of twenty-seven places, and the arrest of forty men.

Early in the night two agents raided a speakeasy and seized one man. While they were inside some one punctured a tire on their car. The federal men drove their machine and prisoner to a nearby filling station, but the crowd, growing larger, followed. Full 500 men surrounded them.

Police were called. Meanwhile some one pierced the other tires of the car, and some one else struck Dry Agent Earl Fisher of Indianapolis on the head with a plank. He was taken to St. Francis hospital. Police escorted the second dry agent to safety. The prisoner escaped.

Freddie's brothers were named Michael and Frank, after due debate, and now the Chiaranontos have six children, the previous visits of the stork having brought two boys, now 4 and 2 years old, and a girl, 16 months old.

Woman Wins $350,000 in Court Battle

Mrs. Catherine Wood, wealthy Evanston widow, living at 1620 Hinman avenue, was awarded damages and interest totaling $350,000 in a suit against her nephews, Harry E. and Fred S. White, in a decree signed yesterday by Circuit Judge Stanley Klarkowski. The nephews were president and vice president, respectively, of the McLean Drug company before that chain of stores was sold to Liggett's, Inc.

Mrs. Wood charged that they practiced fraud in inducing her, shortly before the merger, to sell them for $100,000 stock in the McLean company which was worth $417,000 on the basis of the merger price.

Deny Deal Is Pending.

In the spring of 1927, she charged, Harry E. White told her that her stock, inherited from her husband, George R. Wood, one of the original owners of the drug company, had a book value of only $60,000, whereas it was worth at that time more than $100,000. In August, 1928, her son, Archibald, went to the Whites at her direction and asked them if rumors were true concerning the merger of the company with one of the large drug chains.

Harry White, she charged, denied that any negotiations were in progress, although at that time the McLean company had offers from three different chains. White persuaded her son to return and persuade her in turn to sell her stock for $100,000.

Sells Stock for $100,000.

She deposited her stock, 500 shares, with the Illinois Merchants bank on Aug. 9, 1928. On Aug. 10 the McLean company received an offer of approximately $1,500,000 for a sale to Liggett's, Inc., and on Aug. 11 the Whites bought her stock on behalf of the McLean company, paying her $100,000. The sale of the company was finally consummated on Oct. 16, 1928.

Judge Klarkowski held that the action of the nephews constituted fraud. He ordered them to pay Mrs. Wood $317,910, plus interest, which raised the total to $350,000. The court also held that Archibald Wood, although unaware of the fraud when it was perpetrated, is liable to his mother for damages of $53,317, due to the accretion in value of his stock holdings in the company through its purchase of his mother's stock.

Mrs. Wood was represented by Attorneys Harry S. Gottlieb, Ulysses S. Schwartz and Claude Roth. Attorney Emil G. Wetten gave notice of appeal on behalf of the defendants.

SLAIN IN BATTLE WITH BURGLAR; MAYOR ON SCENE

A fight to the death between William Kirgiains, 50 years old, and a burglar was lost last night by Kirgiains. He was found murdered in his room at 823 Gilpin place, near Hull House.

A radio alarm brought half a dozen squads to the scene. It also brought Mayor Cermak there. The mayor was driving in Blue Island avenue when the message was received on the police radio set in his car. He directed his chauffeur to take him to the Gilpin place address and arrived in time to observe detectives at work.

The murder victim was stabbed with a butcher knife. His clothes were torn, indicating he had fought his slayer. A suitcase, in which it is believed he hid his savings, was slashed open with the knife and emptied. The killer used Kirgiains' own knife to slay his victim. It is believed that Kirgiains surprised the man in his room and engaged him in a terrific struggle. The intruder had first entered the room of Bill Jeffries, another roomer, before breaking into Kirgiains' room.

CHICAGO-DETROIT TRIP IN 82 MIN., NEW AIR RECORD

A new speed record between Chicago and Detroit was established yesterday when a Vega-Lockheed plane of the Chicago-Detroit Airways, carrying four passengers and a pilot, made the trip in 82 minutes. The old mark was 87 minutes and was made by Capt. Frank Hawks in a speed ship several years ago.

The ship left the Chicago airport at 3:31 daylight saving time and landed at the Municipal airport in Detroit at 4:53 Chicago time. Russell C. Mossman was the pilot.

A tail wind helped the ship to make the new record, giving it an average speed of more than three miles a minute over the course of 264 air miles.

Lorraine Baer, 5 years old, 6074 Newburg avenue, was electrocuted yesterday in her home by a vacuum cleaner connection which was said to have been defective. Her mother, Mrs. Irma Baer, returned from another part of the house to find that Lorraine had apparently picked up the cord while she was touching a radiator and had been made unconscious. The child died before a physician could be summoned.

Mrs. Kearns Tells All About Her Marriage

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kearns took the witness stand before Judge Daniel P. Trude in the Circuit court late yesterday and last night, where Mrs. Kearns was petitioning for temporary alimony of $500 a month.

Kearns, who is a fight promoter and who, as Jack Dempsey's manager, found the profession lucrative, said he had neither stocks, real estate, a bank account or even a prune ranch to which Mrs. Kearns alluded. Moreover, he said, he was never married to her. He merely made an agreement with her back in 1924 to the effect that he would pay her $500 a month for the rest of her life until she remarried, he said. He hasn't paid since 1929.

Mrs. Kearns Tells Her Story.

Mrs. Kearns, who was a show girl during the big years of Kearns and Dempsey, and who did a dance act after Dempsey got through taking on all comers in the Dempsey-Kearns vaudeville stunt, told another story to the judge.

Dressed in a polka dot dress, with her knees crossed so that a bit of lacy petticoat showed, Mrs. Kearns told her story in a voice which at times rose accusingly.

Lounging in a ringside seat in the front of the courtroom sat the promoter, dressed in gray and white flannels, just as he had come from a golf course near New York, from where he had been summoned hastily by his attorneys. He came by plane from Cleveland, entering the courtroom hatless just in time to take the stand.

Mrs. Kearns, who went by the name of Legana Angell on the stage, testified in answer to questions by her lawyer, Cornelius Harrington.

Met in Chicago in 1919.

"I met Jack Kearns right here in Chicago in 1919, when I was only 17," she declared. "And I was only 19 when this marriage ceremony was performed in Atlantic City. I was born in 1902 and I can produce a birth certificate to prove it.

"I went with him to the Claridge hotel in New York in September, 1919. Then in 1921 we went to Atlantic City and he took me to the court house, and Jack introduced me to a Mr. Burns, who he said was the license clerk. He said, 'This is the man who's going to marry us.' And I said, 'O K.' Then he performed the ceremony and Jack kissed me and then Mr. Burns kissed me.

"He put this ring on me," she said, holding up a hand with fingernails which were bright red, "and it's never, never been off my finger since."

Maybe there were tears in her eyes at this point; at any rate the black makeup around her eyes began to run a bit.

"A Big Wedding Party."

The witness then related that Kearns had sent her to visit his mother in Oakland, Cal., after which she returned to New York to be welcomed as Jack's wife at a large wedding party. Mayor Walker attended, she said, as did the late Tex Rickard and Damon Runyan, sports writer. She said she could bring some of the guests to testify that they had met her as "Mrs. Kearns."

Mrs. Kearns identified a photostatic copy of a telegram from Hamilton, Ont., which read as follows:

"Dear little girl, I am grieved beyond measure and regret exceedingly that I am unable to be with the one I love on her birthday, but remember, you would not object to growing old if all your anniversaries were as pleasant and charming as I would like to make this one for you, dear, if I were there. Lots of love, JACK."

"Sometimes he addressed you as

SUITOR ADMITS KILLING WIDOW AND 3 CHILDREN

Bodies Are Found in Shallow Graves.

BULLETIN.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 29.—(Saturday.)—(Special.)—Harry F. Powers, the correspondence suitor of Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher of Park Ridge, Ill., shortly after 4 o'clock, Chicago time, this morning confessed that he murdered the woman and her three children.

After hours of questioning he broke down and cried: "I did it. I killed them all."

However, he refused to go into details of the crime and declared he would say nothing more until he was allowed to rest.

Sheriff W. B. Grimm and Lieut. H. Herzog of Park Ridge, to whom the confession was made, then gave orders that Powers was to be allowed to sleep until 10 o'clock, at which time the questioning will be resumed.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—The tragic end of the Widow Eicher's romance with her mail order sweetheart was discovered late today with the finding of her body and the bodies of her three children. They had been murdered and then buried in a shallow grave at a lonely spot near Quiet Dell, a suburb of Clarksburg.

Thus was solved the mystery of the disappearance of the widow, Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher of Park Ridge, Ill., a suburb of Chicago, and her three children, Greta, 14 years old; Harry, 12; and Anabel, 9. Mrs. Eicher was past 50 years of age.

The correspondence lover, Harry F. Powers, who wooed the widow under the name of Cornelius O. Pierson, is held in jail here, charged with the four murders. The bodies of the four victims were found, in grotesque huddles, in their grave close by a garage built recently by Powers.

Questioned for Hours.

Powers tonight is under constant questioning by Clarksburg policemen, directed by Chief of Police C. O. Duckworth. The prisoner persisted in his claims of innocence, in the face of evidence which the authorities hold sufficiently damning to send Powers to the gallows. Duckworth said he would keep firing questions at Powers all night, unless a confession is obtained.

A menacing crowd of 3,000 persons, attracted by the sensational crime, milled about the county jail tonight. Earlier they had crowded near the insecure city jail, where Powers had been held, and Chief Duckworth, fearing an attempt at lynching, took Powers through a rear door and drove him secretly to the stronger county jail.

Woman's Skull Smashed.

The fiendishness of the crime stirred these West Virginians. The first examination by Coroner H. C. Goff had shown that Mrs. Eicher's skull was smashed, and two hammers and a wrench, all stained with blood and found with the bodies in the grave, apparently were the weapons. Her wrists had been bound together with cord, in front of her body.

The children were strangled, according to the coroner, who found their hands firmly tied behind their backs. The police believe the children were hanged in the basement of Powers' garage, which has four partitioned rooms. A long rope, looped at one end, was found in the grave, and this, it is believed was the instrument of the strangler.

Further Search to Be Made.

A further search of the grounds about Powers' lonely garage, which he had built on the side of a "haunted" house which had mysteriously burned down, is to be conducted tomorrow with the advent of daylight.

The police have learned that Powers, using the name of Pierson, has corresponded with perhaps a hundred women in the United States, and they seek to make certain that others have not fallen victim to Blue Beard Powers, as he has come to be characterized.

Powers had inserted an advertisement in lists of matrimonial prospects issued by agencies in Detroit and in Quincy, Ill., and so glowingly did he describe himself and his financial status that scores of women answered proposing themselves as brides. Even today replies were being received at the postoffice box rented by Powers under the name of Pierson.

It was thus that he trapped the widow Eicher, causing her to give up her comfortable home in Park Ridge, and to entrust herself and her children to his care. And it was Powers' efforts to capitalize on his terrible crime, by taking possession of Mrs. Eicher's home and effects, which eventually led to his being trapped himself.

Powers' lawful wife, Luella Powers, who has lived in these parts for many years, and was married to Powers four years ago, was being questioned also tonight, as was her sister, Eva Belle Strouther, who lives with the Powers. Mrs. Powers, owner of a grocery store in Clarksburg, as well as owner of her home and of property on which the garage was built, had defended Powers and refused to believe in his crimes.

Children's Clothing Found.

The police announced that clothing worn by the Eicher children had been found tonight in the basement of the Powers' home in Clarksburg.

A bloodstained sweater, which Powers admitted was his own, was found in a garage in the rear of the Powers home in Clarksburg. Chief Duckworth announced he would hold the two women for further questioning.

The bodies of Mrs. Eicher and the children were found after Chief Duckworth had directed that a search be made of the garage near Quiet Dell.

The site of the garage is a lonely one, and formerly was occupied by a farm cottage. Until two months ago a farmer, Floyd Golden, had lived in the cottage, but there had been reports spread abroad through the land that the place was haunted and then Golden moved away. Soon afterward the cottage was burned to the ground and mystery had attached to the origin of the fire.

Powers Has Garage Built.

Then Powers appeared at the scene with several laborers and they constructed the garage. Neighbors wondered at the building of such a garage, big enough to h l four or more automobiles, for the place is on a country lane, nearly a mile from the main highway. Powers directed the building of four rooms, with partitioned walls, in the basement.

The garage had never been used, and there were no tools, oil or gasoline or motor equipment about the place. The walls were unmarked.

There had been reports that Powers had visited the place frequently, often going there after midnight and spending hours in the garage.

Hearing these reports, Chief Duckworth decided to search the garage. His men first came across a supply of clothing, pictures, correspondence, jewelry, and other articles. These were readily identified as having been owned by Mrs. Eicher, among the articles being pictures of the widow and her children, and of her husband, Henri Eicher, who died four years ago.

Several medals were found, which apparently had been awarded to Henri Eicher for prowess as a featherweight wrestler. One bore the inscription: "Second annual open wrestling meet, March, 1901. Featherweight, Henri Eicher. Swiss Athletic Society, London, England."

Blood stains were found on the clothing and a mattress stained heavily with blood was found stuffed in a corner. Bits of human hair clotted with blood were discovered.

Insists They Are Unharmed.

Confronted with this evidence, Powers admitted that the clothing and possessions were those of Mrs. Eicher and her children, but still he maintained that the Eichers were unharmed and would be found alive.

Powers declared that the widow had left the property with him while she went on to Denver, Colo., to pursue her supposed plans to marry another man whose name was given by Powers as Charles R. Rogers.

Further investigation at the garage disclosed bloodstains on the floor and about the sills of the building. There was a pronounced odor about the place. "You can smell that murder's been done here," Duckworth remarked grimly.

Beyond the garage the land stretched downward to a deep wooded gully. To facilitate drainage from the immediate vicinity of the garage, Powers had caused a ditch to be dug, extending from the building to the gully. Following the course of this ditch, Duckworth came upon a section which showed evidence of recent digging.

"Dig there," said the police chief, and the laborers' spades sank easily into the soil. The diggers proceeded cautiously, and in a minute they had uncovered a portion of a burlap sack. The men poked at the object, and then quickly began to clear the soil away from the sack. Duckworth slit the end of the sack, tore it open and the body of a woman was exposed.

The Digging Is Resumed.

The investigators were not certain then that the body was that of Mrs. Eicher, although they had little doubt. An undertaker was summoned, and the diggers rested for a time until the body had been removed to a hearse. Then the grim task was resumed.

It was considered likely that the bodies of the children might be buried in the same grave, although Mrs. Eicher had departed from her home in Park Ridge several days before Powers, then masquerading as "Pierson," called there and drove away with the children.

Digging further along in the ditch, the searchers came upon an object wrapped in a white sheet. This was the body of Greta, the oldest child. Still farther along the ditch was found another and larger object, also shrouded in a white sheet. When this was opened the bodies of the other two children Harry and Anabel, were found huddled together.

Letters Reveal Wholesale Wooing by Mail by Powers

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—The mail wooing by Harry F. Powers, sometimes known as Cornelius O. Pierson, is shown in letters from various women found by authorities here.

The letters apparently came through "The American Friendship Society," a matrimonial agency. The first was signed Bessie and was postmarked Olean, N. Y.

Letter from Olean.

"Connie—I see it all now," this letter said. "I don't belong in the east. I want to go back to the middle west where one's neighbor is one's friend.

"I want to work again among the common people. I want to be called by my first name. I want people to say, 'Hello, Bessie.' Please believe I have found myself. I won't stay here. I am going back west. Honest, I am. Please, Connie, stay by me. I hate the east, honest I do. I want to be among my own kind of people where I can live natural.

"Today is Wednesday—you will get this Friday. Please write me Saturday so I can get your letter Monday. Connie, please get a letter to me by Monday morning, July 13—it will be a lucky 13th this time.

"I have come to my senses. I know now where I belong, back west. Please, dear, write to me. I have it all settled now with God and mankind. My brain is clear, I am thinking straight at last. I want to go to work back west. If you will write to me, I'll be a new woman. My whole life will be changed.

"Thank you, dear, for making me see. I was blind before I found you. Now I see clearly. I am so happy.

"You can handle me all right. Give me a job either on your ranch or somebody's farm near your ranch for the summer. Then when I have made good, you can determine then if you want me or not.

"Trusting and praying to hear from you next Monday, dear old Monday, I am, forever your friend, Bessie."

Tells of Love.

One of the many letters accompanying photographs told of the love of "Dottie." Addressed to "Dearest Connie," the letter reads:

"This picture they say isn't I, because I was not smiling enough, but I think it will do, so I will send you one, dear. In case it doesn't please you just send it back. I do not like the smile I had myself, but some day I will see you and then the picture won't be needed, dear. I just sent you a letter this a. m., but had to write you a few lines again.

"I hope you are not disappointed in your fat little friend. Always yours, DOTTIE."

From a disappointed member of "The American Friendship Society" comes this missive addressed to "Mr. C. O. Pierson":

"I have not heard from you any more since I wrote my last letter to you. I suppose you are no more interested, and in that case I beg you to be kind and send my pictures back by return mail, as I intend to leave this city in a few days."

One from Oklahoma.

Another letter dated the 26th of this month comes from Colbert, Okla. The letter follows:

"Through the A. F. society I am writing you. Your little article rather suited me for I am a 'one man woman' as you say. I think if there is anything that is wrong it is for a married woman to be paying attention to some other man. I would not marry a man I did not love, for marriage without love is worse than being lonely, and I think when you really love each other you will be true, faithful and friendly in time of storm and strife.

"Will I tell you a little about myself? Yes:

"Now, I am a blond, golden curly hair, 36 years, hazy brown eyes, fair complexion. Am 5 feet 5½ inches tall, weigh 143 pounds. I am considered very good looking, a very likeable personality. I am kind hearted and reasonable. I am of a highly respected family. Was reared on the farm and love the outdoors. I love the west very much. I do not smoke, drink or curse. I do so much love a home and some one to care for. If you wish to correspond with me, would like to hear from you."

All the Way from Canada.

The letter was signed by Mrs. Vera Dividson, Box 634, Colbert, Okla.

A letter from South Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, tells of the yearning of a 19 year old girl for a mate. The letter follows:

"I am a stranger writing to you, happening to meet you through Miss Plater, secretary of the American Friendship society. I understand that you are a widower and that through the heavy work that you carried on you could not make acquaintance with ladies.

"I am writing to you because I'd like you for my companion and my friend. I am 19 years old, am a Canadian.

"The reason why I haven't met a friend is because my parents would not allow me to have any companions. That made me sad and lonely.

"Hoping, Mr. Pierson, that you'll answer this letter, for I'm very anxious to hear from you. Yours truly,

"MISS JOSEPHINE KOSINSKY."

Very businesslike, another letter, dated Aug. 2, from Milwaukee, Wis., comes from a "bachelor girl." The letter follows:

"Your name I received through the A. F. S. Your description appeals to me very favorably. I am a bachelor girl and lonesome and have joined the club with sincere intention. My age is 37. Am inclosing a photo and a stamp for return of same. If interested let me hear about you and will answer any questions you may wish to ask."

"Ad" Used as a Lure

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 28.—(AP)—A copy of the advertisement apparently used to create correspondence with women throughout the country was found in a trunk near the building in which the bodies of Mrs. Eicher and her children were found.

"Civil engineer, college education," it read, "worth $150,000 or more, has income from $400 to $3,000 per month.' He writes, 'My business enterprises prevent me from making many social contacts. I am unable, therefore, to make the acquaintance of the right kind of women, as my properties are located through the middle west, I believe I will settle there when married. Am an Elk and a Mason. Own a beautiful ten-room home, completely furnished. My wife would have her own car and plenty of spending money.'

"Cornelius O. Pierson, P. O. Box 277, Clarksburg, W. Va."

Investigation disclosed an average of 20 letters daily was received.

CHIEF OF POLICE FIRST ON JOB IN EICHER MURDERS

Actions of Powers Arouse His Suspicions.

The Murder Trail

Correspondence between Harry F. Powers, using the name Cornelius O. Pierson, and Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher began last winter. The mail courtship culminated in the following events on these dates:

June 20—Powers arrived in Park Ridge to visit the widow.

June 25—Powers and Mrs. Eicher left Park Ridge together.

June 30—Nurse in charge of three children received letter, purporting to come from Mrs. Eicher, advising that "Mr. Pierson" would come for the children.

July 1—Powers [Mr. Pierson] arrived in Park Ridge.

July 2—Powers left in auto with the three children.

Aug. 27—Powers is arrested at Clarksburg, W. Va.

Aug. 28—Bodies of four victims are found in shallow grave in suburb of Clarksburg.

The investigation of Harry F. Powers' connection with the disappearance of Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher and her three children, found slain today in Clarksburg, W. Va., was started by Chief of Police Harold Johnson of Park Ridge. He became suspicious when no word of the Eichers was heard in the village, and these suspicions grew when Powers reappeared last week and took possession of the Eicher home.

Mrs. Eicher, who was over 50 years of age, had become possessed in late years of a desire to remarry and she corresponded with various matrimonial bureaus. This was established through many letters found in the house. Mr. Eicher, a silversmith, died two years ago. At his death his mind was unbalanced.

A series of long and amorous letters posted at Clarksburg, W. Va., and signed by Cornelius O. Pierson" was found. The first stated "Pierson's" qualifications as a husband, his income given as $400 a week, and a "much larger income from oil and gas well holdings," and his loving nature.

The Correspondence Grows.

Evidently Mrs. Eicher answered this letter, for it was followed by more than a dozen others, each one growing more ardent in tone and one finally commencing with the salutation, "My darling Asta."

Mrs. Eicher sent photographs of herself and of her children, and "Pierson" responded with glowing praise.

Finally "Pierson" came in person, and put up at the Eicher home. He was a smooth-tongued, nattily attired man of 45, and apparently convinced the widow that she was the mate he had long desired. Then "Pierson" took charge of the widow's affairs, ordered Jack Williams, a boarder, to find other quarters, and, according to the police, beguiled the widow with tales of the pleasure they were to find in marriage, of travels they would enjoy, and of the wealth she might spend with him.

Plans Kept from Neighbors.

Neighbors learned little of the affair, and it is believed Powers told Mrs. Eicher not to discuss their plans with any one.

Powers had arrived on June 20, and a few days later Mrs. Eicher summoned Miss Elizabeth Abernathy, a nurse who had cared for Henri Eicher in his last illness. Miss Abernathy came forward last night and disclosed additional facts to the Park Ridge police which make her an important witness against Powers.

"I arrived at the Park Ridge home on June 25," she told Chief Johnson. "On the same day Mrs. Eicher left with the man I knew as Mr. Pierson On June 30 two letters came, which I supposed were written by Mrs. Eicher. One, addressed to me, told me that Pierson would call for the children and would take care of them.

"The other letter was written to Greta and promised her a new home, dolls, schooling, and the like. The next day, July 1, Pierson arrived and on the day after he left with the children. The girls were dressed in beach pajamas, and the boy in rompers, and when I suggested that he take other clothing for them he replied that he would buy new clothing on the way."

Miss Abernathy also revealed that Mrs. Eicher sought to withhold from Powers the information that her home had been mortgaged twice and her equity practically wiped out. When she arrived at the house to care for the children, Miss Abernathy said, she was cautioned by Mrs. Eicher not to mention the facts of the mortgages.

Information gathered by the police indicated that the widow had about exhausted the estate left her by Eicher and was perilously close to being without resources.

It was also learned that when Powers returned for the children he brought with him a letter supposed to have been signed by Mrs. Eicher, authorizing Greta to draw her savings from the local bank. Greta, at Powers' direction, went to the bank, but the cashier, B. E. Kaufust, found that the signature of Mrs. Eicher did not tally with the records, and he told the girl she must get a properly filled out check signed with her mother's true signature. She never returned.

Refers Her to Lawyer.

Mayor William A. McKee of Park Ridge who, on several occasions has been called upon by the widow for advice, recalled last night that shortly before she disappeared she had telephoned to him saying she wanted his counsel on transferring her property. He referred her to a lawyer, the mayor said, and heard from her no more.

After the departure of the children nothing was heard from the family until ten days ago when a Park Ridge playmate of Greta Eicher received a letter, supposedly from Greta, in which she told of having a fine time, and that the family expected to go to Europe. The letter was postmarked at Clarksburg.

Soon afterward Powers appeared again in Park Ridge, and hired a laborer to help him move all of Mrs. Eicher's possessions from the house into the garage at the rear of the grounds. This was done and then Powers offered the house for rent at $75 a month.

Claims Power as Her Agent.

When he was asked by what authority he was renting the house he said he held power as the agent of Mrs. Eicher, and he exhibited what purported to be an order from her naming Powers her agent.

At this time a bill for interest due on a mortgage on the house was presented, for several hundred dollars. Powers paid it from a roll of bills which was described to the police as containing at least $1,000.

Powers' actions aroused the suspicions of the neighbors, and the police were notified. Chief Johnson questioned Powers, who asserted that Mrs. Eicher was in Colorado and had asked him to take charge of her affairs.

Love Letters Are Found.

Then Chief Johnson determined to search the Eicher premises, and he found, stuffed away in a garbage can, the series of love letters written by "Pierson" to Mrs. Eicher. The search for "Pierson" was ordered at once, and was taken up by the West Virginia authorities.

"Pierson" was found to be receiving large amounts of mail under that name at the Clarksburg postoffice, and a watch was placed at the box. He called for his mail and was arrested. Then it was found he had written to many other women in other parts of the country, proposing marriage. His real identity was then disclosed.

Efforts to locate relatives of Mrs. Eicher have been conducted in vain, and the probability that she has no near kin, evidently made known to Powers, might have emboldened him to murder the family in the assurance that Mrs. Eicher and the children would not be missed.

Chief Johnson said he would leave today by airplane for Clarksburg.

POWERS WAS STUDENT OF LIFE OF LANDRU, FRANCE'S BLUEBEARD

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Harry F. Powers, held for the murders of Mrs. Asta Eicher and her three children, was said to be a close student of the methods of Henri Landru, Bluebeard of France, who murdered his many wives, and was later guillotined.

Chief of Police Duckworth, after questioning Powers, said the prisoner admitted having read closely the history of the Landru murders and of being greatly impressed by them.

"Powers also said he was an enthusiastic student of psychology," declared Duckworth. "He has read widely on the subject."

TWO KILLED AS TRAIN CRASHES ARMORED TRUCK

Money Guards Die; Cash Scattered About.

Two guards of the Brink's Express company were killed and a third probably fatally injured yesterday when one of the company's money trucks was demolished by a fast Baltimore and Ohio railroad train at 49th street and Ashland avenue.

At the time of the collision the armored truck was carrying approximately $10,000 in collections which it had picked up from the south side branch offices of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. The money, silver and bills, was scattered along the right of way as the train hurled the truck 200 feet.

Gather Scattered Money.

Two other guards, who had been following the truck in an armored escort coupe, gathered up most of the scattered money. Officials of the company said that they would have to get a report on the amount of the collections from the insurance company before they could determine whether any of the money had been stolen by the hundreds of spectators who flocked to the scene of the crash.

Raymond Hengles, 35 years old, 1811 South 50th avenue, Cicero, who was riding in the interior of the truck, was instantly killed James Perkins, 50 years old, 5317 West Monroe street, the messenger in charge of the crew, died soon after he was taken to the Little Company of Mary hospital.

The driver, William O'Brien, 30 years old, 5002 West End avenue, received a skull fracture and other injuries which make his recovery extremely doubtful, it was said at the hospital.

Drives into Path of Train.

O'Brien, driving south on Ashland avenue, apparently did not see the flashing light which is the warning at the crossing and drove into the path of the train. The train which struck him was No. 10, a B. & O. limited bound for Washington. Less than a month ago the Capitol Limited of the B. & O. demolished one of the fire department's gasoline trucks at the same crossing.

These deaths and two others brought the toll of automobile fatalities in Cook county to 752. The other victims:

Mary Dykema, 5 years old, 5939 South Loomis street. Crushed to death beneath the wheels of an ice truck in the alley behind her home. The driver, Jerry Dykman, 28 years old, 13136 Lowe avenue, was held by the Englewood police.

Salvatore Caisa, 60 years old, 1336 West Austin avenue. Fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile as he attempted to turn his bicycle in a "U" turn at Wells street and Ogden avenue. Charles Scaccia, 24 years old, 855 West Grand avenue, driver of the car, was held.

Grand Jury Submits Program for War on Crime in Chicago

After eight months of investigation of hearsay evidence on charges that Chicago's police department is corrupt, the special grand jury yesterday returned a finding that virtually cleared the department of the charges. The jurors appended to their report the following recommendations for coping with crime:

1. That in the future no special grand juries be impaneled except in case of dire emergency and that instead the state's attorney's funds be augmented to allow ample scope in undercover investigation.

2. That Chicago's police force be greatly increased, preferably doubled.

Urge Shifting of Police.

3. That the entire personnel of stations in the so-called bad districts be periodically shifted to diminish the possibilities of graft.

4. That the method recently installed of keeping a record of the efficiency of each officer in the department be continued.

5. That the improvements in the service inaugurated by the present civil service commission be continued in effect and that more improvements and greater efficiency be secured.

In commenting on the lack of concrete evidence obtained from professional informers and reformers, the jury's report stated:

"This investigation and its results have suggested to us that there is altogether too much loose talk about the city and its various departments. One might almost say that Chicagoans have developed a complex of rising on the slightest provocation or opportunity to denounce in scathing language every one and everything that some one has thoughtlessly or maliciously suggested might be wrong.

"We think that it is especially pernicious and reprehensible for citizens of Chicago who have achieved positions of prominence in the community to visit other cities, and yielding to the temptation to be the hero of the hour and the cynosure for all eyes, attempt to thrill their listeners with weird tales of sin-soaked Chicago, its police its judiciary, and public officers generally."

The report stated that of all the persons interviewed by the grand jury, not one was able to give a concrete case of graft or corruption in the police department nor to give the name of a single witness who could testify to such a charge.

The jurors said that nothing, in their opinion, would go so far in the raising of the standards of all police departments as the repeal or modification of the prohibition law.

"To expect police officers," the report declared, "to enforce a law which is being constantly violated by the so-called best people and, as has been demonstrated in Illinois, is not in accord with the views of the majority, strikes us as an impossible requirement."

McGoorty Praises Jurors.

Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court to whom the grand jury submitted its report, commended the jurors for the industry and earnestness of their investigation.

"You were summoned as a fact finding body," he said. "It is not without significance that during your long term of service there has been a decrease of crime in the Chicago area. While the work of your honorable body has not resulted in the return of any indictments it is a continuous evidence of the fact that no person is above the law. I have no doubt your highly commendatory findings as to the police department of Chicago will strengthen its morals and be an incentive towards higher efficiency."

In expanding on their recommendation that no further special grand juries be impaneled except in cases of dire emergency, the jurors said: "The practice of gathering 23 men from all walks of life to investigate something of which they have no knowledge whatever is uneconomic, unscientific, archaic and utterly futile."

Father Falls Dead as He Visits Grave of His Son

Charles Reed, 75 years old of 5938 Lowe avenue, a retired mechanic, and his wife, Alma, visited the grave of their son, George, in Oakwoods cemetery yesterday. As the couple turned away from the grave, Reed staggered and collapsed. A physician was summoned. He pronounced Reed dead. Heart disease was the cause.

ALLEGED BANDIT'S SLAYER BATTLES $10,000 JUDGMENT

Arthur Bedard, a private watchman, appeared in the County court of Judge J. G. Van Keuren yesterday on a pleading under the insolvent debtor's act for his release from a $10,000 default judgment obtained against him by Mrs. Jessie Alice Graham, whose husband, Richard, he shot and killed in January, 1929.

In his petition, filed by Attorney Irving N. Stenn, Bedard charged that Graham was accidentally killed after he had been captured by Bedard and a policeman following an alleged attempt to rob the People's theater, 1620 West 47th street. A crowd gathered and Bedard covered Graham with his revolver while the policeman went to summon a patrol wagon. Bedard says that some one in the crow struck his elbow, his gun was discharged and Graham fell dead, a bullet in his brain. Bedard was exonerated by a coroner's jury.

Attorney George Grear, representing Mrs. Graham, yesterday told the court that Graham had bought a ticket to the theater and then, dissatisfied, had tried to get his money back. He declared that there had been no attempt at a holdup. Judge Van Keuren continued the hearing until Sept. 2.

JUDGE RULES OUT PLEA TO PROTECT STARS ON AUTOS

Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday refused to issue an injunction to restrain the police from arresting motorists whose cars carry "I gotta drag" stars.

The injunction was sought by John J. Enright and J. Ryan Toomey, attorneys for Frank S. Wattells, a manufacturer of "I Will, Chicago World's Fair" stars. Otto F. Weiner, assistant corporation counsel, appeared for the city.

"Why have a badge of authority?" Judge Trude demanded when Attorney Enright presented his petition. "This thing of carrying stars on automobiles is the most un-American thing I know of. I am against it personally and as a judge."

Attorney Enright argued that the stars carried no authority and that the city ordinance against the use of stars was unconstitutional.

"Use any other emblem," said the judge. "This 'I gotta drag' idea is wrong in theory and principle. As far as I'm concerned I am against this and I deny the motion."

NATION 7 YEARS AHEAD ON CUTS IN PUBLIC DEBT

Many Other Countries Let Totals Pile Up.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Close adherence to a policy of cutting down the national debt during years of prosperity has placed the United States treasury almost seven years ahead of schedule in the retirement of the huge financial obligations that sent the gross public debt soaring during the war.

While Great Britain and many other nations have allowed their national debts to remain stationary or climb to new highs during the years since the war debt peaks of 1919, the United States has followed a strict policy of reducing its public debt almost twice as fast as required by statutory provisions of the law.

Surplus Receipts Applied.

Instead of halting its war debt repayment operations when legal requirements were met, treasury officials have set on to apply surplus receipts from income and customs taxes to further public debt reduction at the rate of more than 311 millions a year during the eleven years ending July 30 last. Out of a sum in excess of nine billions applied for war debt retirement during the period from July 1, 1920, to June 30, 1930, three and a half billions represented surplus receipts, most of which were accumulated during the Harding and Coolidge administrations.

As the amount which must by law be applied to debt retirement each year rose in the neighborhood of 500 millions, it is apparent that the three and a half billion dollar surplus applied to the debt in excess of legal requirements represents close to seven years' payments.

As a result of the debt reduction policy followed by the treasury, the public debt administration represented the brightest spot in the United States financial outlook when the worldwide depression hit the United States late in 1929 and sent income and customs receipts tumbling far below the levels of prosperity years.

Reduced Ten Billions.

The gross public debt of the United States today of 16 billion 810 million is almost 10 billion below what it was on June 30, 1919, when the nation's debt reached a peak figure of 26 billion 596 million. This reduction was achieved notwithstanding the severest depression which ran up a 2 billion deficit last year and added 616 millions to the public debt. During that same period the interest charge on the public debt was expanded downward from in excess of a billion dollars in 1919 to 616 millions during the fiscal year which ended June 30, last. The average interest rate also was reduced from a fraction above 4.22 per cent down to 3.

Great Britain, during the same period, has seen her net total dead-weight debt rise from 7,434,900,000 pounds in 1919 to 7,469,000,000 in March, 1931. These figures, taken from the Economist budget supplement for April, 1931, show that the British debt today is in excess of thirty billions of dollars. The interest rate on the British debt remains high, not having been reduced materially as the interest charge on the American public debt.

Foreign Payments Used.

The debt has been reduced from its wartime peak chiefly by the operation of the cumulative sinking fund fed by surplus revenues—that is, the excess of ordinary receipts over the expenditures of running the government. Payments made by foreign governments on their wartime debts to us have played a part, although not as large a one as either the sinking fund or the surpluses.

The cumulative sinking fund, provision for which was made in the victory loan act of 1919, provided for an initial payment out of ordinary receipts for debt reduction of 2½ per cent of the aggregate amount of liberty bonds and victory notes outstanding on July 1, 1920, less an amount equal to the par value of any obligations of foreign governments held by the United States on July 1, 1920. The initial credit amounted to $253,404,864. To this amount is added as a second-year credit each year the interest which would have been payable during the fiscal year for which the application is made on the bonds and notes purchased, redeemed, or paid out of the sinking fund during such year or in previous years.

Thus the total amount to be appropriated out of ordinary receipts for sinking fund purposes grows with each year, the total for 1931 reaching 1,000 millions. This cumulative increase in the sinking fund will continue until the portion of the debt due to the Liberty bonds which is not covered by the obligations of foreign nations is extinguished.

Pollen Carries Pollen Right to Hay Fever Sufferers

A strong wind from the west yesterday made hay fever victims in the Chicago area spend the most miserable day of the hay fever season thus far. The wind brought pollen from fields in the prairies west of the city and the suburbs to such an extent that the pollen count in the loop reached 225. The highest previous count this year was 148 on Aug. 24. The count is taken daily on the federal building by O. C. Durham, aerial survey botanist, by means of a slide which registers the approximate number of pollen granules found in a given unit of air.

Just then Mrs. Estelle Fabe, 2024 Berwyn avenue, emerged from the house. He greeted her with a "good morning" and took her diamond ring.

GARBAGE DRIVERS REMAIN ON STRIKE DESPITE WARNING

The strike of city teamsters and chauffeurs who collect Chicago's garbage remained in force yesterday, in spite of the warning of Commissioner of Public Work Sprague that the men would be liable to civil service proceedings to remove them from their jobs if they did not report for work on Monday morning.

MICHAEL CARROZZA.

A large number of the men heeded the special delivery letters of warning which Sprague sent them and appeared at the city garage at 2322 South Ashland avenue. They were met there, however, by officials of their organization, the Sanitary Teamsters and Helpers' union.

The drivers returned to their homes. Informed of what had happened, Commissioner Sprague said:

"The men will get another chance to report for work on Monday. If they don't show up then they will be suspended and ordered before the civil service commission for trial."

The sanitary teamsters' union, whose leaders asserted on Thursday that other city unions would strike in sympathy if the city employs nonunion strikebreakers, received a setback in statements by Michael Carrozza, head of the Street Cleaners' union, and Charles O'Kelly of the Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Helpers' union, who declared they had no intention of calling their men off city jobs.

WIFE OF KEARNS TELLS ALL ABOUT HER MARRIAGE

Says She Met Him at Age of 17.

'Edyth' and sometimes as 'Edith'?," Attorney Harrington asked.

"Yes," she replied. "His spelling isn't so good."

When they separated on March 22, 1924, Kearns signed the agreement by which she would receive $500 a month, she testified.

"I don't see how I can live on less than $500 a month," Mrs. Kearns said. "I owe so much. And that's quite a drop for a girl who never had less than $2,500 to $3,000 a month for living expenses at one time. When I left him he told me he had $1,500,000."

She declared the only work she had done recently was as a dancer in a New York night club, where she worked twelve weeks at $350 a week. Then she became ill.

Kearns Denies Marriage.

Kearns, taking the stand, denied the alleged Atlantic City marriage, denied that he had any money, and said that he "never saw a wedding ring on her finger all the time we were living together." Asked about the telegram, he said: "I can't recall it. Possibly one of my secretaries sent it."

Kearns was released on his own bond of $5,000 and warned by Judge Trude that if he did not appear within 36 hours after being summoned at any time he would be held in contempt of court. Judge Trude will give his opinion on the case on Sept. 22.

Following the hearing Mrs. Kearns told reporters that Jack was the only man she ever had really loved.

"And I wasn't no little bum when he met me, either," she said. "I was working for my sister in a cabaret show and he persuaded us to quit and go with his and Dempsey's show. When I met Jack Kearns I was just a young, innocent girl."

Question Before Court.

Attorney Albert Hassell of Mrs. Kearns' counsel said that the only question to be decided by the court was the awarding of temporary alimony and $1,000 in attorneys' fees pending a hearing on a writ of error in the Appellate court.

Kearns' suit for annulment of the purported marriage, brought last year, is pending. Judge Brothers ordered him to pay $500 a month to Mrs. Kearns meanwhile, and Judge Trude last spring issued an attachment for his arrest because of his refusal to pay it. The Appellate court on June 21 issued a writ of supersedeas releasing him from the attachment pending its ruling on his appeal from Judge Trude's order.

TRAIL G. O. P. FUND THROUGH CANNON TO HOOVERCRATS

Find Bishop Got $5,000 from Huston.

Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], under whose resolution the committee is acting, gave out a reply to Bishop Cannon's statement of yesterday in London.

Should an investigation of the Virginia Republican or Democratic campaign chairmen be demanded, said Senator Glass, he would see that such an investigation was held and "would give my personal bond that each of these gentlemen will also demand investigation and not run away to Europe or seek to hide his culpability behind the skirts of a woman secretary."

"The point of this Nye investigation," the senator continued, "is not so much to ascertain to whom Bishop Cannon paid out funds for political purposes as it is to determine whether he used such funds for his own private purposes; and from the nature of the evidence already adduced it is not to be wondered that a physician gave the bishop a certificate to the effect that it would endanger his life to explain his bank account to the Nye committee."

But it was in the evidence concerning the Huston donation that the committee evinced particular interest. The story was pieced together from the testimony of W. H. Wood, Charlotte, N. C., banker and leader of the anti-Smith movement in that state, and Conrad C. Probst, vice president of the International Trust company.

Receives $5,000 Check.

Mr. Wood told of having been advised by Frank R. McNinch to call Bishop Cannon and ask him for funds. It was Mr. McNinch who had trouble having his appointment as a Democratic member of the federal power commission confirmed at the last session of congress because of his Hoover-crat activities. Mr. Wood called the bishop, he said, and later received the $5,000 check.

Mr. Probst told of how Mr. Huston had opened the account with his bank on Oct. 11, 1928, with a deposit of $50,000. Then came another $50,000 deposit, and on Oct. 26 the payment on the check that had gone to Mr. Wood. In all, he testified, a total of $183,356.86 was deposited in the Huston account.

Eighteen checks, the largest being for $25,000, were drawn on it up to Nov. 1, 1928, when the balance remaining was $33,597.66.

No contribution by Mr. Huston to any presidential campaign fund had been disclosed as officially reported by the investigation of the former senate committee headed by Senator Steiwer [Rep., Ore.], it was testified by Basil Manly, committee investigator.

Trace Money Paid Heirs.

It was through Mr. Manly and through the testimony of Lewis B. Willis, Orange, Va., farmer, that the committee heard of Bishop Cannon's settlements under the will of Mrs. Mary C. Moore.

Willis and his sisters were beneficiaries under Mrs. Moore's will.

"I had written Bishop Cannon, the executor, two or three times, asking for a settlement," said Willis. "It had been running on for about three years."

On Jan. 6 or 7, 1929, said Willis, a check for $450 as settlement in full arrived. It was drawn on the Bank of Crewe, Va., and Willis was "astonished" to find it post-dated Jan. 14. It was signed by James Cannon Jr. as executor.

By the Manly testimony it was shown that Bishop Cannon had transferred $5,300 from the "political account of James Cannon Jr., chairman, in the Continental Trust company of Washington to the Bank of Crewe on Nov. 2, 1928, and had purchased a certificate of deposit with it. On Jan. 12, 1929, Manly declared, the bishop had returned the certificate, which by that time had drawn interest of $42.40, and had ordered that it be used in opening the James Cannon Jr., executor, account on which the Willis check was drawn. This was done on Jan 14, the date the Willis check was issued.

ORDERS COUNTY TO SIGN NURSES' HOME CONTRACT

Judge Ross C. Hall issued a writ of mandamus in the Superior court yesterday ordering President Whealan of the county board, James C. Russell, county superintendent of public service, and County Clerk Sweitzer to sign a contract with the Mutual Construction company for the construction of the county hospital nurses' home.

The county board awarded the contract to the Mutual company Tuesday on a bid of $1,495,000. County Attorney Hayden N. Bell warned the board that its action was illegal. The Mutual company was sixth low on the list of formal bidders, but was lowest by reason of an alternate bid in which it submitted its own specifications for the floors of the building.

Attorney Bell held that the board had no right to consider a bid based on specifications other than those prepared by its own architects. He warned the commissioners that they would be personally liable if they executed a contract with the Mutual company, and the court action was taken to relieve them of that liability.

Judge Hall signed the writ after Attorney Edgar B. Tolman, representing the construction company, had argued that all the other bidders for the contract were free to submit their own specifications.

PAY ROLL DELAY SAVES $4,000 AT FAIR GROUNDS

A half hour delay in preparing a pay roll for its employés engaged in erecting the hall of science for the World's Fair yesterday saved the McLennan Construction company $4,000.

Three gunmen invaded the field office of the company, southeast of Soldiers' field, at the hour when the pay roll was expected. They made prisoners of Gustave Orth, assistant superintendent, and three draftsmen. They forced their prisoners to lie on the floor, and when Otto Krestzer, the superintendent, and three foremen entred at intervals, they were forced to join them.

After quizzing their prisoners about the pay roll for fifteen minutes, the bandits fled without loot. A few minutes later Thomas Emerson, the timekeeper, arrived from the company's office at 307 North Michigan avenue with the pay, roll, explaining that he had been delayed.

44 Loop Master Barbers Vote Against Price Cut

Forty-four members of the Loop Master Barbers' association yesterday signed an agreement at a meeting in the Morrison hotel to stand by the standard price of 75 cents for haircuts. North side master barbers voted last Saturday to reduce the price to 60 cents and a proposal for city-wide adoption of the cut rate is up for consideration at a barbers' massmeeting next Monday.

PROMISE ARREST OF LYNCH KIDNAP GANG IN 2 DAYS

Roche Says Names of Seven Are Known.

The seven men who kidnaped John J. [Jack] Lynch, turf news service owner, and released him after a supposed payment of at least $50,000, will be under arrest within two days and in prison three days later.

This prediction was made late last night by Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney's office, at Fontana, near Lake Geneva, Wis., where he has established headquarters to direct investigation of the abduction.

Roche's statement was emphatic.

"We know who the kidnapers are," he said. "We will have them in custody inside of two days. By Wednesday we will have them in prison."

Says Identities Are Known.

Some of the abductors are Chicagoans. Others are outsiders. Leo Mongoven, hoodlum, is not among them, Roche declared. He refused to hint as to the identity of the men, but repeated that their identities were known positively and that they would be convicted.

Earlier Roche met Assistant State's Attorney Nat Ruvell at Lake Geneva, Lynch's home, and afterward the two drove to Elkhorn, where they talked with District Attorney Arthur T. Thorson of Walworth county, Wis. The kidnaping of Lynch took place in Wisconsin, and it was decided to prosecute the criminals in that state rather than in Illinois. Should the men be apprehended, there will be no delays in prosecution under Wisconsin laws, and there is sufficient precedent for Roche's statement that "by Wednesday we will have them in prison."

Lynch's Ribs Broken.

Roche visited Lynch at the latter's home. Lynch is under a doctor's care. He is suffering from three broken ribs, received in a beating at the hands of the kidnapers. Lynch's condition, while not immediately critical, is serious. His eyesight has been impaired because during most of his captivity his eyes were covered by bandages or glasses.

Lynch, it is said, is unable at present, or perhaps unwilling, to coöperate with officials as fully as had been expected. He has identified no pictures. However, Roche says he has three stellar witnesses, Frank Bordwell of Beaver Dam, Wis., who saw the abduction, and Mrs. Harry Schow and Arthur Hermance, both of Pell lake, who saw the kidnapers earlier. They were found by Detectives Louis Caparelli and Walter Wendt.

Seize Ex-Broker Charged with Swindling Women

A search of several years for Ben Wolff, 50 years old, a former broker, who is charged with defrauding two Cincinnati women of $100,000 in a stock transaction, ended yesterday when he was arrested in his home at 838 Waveland avenue. Police charge that in 1928 Wolff traded a block of worthless stock to Mrs. Mary Wagner and Miss C. H. Simpson of Cincinnati, for $100,000 worth of good securities which they held. Wolff denies the charge and says he will fight extradition.

COURT ORDER PUTS $325,000 IN TRUST FOR FORSAKEN CHILD

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—A trust fund of $325,000 was ordered established today by Vice Chancellor Backes for a child, separated from his mother three days after his birth, and later sought unsuccessfully in all parts of the world.

VIVIAN CORNELIUS.
[Acme Photo.]

The child is the son of the former Florence Emery, daughter of the late William E. Emery, millionaire of Flemington, N. J., and New York, and the money is to be held in trust by Vivien E. Cornelius, the husband of Jessica Brown, former Follies beauty and divorced wife of Lord Northesk.

The $325,000 is half of a trust fund of $650,000 established by Emery for his two daughters, Florence and May. The first half of the fund has already been paid to Cornelius, the son of May Emery.

According to papers in the case, Florence was married secretly to Francis Roderick Georger in Brooklyn on July 15, 1895. She turned their son over to a German nurse, Sophie Landgraf, it is alleged, with instructions never to reveal the child's identity.

Vice Chancellor Backes in his decision today forbade Cornelius to use any part of the $325,000 fund for himself until the fate of the child is finally determined by the courts. In his opinion he wrote:

"The fund will be ordered paid to Vivien E. Cornelius in trust for the Infant Georger, piteously forsaken, presumed dead, possibly drifting or perchance fallen into arms that cherished him—who knows."

NEW BRUTALITY CHARGE AGAINST BERWYN POLICE

Additional charges of brutality on the part of Berwyn police were made last night before the village board of police and fire commissioners. The newest complainant is Raymond Grant, 47 years old, 414 South Irving avenue.

He appeared before the board last night as the commissioners met to hear the allegations preferred recently by Michael M. Brooks, 3227 Florence avenue, Berwyn. Brooks charges that he was beaten without provocation by Acting Chief Thomas C. Bartunek and two other policemen after he had been arrested in the rear of his own home. The complaints of Brooks were continued to Sept. 11 at the request of Attorney Leslie J. Smith of the Chicago Motor club, representing him, and counsel for the accused policemen.

The continuance allowed, Grant stepped up. Through Attorney Smith he submitted an affidavit. The affidavit charged that he and two friends, Ernest Dade and B. Davis, were beaten severely last Jan. 19 when they were accused of riding in a stolen car for which they had a bill of sale. The policemen, he stated, forced his companions to sign bogus confessions by force. Subsequently all three were cleared of the police charges, but not before spending several days in jail. Grant's case was continued also to Sept. 11.

Former Cashier Is Indicted in Inquiry on Closed Banks

The present grand jury investigation of conditions surrounding the closing of 84 Cook county banks yielded its first results yesterday when an indictment was returned against a bank official for an act of larceny, allegedly committed three years ago.

The indictment, reported to be the first of a series the jury contemplates voting before its term expires next week, names John A. Woodrow, former vice president and cashier of the Citizens Trust and Savings bank, 55th and State streets. The institution closed its doors on Aug. 5, 1930.

Theft of Bank Stock Charged.

Woodrow had several connections with the bank and disappeared two years before it closed, according to reports in the Criminal court building. Shortly before quitting the bank, the indictment charges, he took ninety-four shares of the bank's stock from the vaults and converted the shares into cash for his own use.

The ex-cashier is now a fugitive. The authorities have a well defined suspicion of his hiding place, however, according to Assistant State's Attorney Henry E. Ayers, and expect to have him arrested in a city of a neighboring state within a day or two.

On Monday, Mr. Ayers announced, the jury will examine the affairs of the South Side Trust and Savings bank, 4659 Cottage Grove avenue. John A. Carroll, receiver, and his attorney, Samuel A. Ettelson, have been subpoenaed before the jury.

Depositors to Call on Nelson.

On Monday also the United Depositors' association, a corporation claiming to represent depositors of 34 closed banks, expects to gain an audience with State Auditor Oscar Nelson, according to the Rev. H. Truman Gordon, pastor of Unity Lutheran church and chairman of the group.

Officers of the association, according to their attorney, L. F. Jacobson, seek to lay their grievances before the auditor and present him with a plan they are sponsoring for liquidation of the assets of the closed banks.

Seeking support of this program, Attorney Jacobson arranged a public meeting yesterday at the offices of the Association of Commerce. Among those who attended were Mark Levy, president of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards, and John Fitzpatrick, president of the Federation of Labor.

Mr. Jacobson opened the meeting with an attack on Auditor Nelson's bank receivers, terming them "an army of amateurs." He assured the committee that he held no personal ill will toward the auditor.

The lawyer then explained the association's plan for liquidating bank assets, the principal feature of which is the formation of a collateral trust of the estimated $40,000,000 of undefaulted bonds and mortgages in the closed banks, the underwriting of the trust by bankers, and the marketing of the securities to get cash for depositors on a pro rata basis.

Auditor Working on Plan.

Mr. Jacobson averred he had conceived the plan several weeks before Auditor Nelson at a meeting of bank receivers on Aug. 12 had broached a similar plan. The auditor now has a committee working on the details of his plan.

Mr. Nixon suggested that Earle H. Reynolds, president of the Chicago Clearing House association and of the Peoples Trust and Savings bank, might be persuaded to serve on a central committee. Mr. Nixon, Mr. Levy, and Mr. Fitzpatrick agreed to serve also. Mr. Gordon and his lawyer decided to call on Mr. Reynolds today and also to request the heads of the Continental Illinois, First National, and Central Republic banking groups to name a banker to serve with Mr. Reynolds.

25 PER CENT OF BRITAIN'S WEALTH TAKEN BY TAXES

Policy Aims at Breakup of Big Fortunes.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Taxation in the United Kingdom annually swallows between 25 and 30 per cent of the national income. Government levies have averaged $60,000,000 pounds [about $4,000,000,000] in the last few years, and besides this there is a total of 200,000,000 pounds [about $1,000,000,000] in local "rates," making a global sum of a billion pounds [about $5,000,000,000].

(Because of the round figures used in this article and because of the varying value of the pound sterling, worth today $3.86, the pound is figured at $5 in such places as dollar values are given.)

The earning power of the country has fluctuated in recent years between 15 and 20 billion dollars. This year it will be nearer the first figure, and yet there will be a deficit estimated at more than $600,000,000, which must be made up in this year's budget, according to admissions by Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer.

Heavy Tax Policy Deliberate.

The overwhelming taxation is a deliberate aim in the national economic policy for the redistribution of wealth and was begun by the Liberal government of 1906-'14, and was not seriously disturbed by the Conservative government which preceded the existing Labor cabinet, so firmly has it become intrenched.

"Tax the rich so heavily that the huge private fortunes will be mulcted by the state, and scatter the revenue among the poor by means of social services," is the slogan of the Labor party, backed by all the radical and extreme section of public opinion. It is a drive to level the barriers of the class system by expropriating, over an indefinite term of years, the capitalistic class.

By "the rich," from whom money is seized, the government means practically entirely the "white collar class." They are relieved of money by:

1. Income tax, 4s 6d in the pound.
2. Supertax on incomes over £2,000.
3. Estate duties on inheritance.

A man with an income of 5,000 pounds from investments pays 1,007 pounds in income tax and 307 pounds supertax. A man with an income of 50,000 pounds pays 11,132 pounds income tax and 14,506 supertax, a trifle more than 50 per cent of his income.

Give Money to Poor.

Money is redistributed to the poor through the following social services:

	Annually.
1. Old age pensions, about	£38,000,000
2. Widows' pensions, about	23,000,000
3. War pensions, about	53,000,000
4. Health pensions, about	39,000,000
5. Unemployment ins., about	53,000,000

Obviously, these expenditures do not approach receipts from the income tax yield, which last year, with supertax, customs and excise duties, accounted for $47,000,000 pounds [$2,738,000,000] of the 665,000,000 pounds [$3,525,000,000] total receipts from taxes, or $2 per cent of the total tax revenue.

Yield of "death duties," the inheritance tax, has been mounting rapidly in recent years. Stamp duties, the small tax on checks, receipts, stocks, shares and documents, is playing a larger and larger part in the budget scheme.

Service on the national debt consumes about one-third of the receipts in the budget, amounting to 229,000,000 pounds [$1,845,000,000] last year. Civil service, salaries and costs of operating the government, comes next, utilising 246,000,000 pounds [$1,230,000,000]. The army costs 40,000,000 pounds [$200,000,000], the navy 56,000,000 pounds [$280,000,000], the air force 16,000,000 pounds [$80,000,000], and customs 12,000,000 pounds [$60,000,000].

To Aid "Common People."

Squeezing all capital out of the rich through taxation and distributing it among the poor in relief measures is aimed avowedly to bring up the standard of living of the "common people," who are also "the poor," as there is scarcely a distinction there, to a higher level. Not the level at which the upper classes maintain themselves now, as that is unthinkable to an Englishman who knows he belongs in a certain groove and thinks he has no right to try to ease himself into a higher one.

Concrete opinions on the ultimate results of the system, if it ever works out satisfactorily, are hard to find, as no one seems to know exactly what it is that the poor man wants, except a roof over his head, three square meals a day, plenty of beer, perhaps a motorcycle or side car, and some spare silver to buy sweepstake tickets.

There is no widespread demand for bigger homes, modern bathrooms, or even telephones, and automobiles for the masses are simply not even dreamed about. Gas is considered more convenient than oil lamps, but any one having gas illumination considers that this problem is settled and never gives a thought to the more practical idea of electric light.

Workers in Silk Hats.

One item is a prime necessity for any Britisher who has any ambition and who holds a job, no matter how obscure, in business. That is a dress suit—"tails" it is called here—and a silk hat. Our office boy earning 27 shillings [$6.75] a week has his tails and white tie and a shaggy silk hat which he dons for parties and for all social functions, regardless of the fact that others in attendance may be wearing sweaters or overalls.

At one time all clerks wore cutaway coats and silk hats to business, and in certain of the banks and older established concerns the office force still wears this costume. The clerks crowd into cheap lunch rooms and race after buses in their toppers and shiny frayed morning coats without any concern over the incongruity of their appearance.

But the nice economic scheme of milking the contented cow—capital—day and serving the milk and cream to the poorer classes contains one insuperable drawback. It does not provide fodder for the cow, and according to best belief here the poor animal eventually will keel over and die and end the experiment. Then there will be no more milk for the poor.

"Death Duty" Scale.

Here is an example, a table of scales on inheritance duties:

Value of estate.	Death duty.
£500	1%
£1,000	2%
£5,000	3%
£10,000	4%
£20,000	8%
£50,000	14%
£100,000	19%
£500,000	27%
£1,000,000	29%
£5,000,000	40%

The number of large estates which paid these duties in 1929 and the value of the estates involved are as follows:

Value of estate—	Number taxed.
£500,000 to 800,000	12
£800,000 to £800,000	18
£800,000 to £1,000,000	3
£1,000,000 to £2,000,000	14
£2,000,000 to £3,000,000	3
Over £3,000,000	1

Even entailed estates may be sold in part to raise funds to pay death duties, but it is becoming more and more difficult for land owners to find a market for their property. The local peasantry are unable to purchase any property, since extensive farming is not economically sound under free trade, and the new rich are extremely reluctant to buy real property and face the taxation that confronts them.

No One Wants Land.

The government can take over property on which duties have not been paid, but it already faces the possibility of becoming a "national landlord" through the acquirement of these huge tracts as time goes on, with no adequate means of disposing of them.

Dividing the land up among the poor is no solution as long as free trade exists, as farmers would be unable to make a living from the soil.

SHARES ESTATE

MRS. CHARLOTTE NASH NIXON-NIRDLINGER.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 28.—(AP)—The estate of Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger, who was shot to death by his wife in Nice, France, on March 11, was appraised today at $730,328 in an inventory filed with the register of wills.

Mrs. Charlotte Nash Nixon-Nirdlinger, who was acquitted of a charge of murder by a jury in Nice, is now living in Atlantic City with her two children.

Under the terms of the Nixon-Nirdlinger will, filed April 22, she receives one-third of the estate, the balance being left to the children and a former wife, from whom he was divorced.

BRITISH LABOR STRIPS M'DONALD OF LEADERSHIP

Henderson Gets Premier's Mantle in Party.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Great Britain's politicians gathered in three camps in London today to discover where they are at. Both the Conservatives and Liberals approved the action of their party leaders entering the national emergency government — the Tories unanimously and the Liberals with a lone "no." At the same time the Labor party elected former Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson as its leader to succeed Prime Minister MacDonald, who has devoted most of his 64 years to build up this organization.

ARTHUR HENDERSON.

Stanley Baldwin had easy sailing before the Conservatives after assuring them that not one inch of party principle had been sacrificed in the tri-party fusion. In the case of the Liberals it was a different matter. Both these meetings were made up of members of parliament, peers and candidates, but the liberal membership in the house of commons met alone later and crossed political fingers. They refused to commit themselves to a government program dealing with the financial crisis until it has actually been introduced.

Assured of Success.

Nevertheless, Prime Minister MacDonald tonight appeared assured of success of the government's economy program. Political experts point out that the cabinet would assemble a majority of fifty votes in the house of commons. The house has 615 members and outside of possible defections, its real enemy is the labor party with its solid force of 280 members. And so again the government's fate rests with David Lloyd George and his Liberal party.

Upon being informed that the Labor party had discarded him as its leader, Mr. MacDonald, who arrived in Lossiemouth, Scotland, this morning for a rest, said:

"My only comment at this moment is that the action is of no assistance in dispelling the present crisis."

Running through the day's conferences was the sad note of the long expected announcement that Philip Snowden, who is still Mr. MacDonald's chancellor of the exchequer, will never sit in parliament again upon completing the formidable task ahead of him. Old age and ill health are revealed as the reasons for his retirement.

Tories Back Up Cabinet.

The day's meetings established the fact that the Conservatives, so far at any rate, are solidly behind the government's retrenchment proposals; that the Liberals will not support any policy directed merely at reductions of the dole payments, and finally, that the Labor party now duly constitutes the official opposition.

Out of the four former members of the cabinet who remained with the national government, only Lord Sankey, lord chancellor, attended the Labor party session. He arrived alone and pleaded with Labor to support the new government. After being heard in respectful silence, the lord chancellor departed.

Mr. MacDonald today denied reports that he had decided not to run for parliament again. Later he said he was grieved of being accused of ignoring his old party by not attending today's meeting. He explained that the invitation had arrived too late.

But his young son Malcolm, a Labor member of parliament, who has cast his political lot with his father, attended. He alone defended his father's action in forming the emergency cabinet. It is understood he will be given an undersecretaryship in the cabinet.

Mr. Baldwin at the Conservative party meeting revealed definite reasons for deciding on a composite government, instead of an attempt to organize a Tory ministry. He declared that the country could not afford to run the risk of a general election "as there was no time to lose."

Stress Need for Sacrifice.

Both at the Conservative and Liberal meetings, stress was placed on the obligation of members of parliament to lay before the country the real need for national sacrifice. Lord Reading, foreign secretary in the new government, told the Liberals that this was particularly true in the case of the working class, which must be told that its lot would have been the hardest had a panic set in, with an inflation of currency and an accompanying flight of sterling following. He was also the authority for the Liberal party's assertion that any reduction in the dole must be met by heavier taxation of the wealthier classes.

The first economy plans of the new régime will be enforced next Tuesday. Starting Sept. 1 the salaries of 300,000 civil servants will be reduced by sums varying from 25 cents to $1.25 weekly. The savings, it is expected, will amount to $4,000,000 annually.

Morgan Demands Dole Cut.

In connection with the announcement that American and French bankers have agreed to extend a $400,000,000 credit to the British government, THE TRIBUNE today learned from highest authority that when the Bank of England made frantic appeals to America for help J. P. Morgan, speaking for American bankers, told the Bank of England its credits could not be extended unless the British government made "drastic economies" and removed all dangers of lessening the value of the pound sterling.

Mr. Morgan, it is learned, even went so far as to indicate the methods of economies which most appealed to the American bankers. Among others, he suggested a reduction in the amount of the dole payments to the unemployed.

GREEN REPEATS PLEA FOR U. S. JOBS MEETING

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor today reiterated his demand that President Hoover call a conference of employers and employés to work out a program for creating employment. In the opinion of Mr. Green an augmented building program will be necessary this winter to supplement the efforts being made by the Gifford committee and the states to alleviate distress this winter.

WILLIAM GREEN.

Although it has been estimated that as much as 200 millions will be raised for voluntary relief work by municipalities and states during the drive under the auspices of the Gifford committee, Mr. Green said he believed this sum would be inadequate.

Wage reductions by 238 industrial establishments in 46 industries during the month ended July 15 brought the number of firms ordering cuts in that month to the third highest level for any corresponding period in recent years, a monthly analysis of employment trends issued today disclosed.

GALLOWS TO END CAREER OF "KING OF THE GALONS"

THARRAWADDY, Burma, Aug. 28. —(AP)—Saya San, "king of the Galons," who led a recent revolt against the British, has met his Waterloo at last, but it was in a tiny, dark courtroom here, not on the field of battle.

The doughty king, who has cost Great Britain dearly in money and blood, was sentenced to death today for treason against a higher king, George V. of England. Eighteen of his lieutenants also were sentenced to death, 18 others were given life terms and eight were acquitted. Saya San will be hanged almost immediately unless a stay of execution is granted.

His conviction ends a career as daring and romantic as that of the fabled Robin Hood. He styled the large army he built up the "Galon crusaders," a name derived from Hindu mythology, in which the galon was a fabulous bird which destroyed the naga, or snake. To him the British were the nagas, and he harassed them relentlessly until he finally was captured.

Graceful Old Age Depicted in New Fiction

With Dash of Avarice to Give It Climax.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"All Passion Spent," by V. Sackville-West [Doubleday Doran]. Published Aug. 27.

OLD AGE is one of the rarest estates of life to be made veritable in fiction. By the time that a novelist has achieved the experience to write about it autobiographically his urge to portray it has seeped away. A young person almost never has any spiritual contact with it. Either old age becomes a sentimentalized haven from life or an equally sentimentalized grave of life's hopes in fiction.

V. SACKVILLE-WEST.

Shaw once wrote — in "Antony and Cleopatra," I think— "The crowds along the Appian way are ever the same age." Life is, actually, "ever the same age." The world is kept going by people who are ever the same age. But that is true as well of the individual as of the world. The difference is that in the life of the world the age of the participants is a stable thing, in the life of the individual the "crowd" changes its age with the changing age of the central being. The woman of 55 who meets "the girls" for luncheon and bridge is really meeting "the girls." They are girls to her because they are her contemporaries. The trouble with most fiction about old age is that it is viewed from the outside looking in rather than from the inside looking out. The old woman in a novel is old in comparison with that crowd along the Appian way, whereas to herself she is literally as old as she thinks herself.

Miss Sackville-West has written in "All Passion Spent" a beautiful and delightfully amusing novel of old age —of the last year in the life of a woman of 88, the wife of a former prime minister, a viceroine of India, an ambassadress, the mother of six children, a grandmother, a great-grandmother who all of her life had been primarily the wife of Henry Holland, Lord Slane, but who, at the age of 88, after all of her duties to affection and love were well performed, chose to live her life as she chose—luxuriating in reminiscence unspoiled by the presence of any demanding or superintending children or too vivid and energetic grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Very firmly, and, as her children thought, very stubbornly and selfishly, she refused to accept their hospitality, to be passed around from one to the other, and insisted on renting a small house in Hampstead, where she lived alone with her old French maid, a woman of 56, who had been with her since her marriage at the age of 18. There they lived the very richest of lives, lives of contentment.

To prove, however, that life never ceases to have its moments, a strange old man appeared who became her most intimate friend, who believed implicitly in the destruction of the world in two years' time and who could prove it mathematically, a man who had rented his house to only one tenant during the thirty years which had elapsed since Lady Shane's first and only view of it, because he wanted to preserve the house's spirit, a man who talked as much for the joy of talking as of promulgating his ideas. With hi mshe enjoyed a friendship which she had never been able to enjoy with any one during her long years of vice-regality. With the workman, too, who did over her house, she had long, joyous hours of communion. He, too, was an old man, if slightly less than a contemporary. And, as a final filip, came a man who sixty years before had loved her—silently—in India, and who had been in her long life the only memory which ruffled for a second the clear outline of her love for her husband. He became the third of the three men who made those last few months of her life richer than all of the other years had been, because with "all passion spent" she dared to savor them in their fullness.

When the strange old man who had carried his love for her through sixty years of life, who had become a famous collector of beautiful things and a famous miser, died, he left her everything he owned, millions of pounds' worth of art objects, millions of pounds in cash. It was then that the only breath of scandal that had ever touched her was exhaled by her own daughter. With a vast fortune at her disposal, the old woman calmly gave it all away, to museums and hospitals, as her strange old admirer had intended to give it before he altered his will after meeting her again. The only friend in the world whom the old man had was her son, twenty years younger than himself, whom he had seen once in his cradle. It took the disappointed avarice of her daughter to see in the leaving of the money to her mother and the friendship of its donor for her brother the repentence of an old crime. She felt a noble daughter indeed when she had so stated her beliefs that the cry went up, "Poor father, for the first time I feel glad that he is no longer alive."

"All Passion Spent" is witty and charming and graceful and brilliant in the same manner and with the same flavor that "The Edwardians" was all of those things, but it is of another generation, not historically, but spiritually. It is an epic of old age, not an epic of a date.

Miss Strong, 9 Years in Russia, Tells of Wheat

Anna Louise Strong, who wrote "The Soviets Conquer Wheat: the Drama of Collective Farming" [Holt], is one of the few authors of Russian books to have had years of experience in the soviet union. Miss Strong has been there for the last nine years, first, as a member of the Friends' Relief Mission; later she covered Russia for the North American Newspaper alliance.

She organized manual training schools and home schools for Russian children; nearly died of the typhus while ministering to the starving Russians during the great "hungry year of the Volga," and founded and still edits The Moscow News, the only English newspaper in Russia. "The Soviets Conquer Wheat" is the first hand story of the epoch making soviet wheat harvest of 1930, which made the soviet a factor to be feared in world markets.

How John Paul Jones Puzzled Nantucketers

John Paul Jones was an unknown quantity to his own generation, at least that part of it that lived on Nantucket island during the American Revolution. As Edouard A. Stackpole points out in his recent book, "Smuggler's Luck" [Morrow], some of the hottest disputes of the war were on the question, "Was John Paul Jones a pirate or was he an American patriot?" But on one point all the seafaring Nantucketers were agreed—he was as good a seaman as ever trod a deck.

MEET 'GORDON DAVIOT'; HIS REAL FIRST NAME IS ELIZABETH

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—Two years ago there appeared in London an original and striking novel about a young man who became a burglar. It was called "Kit," and it attracted a good deal of attention. It was very well reviewed. It had some sale. And the author's next book was awaited with interest. The author's name was Gordon Daviot. Most readers supposed that Gordon Daviot was a man. They were wrong. I think that when they read the author's second book they will realize that Gordon Daviot is a woman.

The second book is published and has been winning considerable praise. It also has created a ripple of interest among literary folk, for it is as different from its predecessor as any book could be. It is light comedy. And as light comedy is what so many of us are ready to welcome in these days it will have a success. It is not original in theme, but it is witty and amusing in treatment, and the author's mind has an original quality which gives her work distinction and charm.

Still nobody knows anything about "Gordon Daviot," for she shuns publicity. She still is referred to in the London press as "Mr. Daviot." Such a thing could not happen with one who loved the limelight. Only with difficulty can one persuade her to reveal information about herself. The real name of "Gordon Daviot" is Miss Elizabeth Mackintosh. She was born in Inverness, and except for an English great-grandfather is entirely Scots. She now lives in Inverness, where she has written her second book [it is called "The Expensive Halo"], and where she writes plays which she regards as very much better than either of her novels.

She began writing before she could spell, and wrote her first story at the age of 7 on shiny kitchen paper. When she went to parties, she sat and read, instead of playing games. Then she began secretly to write verse. Having jibbed at a scholastic career and at a training in art, she took a course of physical training and dancing at a Birmingham college. She then served in various military hospitals during the later part of the war; and after the war began writing in earnest. Short stories were then her medium. But she had other experiences, being gymnastic mistress at a girls' school and otherwise engaged in physical training in Nottinghamshire until 1923, when she returned to Scotland to keep house for her father.

New Teaching Method Is Used by This Author

Offers Geography in the Terms of Stories.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.
[Director of children's work for branches of the Chicago public library.]

"North America," by Lucy S. Mitchell [Macmillan].

Parents, teachers, and others who keep abreast of the educational trends of the times are giving much attention these days to the so-called "experimental schools" in which the emphasis is placed on learning through actual doing and first hand observation rather than the acquisition of facts through studying them solely.

Progressive communities throughout the countries are dotted with such schools today, Chicago itself boasting one of them in its public school system this summer. Very timely indeed, in view of the increasing interest in this type of learning, is Lucy Sprague Mitchell's "North America," a geography in which she attempts to do for the children the same thing that these new schools are specializing in, substituting for the local environment a more distant and expansive one.

In this new, fascinating kind of book, the author has utilized the dramatic in the geographical situation to introduce the theory of the development of that situation, thus capitalizing on the child's interest in something which is comprehensible to him before involving him in reasons and explanations which are but remotely within his field of experience.

Following the lines of the more recent Human Geographies, the relationship of man to his world is stressed, and the five major divisions of the book, under such headings as Roads, Houses, etc., are introduced by means of stories. Under the first division there is the extremely interesting story of "The Six Tugs of San Francisco Bay," telling of the docking of great ocean liner which has used the ocean road; there is the story of Speckle Fin of New York harbor and his battle with the current, and that of the three river captains, each claiming the supremacy of his own particular "road," the Hudson, the Mississippi, and the St. Lawrence.

Under Houses, there are the stories of Peggy's experience in the San Francisco earthquake, and that of a different kind of "house" in which was made the shiny new automobile which came to live in Queenie's barn when the old mare went to spend her last days in the country. There are stories of "The Tropical Forests," "The Nugget of Gold" and "Whiteface of the Great Plains," any one of which would convert the veriest dyed in the wool geography hater into a friend. All of these arouse curiosity in the subject of which they are concrete examples, and lead to a real interest in the material which follows, the "whys" and "wherefores" which otherwise appear so dry and inconsequential to the young reader of the nine to ten year group.

The book is most attractive with its lovely soft tone pictures by Kurt Wiese, and its meaningful charts and maps by the author. It merits the attention not only of school people but of all parents who are anxious for an all around development for their children. As for the young people themselves, the book, when put into their hands, will make its own way.

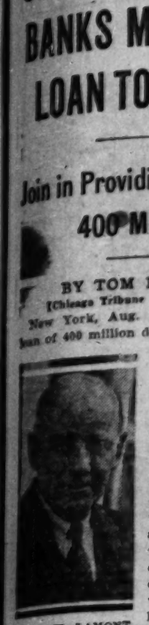
U. S. AND FRENCH BANKS MAKE BIG LOAN TO BRITAIN

Join in Providing Credit of 400 Million.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—A loan of 400 million dollars to the British government "to restore confidence and stabilize exchange and to be shared in equally by American and French banks" was arranged today after "[illegible] days of conferences by financiers of the two countries.



THOS. W. LAMONT.
[Acme photo.]

Atlantic telephones, radio, and cables were kept busy during the negotiations.

The following formal statement was issued early tonight by J. P. Morgan & Co.:

"We have arranged, in association with a group of American banks and banking houses, to extend a one year credit of 200 million dollars to the British government. We are informed by the British authorities that they are arranging in the French market for one year credits and loans in the aggregate amount of approximately 200 million."

Interest Rate Unknown.

The rate of interest to be charged was not officially disclosed here. There was no information forthcoming as to the fee that J. P. Morgan & Co. would collect for arranging the American credit.

It was announced in London, however, that the entire loan will bear interest of 4½ per cent. At this rate it would appear that the Morgan bank and affiliated institutions would reap interest to the extent of $9,000,000, provided all the American share of $200,000,000 is used.

In an informal discussion of the loan by Thomas W. Lamont and George Whitney, Morgan partner, later in the evening, it was said approximately 115 banks throughout the nation would participate, but that the public would not share in the financing.

During the discussion Mr. Lamont took occasion to deny that the credit had been extended on any terms other than for economic reforms or a reduction of the British dole. Asked if the credit would continue, if by any chance the present government should fail to put into effect its announced economies, the financier gave a roundabout reply.

No Reforms Demanded.

Contrary to the London Herald, it was said, the bankers laid down no conditions regarding British government reforms. He said the bankers had entire confidence in the present government and its plans and that there was no "ifs and ands" 'or strings to the credit.

The American bankers remarked on the cordial spirit both here and in Paris in negotiating the loan and said they considered the attitude toward the credit and the ease with which it was arranged as remarkable.

It has not been a difficult loan at all, said Mr. Lamont, and we consider it an ample amount to restore confidence and stabilize the exchange. The credit, he said, was effective beginning today, and as for the interest rate, the Morgan company makes a practice of never discussing terms and confidential details.

Highest Sum Discussed.

The two financiers speaking for the Morgan firm explained that 400 millions of credit divided equally between French and American bankers was the highest sum discussed in spite of newspaper accounts of a 500 million loan. The British, it was said, did not aim as high as 400 million at first but that they later decided to take "one big bite and call it a day" rather than several smaller bites.

Paris Cordial Toward Loan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 28.—With record speed and a notable willingness, and absence of bargaining, an accord for a loan of credit to rescue British finances was consummated between the British treasury and a French banking group under the auspices of the French government and the Bank of France this afternoon.

The amount is $200,000,000, matching the sum being granted the British by the American banking group. It will partly take the form of credits and partly sale of British treasury bonds to the French public.

STIMSON BOARDS LINER FOR HOME TALKS OF TOUR

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Aug. 28. —(AP)—Henry L. Stimson, the American secretary of state, said today he and Mrs. Stimson boarded the Leviathan for home that the experience he gained in his negotiations in Europe would be invaluable to him in his official capacity.

"I'm going home in a spirit of great hopefulness," he said, "convinced that I am better equipped for the part which I must take. It has been my privilege to meet the foreign ministers of the great European countries and we have become personally acquainted. It is a great thing in the present state of politics. It is my belief these personal meetings must do an enormous amount of good and I believe in them thoroughly."

Arriving in Italy on July 7, Mr. Stimson was in Europe during a significant period in international affairs, which began with the announcement of the Hoover moratorium and ostensibly ended with the seven powers conference in London. Together with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who preceded him home, he was President Hoover's unofficial representative in far-reaching negotiations.

CHARGE SCHEME TO USE NEW LAW FOR PAVING RING

Union Prevailing Wage Stand Assailed.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Ten civic and commercial organizations met this noon with Director Cleaveland of the department of public works in an attempt to devise a plan to break the deadlock in highway construction due to controversies over the administration of the prevailing wage act passed by the last legislature.

H. H. CLEAVELAND. [Eckman Photo.]

The director told the group representatives that some union officials, by means of the new wage law, were trying to get control of road construction in Illinois, and that such control could be used to establish a state-wide paying ring, whereby approximatsly thirty contractors would receive $35,000,000 a year work from the state, now shared in open competition by more than 200 contractors.

At the conclusion of the meeting the associated representatives issued a joint statement, a warning that a substantial artificial boost to the scale paid on road building, such as advocated by union officials, would require an increase in the gasoline tax of 4 or 5 cents, or a proportionate curtailment in the state's highway program, to compensate for the additional cost in pavement construction.

Highway Construction Blocked.

R. G. Soderstrom, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, and nine other union men have filed a protest against the minimum wage set by the state in counties outside the metropolitan area. This has blocked the award of contracts for $7,000,000 worth of downstate construction scheduled for this fall.

In the metropolitan section, where the state followed the union scale in fixing the minimum wage, $3,000,000 worth of road work has been indefinitely delayed through a protest by ten downstate taxpayers that 97½ cents an hour is too high to pay for common labor in the metropolitan section when 35 cents is the rate paid outside of this area for the same work.

"Do you men think 97½ cents an hour is too high?" Director Cleaveland asked the Chicagoans.

"It's higher than the prevailing rate for similar work," responded a spokesman for the group, "and we'll have evidence to substantiate this when the arbitration board hears the Cook county case next week."

Organizations Represented.

At the meeting were representatives of the following organizations:

Illinois Agricultural association, Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards, Illinois Manufacturers association, Illinois Automotive Trade association, Chicago Association of Commerce, Chicago Motor club, World's Fair transportation committee, Chicago Real estate board, and Cook County Real Estate board.

"None of us," reads the formal statement, "would advocate an unduly low scale of wages but we are equally sure that none of us would favor adoption of arbitrary standards which would cause the public to get less for its dollar than would private consumers.

"Reports reach us that if certain standards which have been urged before this board as the basis for determining prevailing wages are adopted it will reduce by about forty per cent the amount of road construction now in contemplation by the state. This of course will greatly reduce the amount of employment at a time when employment is very necessary. The alternative would be an increase in revenues, which in this case would be derived presumably from an increase in the gasoline tax."

Asks Withdrawal of Protests.

The wage appeal board was in session today and heard a petition read by O. P. Westervelt, president of the Peoria Association of Commerce, urging that protests against wage rates on this falls' construction be withdrawn as an aid to the unemployment problem.

Most of the day was consumed by testimony from Clifford M. Hathaway, chief engineer of construction for the state highway department, on how the state obtained the figures it used as the prevailing wage in its advertisements for bids.

"We obtained reports from contractors on 174 projects employing 4,965 men engaged in road jobs in Illinois early this summer," said Mr. Hathaway.

Mr. Soderstrom objected to this method, pointing out that the law required the scale to be that of rates paid for work of a similar character.

"We will show," replied Mr. Cleaveland, "that the contracts, without the influence of any law, were paying the rates prevailing in the vicinity of their projects."

Start in 10 Days

Detailed drawings of Chicago's new $21,000,000 postoffice were made public yesterday by the architects, Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, along with the announcement that construction will be started within ten days. The only formality remaining is the acceptance by treasury officials at Washington of the bond which the contractors, John Griffiths & Son, forwarded to them Thursday.

The building, the most expensive government structure ever erected outside of the District of Columbia and the largest postoffice in the world, will have an airplane landing field on its roof. Small shuttle planes will take off from a space 790 by 270 feet, to carry air mail to and from the municipal airport.

A lobby 840 feet long will extend across the Van Buren street front of the building. It will be 40 feet wide and 38 feet high, and will be joined by a second lobby, 250 feet long, running back at right angles through the building. Stamp and delivery windows will be located along this second lobby.

Boy Violinist Held to Grand Jury as Robber

Eugene D. Halvorsen, 17 years old, 3016 Edgewood avenue, was held to the grand jury by Judge J. William Brooks in Boys' court yesterday on a charge of robbery. Bail was fixed at $10,000. Halvorsen, known in his own neighborhood as an accomplished violinist and a model boy, was arrested on a charge of robbing the De Prato music shop, 218 South Wabash avenue, on April 21.

FIND NO MOTIVE IN SHOOTING OF DOCTOR IN AUTO

Investigation of the shooting early yesterday morning of Dr. Harry L. Schultz of Elmhurst disclosed no motive and Allen Meyers, investigator for State's Attorney Chauncey Reed of Dupage county and Acting Sheriff Arthur Bennett said they were convinced he was mistaken for some hoodlum or gangster. Dr. Schultz, who is a prominent physician in Elmhurst and is connected with the National Motorists' association, received a blast from a shotgun in the left side of his face as he was driving home in his automobile.

It was learned he had been attending a patient in St. Anthony de Padua hospital Thursday evening and had stopped on his way home to talk with Joseph Krupicka, a druggist at 6500 West 22d street, Berwyn. He was waylaid and shot a few minutes after leaving Krupicka.

Dr. Schultz's wife said she never heard of her husband having any trouble excepting several years ago with another doctor. Krupicka said he knew of the trouble between the doctors and declared it was more recently, but didn't believe the shooting of Dr. Schultz was the result of it.

At the Elmhurst hospital it was said Dr. Schultz is in a critical condition and may die.

ROOSEVELT ASKS 20 MILLIONS TO AID UNEMPLOYED

Would Boost Income Tax by 50 Per Cent.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, in a message delivered to the two houses of the legislature in joint session today, called for the appropriation of $20,000,000 to finance unemployment relief during the coming winter.

This program—the most drastic ever devised in this state to alleviate want and suffering—would have its way paid by increased income taxes. A bill which the governor's spokesmen will present imposes an additional levy of 50 per cent on all brackets.

Under this plan, in other words, the man or woman who is liable for a tax of $10 under the present statute would pay $5 more. The levy strikes all classes and the small earner pays his share proportionally with the large earner and wealthy individual.

Offers Alternative Plans.

The governor offered the legislature two alternative bills for raising the income tax. Both increased the levy at the same rate. The first, however, imposed the tax on incomes for the year 1930 on the basis of returns already filed. Under this the tax commission merely would send out additional bills for tax on the the basis of returns already filed.

The second would impose the additional levy on incomes for 1931, which would be collected next April. This bill provides that to make money immediately available, the state controller would be authorized to sell temporary securities at once, payable out of taxes when collected.

Places Responsibility on State.

To the politically minded who have been speculating on what program the governor might have to offer as a solution of the depression problem, in the event of his nomination for the presidency, one of the most significant parts of his pronouncement was the declaration that the responsibility for relief rests with the state as it is "idle to speculate upon what action may be taken by the federal government just as it is idle for the purposes for which we are gathered here to speculate upon the cause of the national depression."

The governor in the course of a supplementary address in the crowded assembly chamber, told his listeners that the state was undergoing the most grave crisis it had known.

The Roosevelt plan provides specifically that there must be no dole.

It sets up a temporary emergency relief administration to consist of three members appointed by the governor to serve without pay, but to be allowed traveling and necessary expenses. If the plan is adopted a woman will be one of the three members.

The commission is to expend such part of the $20,000,000 as can be used to employ persons on state public works during the coming months. The balance is to be apportioned between the various counties and cities of the state in amounts discretionary with the commission, but in such proportion as will yield the greatest benefit to the unemployed.

Apportionment will also be made in such proportion as will encourage local effort by local municipalities which exert themselves to raise money for unemployment.

Wherever possible work useful to the public is to be provided and paid for out of the fund apportioned.

SAY ROOSEVELT MAY WIN NOMINATION ON FIRST BALLOT CAST

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—As the result of a canvass made by workers in the field and by correspondence with party leaders throughout the country, friends of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt have become convinced that he has a reasonable chance of getting the nomination for President on the first ballot at the next Democratic national convention.

A survey covering all the states indicates that, unless conditions change greatly, Gov. Roosevelt is likely to go into the convention with a total first ballot strength of 806, which is 72 more than the 734, or two-thirds, necessary to nominate. A table of Gov. Roosevelt's expected strength shows that 54 delegates are conceded to probable candidates other than Gov. Roosevelt and that 240 deegates, many of whom are expected to be for the governor, are classed as doubtful.

The survey indicates the almost complete disappearance of the movement to block the Roosevelt nomination by creating "favorite son" candidates for the purpose of creating a deadlock.

State Will Keep Hands Off in North Shore Park Fight

James P. Ward, president of a typewriter company, will hold on to a job he does not want, and Thomas F. Myers Jr., a Rogers Park neighborhood newspaper publisher, will continue his fight for the same job. That appeared to be the situation yesterday concerning a North Shore park commissionership which pays no salary. For four months there has been considerable stir in Rogers Park over the membership of the park board.

The North Shore park district is bounded by the lake, Devon avenue, the North Western railway tracks and the north city limits, except that, a small strip of Evanston just north of Howard street, between the elevated and the North Western tracks is included in the district.

No Evidence of Crime.

Assistant State's Attorneys Charles Bellows and Charles Lounsbury announced last evening that they had about completed their investigation of the election of North Shore park commissioners on April 7 and they have found no evidence of conspiracy or other criminal offense on the part of Ward and the other park commissioners, who are keeping Myers out of office. The prosecutors said that the issue is one for the civil courts and not the criminal courts as Myers and his friends tried to make them believe.

Ward was not a candidate for reelection in April, desiring to retire from the job.

Commissioner Frederick H. Chethlin also decided he had given enough of his time to the park job, and failed to become a candidate for reelection.

Two Seek Seats.

Patarick C. Winn, former school janitor who became wealthy through real estate investments, was a candidate with Myers for the two park seats, and he joined Myers in the subsequent fight for control of the park board. Winn has died since the election, and no one is now competing for Chetlain's seat.

Under the law, a sitting commissioner cannot withdraw from his office until his successor is duly elected and qualified. The election of Myers and Winn was considered illegal, so Ward and Chetlain say they feel it is their duty to hang on to their payless jobs.

The election of Myers and Winn was pronounced illegal because they failed to heed the advice of Maurice T. Weinshenk, attorney for the district. Weinshenk said he told all candidates to file the election petitions with the Chicago election board and also with the county clerk, because the district includes the one Evanston precinct which has only eight voters.

Decide to Fight for Jobs.

Because of the failure of the candidates to so file the voters in the Evanston precinct were disfranchised and Myers and Winn were denied seats. The two then announced that they had received the votes and they were going to fight. First they demanded election certificates from County Judge Jarecki or County Clerk Sweitzer. Both these officials refused.

Myers then swore in Winn as park commissioner and Winn swore in Myers. They filed printed oaths of office, which the park board refused to recognize. Their demands to be seated caused a disturbance which broke up a meeting of the board on May 16.

Winn and Myers then started mandamus proceedings before Judge George Fred Rush. They later withdrew this action.

Charge Effort at Violence.

The next move, it is charged by the Ward faction, was an effort at violence. A meeting of the board at 1111 Farwell avenue was packed with Myers-Winn friends, it is charged, and when Ward, who was president of the board, called the meeting to order threats were made to throw him out. The police ended that meeting.

The board then employed Attorney Floyd Thompson, former Supreme court justice, to bring about a settlement of the dispute, and he obtained an injunction against Winn and Myers and their friends and agents from interferring with the board. The injunction suit is now on appeal in the Appellate court.

Myers, it is charged, has carried on constant campaign through his neighborhood newspapers against Ward. Harold E. Leopold, vice president of the board, says that the campaign of Myers has hurt the credit of the park district in the sale of its bonds and tax anticipation warrants.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE BIGGEST ELECTION BET EVER MADE.

Report of the sanctioning by the President of a $400,000,000 credit to support British finances comes from London. From New York we hear of arrangements for a loan of from $390,000,000 to $500,000,000 by American and French banks to that end. What the facts are may presently appear, but in the meantime the pride we might normally feel in such a demonstration of America's financial strength or any altruistic emotion that might be stirred by such substantial aid to a friendly power will be a bit chilled by our observation of the British political crisis. We cannot quite ignore the fact that the news of this huge assistance was not so reassuring in London that the stock exchange failed to rise to it and "even gilt edge securities" fell ½ to 1 per cent. The explanation offered is that the financial mood is too much concerned over the Labor party's "declaration of war" on the new government, and we in America may reasonably share that anxiety if we are to embark so large a sum as report indicates on such stormy waters.

We are betting, in fact, a third or a half of a billion dollars on the turn of British politics, on the outcome of one of the most serious political crises in British history. This crisis may not be decided at once, but if the purpose of the Labor party leaders who have repudiated MacDonald, Snowden, and Thomas is given sufficient support by the rank and file of British labor, with the possible addition of the poorer middle class, there will rapidly develop a revolutionary situation, which if it should result in the establishment of a new Socialist government, with its policy of "thorough," we would better be resigned to kiss our money good-by.

Our confidence in British conservatism and self-control, as well as our normal optimism, will resist these fears, but we ought not to permit them to blind us to conditions obviously alarming the British themselves. They are not, as we have said, conditions which have sprung up overnight and will pass in another. The financial predicament, which threatens immediate consequences to the pound and hence to British credit throughout the world, may be escaped, but the underlying political, social, and economic conditions from which it has arisen are of long standing and cannot be corrected or much alleviated save by drastic changes in British policies, social habits and industrial and commercial organization and method. Even the accomplishment of a drastic reduction in public expenditures and exhausting taxation will not affirmatively assist these changes, though it may open the way for them. But the accomplishment or even the present attempt to meet the financial catastrophe impending has aroused and strengthened radical political forces which will endanger British responsibility for a long time, if they do not soon destroy it.

THE GRAND JURY REPORT.

The report of the special grand jury investigating the police department will be gratifying to its present administration, which undoubtedly has brought about a substantial improvement over its predecessor. It will also tend to hearten the community with hopes of better security, although the continuance of criminal violence will put considerable restraint upon our optimism. Whether the conclusions of the jury are as reliable as we would wish them to be must wait for time and events to disclose.

Meanwhile, the report is noteworthy for not shirking the major part played in our crime conditions by the prohibition experiment, which, as every independent student of crime conditions understands, is the chief source of the corruption that is the strength of organized criminality on the present scale. The jury has done an important public service in refusing to evade or underestimate this preponderant factor in our problem of crime control.

PUBLICITY AND MISGOVERNMENT.

Tammany's attempt to hobble the committee investigating New York City government may be highly expedient for that formidable organization, but it will intensify opposition in the Democratic party to any candidate with a Tammany backing in the national convention. What the specific effect of the row will be upon the fortunes of Gov. Roosevelt and upon the course of presidential politics generally remains to be seen, but to our mind the chief significance of the conflict at Albany is more lasting than that of the fate of any candidate or party prospect of success. The fundamental issue is the right of a self-governing community to know what is going on in its government and how its representatives are dealing with the trust confided to them. The allegations of Tammany spokesmen that the investigation is an effort to discredit it by innuendo and irresponsible accusation will not be taken seriously. Whenever an inquiry begins to approach disclosures dangerous to political power it is labeled scandalmongering and there is a heavy barrage of charges of insincerity and ulterior motive. That is an old story in every community that has tried to throw off corruption in public office. But if responsible citizenship in New York will keep up the fight, as that of Chicago has, it will defeat the most powerful and plausible misgovernment. Chicago is paying a heavy price for corruption and incompetence in the administration of its municipal affairs under a misrule which seemed too well entrenched to be conquered. But it has been conquered by courageous publicity.

THE CONGRESS STREET SMOKE SCREEN.

Now that the heated advocacy of the Congress street improvement has been exposed as a smoke screen to permit the governor and legislature to do nothing in the face of an emergency we can hope that the silly agitation will cease. It was time that public attention was called to underlying facts and motives. A director of the West Town Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Sol Westerfeld, took upon himself the thankless task of laying the situation bare. As Mr. Westerfeld said:

"Mr. Dixon might be speaking for Gov. Emmerson, who appointed him to the Lincoln park board. In advocating the widening of Congress street Mr. Dixon is giving the governor a pretense of an excuse for not starting work on the Austin-Kinzie project at once so as to furnish employment this winter to from 10,000 to 30,000 men. Mr. Dixon, Gov. Emmerson's appointee from the Gold Coast, is throwing up a smoke screen for the protection of the governor in evading his duty to the west side of Chicago."

This is not the opinion of one man or one organization. It was followed almost at once by a similar declaration on the part of the West Side Commercial league. The excuse for inaction is not even plausible; there is now no slightest reason to believe that it will be accepted. Certainly the business organizations of the west side do not intend, as their statements clearly indicate, to let the matter rest. There will be an informed opinion which will hold the governor responsible for inaction should the Austin-Kinzie project be allowed to lapse for lack of his support.

The smoke screen has been hoisted and the facts are almost too apparent to need repetition. The money paid by Chicago motorists as gasoline taxes is available in the state treasury. It can be had with the help of a special session of the legislature. The Austin-Kinzie elevated highway will cost less than the other, it can be started sooner, and, above all, it will give the motorists what they want, an uninterrupted passage at high speed through a congested city. It, and it alone, has approval of important and influential interests on the west side.

The smoke screen is not the only thing that can be hoisted, now that the facts are out. Refusal now to take up the Austin-Kinzie project can only be interpreted as a deliberate flouting of the public will and the public need, at the expense of 10,000 or more hungry men and their families.

JAKE KILRAIN.

To a good many persons who now have a thinning thatch and a few chalky joints and who were kids in the eighties something alive must have popped out of the buried past when Jake Kilrain reappeared in the sporting news to give his opinion of old fighters and new. Jake is a night watchman at Fore River Shipbuilding in Quincy, Mass., at seventy-two, but is young enough to think the new boys in the ring are as good as the old. Any man who keeps old man Time thus in his place will have a young head.

Kilrain was the giant killer who did not quite make good. The legend of John L. Sullivan's invincibility survived him and endured until the astonishing day when the mighty man was felled by young Corbett. There were citizens in a daze for a week after that, unable to believe it. Some of them never found life the same again. They became skeptical of everything. Nothing was durable. They became agnostics. When Sullivan was cut down by a young boxer all dependability disappeared.

As Kilrain said the other day, the battles of the century were not smoked up in the older days. The efforts of the promoters were not to assemble a crowd, but to get away from the police. The sport was a furtive one for fancy gentry. That's one reason why Jake Kilrain at seventy-two is in luck to have his health and a job. His great fight with Sullivan, however, seventy-five rounds under London prize ring rules, had enough advance printing to attract national attention and make an interesting psychological division in the populace.

People who were youngsters then may recall that romantic, wishful, sentimental illusion backed Kilrain and hoped he would win. The hard boiled realists were with the champ. Sullivan was the superman and Kilrain seemed to carry the colors of the average fellow hope challenging experience—and getting the worst of it. Sullivan was a tough fact until the perfect illusion triumphed when slim Jim Corbett, a dandy from the more urban precincts of life, stepped into the ring and proved that if there are giants there are also giant killers. The average fellow isn't a giant. He takes refuge in the myth of the terrible potency of aroused incompetence.

Editorial of the Day

SCHOOL VACATIONS.

[New York Times.]

The strongest criticism of the present vacation system is that it returns the children to school "exhausted in body, lowered in vitality and thoroughly unorganized socially, intellectually and to some extent morally." No one intends any such results, and the fact that they occur is due to the origin of the three months' vacation. It was a useful and necessary move when boys and girls helped at home with the rush of household chores and farm duties during planting and harvesting. To find comparable activity for city school children in the summer is not easy, but a workable substitute has been devised in Atlanta. The usual studies are dropped and all kinds of outdoor pursuits are followed. The summer courses are not compulsory, for some parents send their children to camp or want their company in travel. But the boys and girls who would play in the streets or in the confines of gravelly playgrounds are given supervision in their games and enough outdoor study to keep up the discipline of the regular term.

Young school children should follow a program during the summer which would give them the greatest freedom consistent with social behavior. There is no reason why older pupils should not progress in their studies of local geography, geology, botany, bird study, and any work better done in the field than in the classroom. Under the direction of capable leaders the vacation period could be made a time of healthful, not excessive, physical exercise, and delightful, stimulating mental interest.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

TIDINGS.

HEALD POND CAMP [by Courier to Jackman, Me.]—[Special.]—This little log cabin community was thrown into a high state of excitement today by a thrilling episode involving several well known Chicagoans.

Richard Henry Little, conductor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Line o' Type column, rescued from drowning Thomas Atkins, famous collaborator of Mr. Little's wife, Shelby, in her biography of George Washington.

Less than an hour before Mr. Little had returned from an exploration of the Bald mountain bear country, reporting the sight of no bears, but several deer and a porcupine, which, he averred, could not be induced to shoot its quills. He found Mrs. Little was out on the lake fly casting for trout with Mr. Atkins and a guide. Mr. Little summoned a guide and went trolling for salmon.

In the course of his trolling Mr. Little's canoe drew near to Mrs. Little's boat? Mr. Little was brandishing aloft an eighteen inch salmon he had just landed after a ten minute fight. He was exceedingly happy. In fact, he was in a lyrical mood.

"Shelby," he exclaimed, "did you ever see a more beautiful spot? The tiny lake in a setting of pine trees with the mountain background—a perfect gem, a——"

What else it was went unrecorded, for at that moment Mr. Atkins dived overboard from Mrs. Little's boat and swam to Mr. Little's canoe. When he reached the canoe he seemed exhausted. The guide made an effort to rescue him, but failed. Mr. Atkins was going down for the third time when Mr. Little leaped overboard, brought him to the surface, and, swimming with one arm, brought him safely to Mrs. Little's boat.

Tonight Mr. Little is the hero of the camp. He has been showered with congratulations and praise of his prowess as a life saver. Boston papers have telegraphed for special dispatches. Mr. Little has denied himself to interviewers, modestly remarking that "it is nothing—only what any one would do."

Mr. Atkins tonight was reported completely recovered from his harrowing experience. He was fast asleep before a crackling log fire dreaming of the extra bone that was given him for his supper.

LINES TO A CARROT IN THE RAW.

Lies there upon the dinner plate,
Yon carrot in revealing state—
Peer closer and you will see
What gives biotic energy
To the poor man and the worker,
To the rich man and the shirker.

All its little yellow veins,
Full of dark potassium stains,
Leaping with ambition nice
To make a chemic sacrifice,
For you and me to be stronger,
Pretty, and to live much longer.

Here, friend, you take the carrot plate,
I'll eat pie and dissipate.

JON NAYLON.

SOMEWHERE WE READ THERE was to be a campaign against motorists driving within the city with dazzling headlights, and arrest slips for those whose lights violated good motor breeding. Wonder what's become of the campaign? Going from the office in the old bus last midnight we checked 100 cars passing in the opposition direction. Twenty-nine of this 100 had lights so bright as to blind one from seeing anything directly behind them until they had passed.

END TO UNEMPLOYMENT.

Harvey: A neighbor of mine says it's no wonder they can't get this unemployment thing straightened out. He says, "They're asking men to find jobs for other men. Now, what they ought to do is to get my wife to fix it up for them, because any time she can't find something for a man to do it ain't my wife." JIM CON.

NEWSPAPERS VS. RADIOS.

Harve: Some people think the radio eventually may supplant the newspapers. I can't subscribe to that. Just let those who think so try to wrap up their laundry in a radio program they have just listened to. F. P.

WORST JOKE I EVER HEARD.

Harve: A perplexed porter was explaining an unprecedented situation to the Pullman conductor. "But, captain, the berth laddah's missin'." "But who would want a Pullman ladder?" expostulated the conductor. "Ah dun know, but she's gone." At this juncture an upper berth passenger pulled apart the curtains and volunteered: "Here, porter, you cain use mine; I callate I won't need it till morning." STAN SPIELBERGER.

This Wake-Line Is Conducted By Harvey T. Woodruff. Help! Help!

SIR MONTAGU NORMAN, governor of the Bank of England, arrived in Canada for a "little rest and vacation." Shortly thereafter announcement was made by New York bankers of a $300,000,000 short term loan to England. Any one like to join us in an experimental "little rest and vacation"?

ONE WAY REDUCED RATES.

Wake-Line: At 46th and Broadway, the New York Chinatown bus barker was calling out his wares: "Chinatown, Chinatown, one dollar round trip, Chinatown." (Two very imperious Li Hung Changs calling strolling by.) "You boys wantta go home? Fifty cents one way, Chinatown——" JOHN CONNERY.

REFERRED TO COL. WINN.

Harve: They had an Illinois Owners' handicap at Hawthorne. Why not a Kosher handicap at Lincoln Fields? Here are the entries: Chazzan (a cantor); Bagiel (doughnut shaped roll); Trek (dirt); Tisybo (Jewish holiday); Garnish (nothing); Bubola (grandmother).

REMEMBER THOSE STORIES we read in our youth of the aristocratic ways and chivalry of wealthy southern planters. Now it seems that if one raises cotton it costs more to raise it than it will bring. Furthermore, Louisiana is planning a law to put you in jail and fine you if you raise cotton at all. Where are the "good old days"?

ACME OF EFFICIENCY.

ANXIETY.

THE great hunger of our times is for security. Of course, the great basic hunger, is for food, but as to that our time is in no sense peculiar. Hunger for food begins at the cradle and lasts until the grave. It began with life, has run down the ages, and will always be the greatest of all urges.

The hunger for opportunity to propagate is almost as much a part of nature. In plant life it begins as leafing ends, and is the urge that causes flowering and seeding. In animal life it begins in adolescence and runs for something over thirty years. During that period it ranks not far below food hunger.

Efforts to put alcohol hunger and other drug hungers in the class with these basic hungers are futile, since they are artificially created, and the arguing which attempts to make them otherwise is childish.

The hunger for security has a social and not a natural basis, but of the hungers on its basis none is more deeply rooted. Inability to satisfy that hunger begets anxiety. There are more people who are suffering from anxiety because their hunger for security is not satisfied than there are who are faint because of insufficiency of food. We are in need of food in spots in society, and here and there the need is met by bread lines. Nobody has devised a bread line for those who hunger for security.

Anxiety is a disease, in a certain sense. It is a mild form of the great root-stock disease—fear. As a rule, anxiety is a chronic disease. With organic functions and diseases it occupies a reciprocal arrangement. There are many organic causes of anxiety and, on the other hand, anxiety can engender a considerable list of organic effects. Poor digestion can cause anxiety, and anxiety can cause poor digestion. It does not follow that anxiety is to be thought of as physical. It is an emotional disorder. Fear is one of the fundamental urges. It begins very soon after the beginnings of hunger. It differs from hunger in that the food urge is active from the beginning while fear tends to remain latent. In fact, nature supplies the foundation and nothing more. It is education through the experiences of life that build the superstructure of fear. Security and the anxiety which grows up by its side are artificials developed by this education.

Whatever the explanation of its origins may be, the fact is that the great yearning for security is here. The anxiety which unsatisfactory security begets is a widespread emotional disease. A proper regard for human welfare and social and individual demands should be given it.

SEVEN YEAR ITCH.

M. G. writes: There seems to be an epidemic of an itch, scabies, which is contagious and seems to have started from the beaches.

1. How long does it last?
2. What disinfectant would prevent its spreading?

I far have tried several ointments and have been to several doctors.

REPLY.

There are many itching diseases and several that are caught. Scabies, or prairie itch, or seven year itch, is the most prevalent and the most important of those which we share with our loving friends. The answers given apply to scabies.

1. The name, seven year itch, implies that it may abide with thee.
2. Sulphur is the best agent to destroy the itch parasite. It must be used thoroughly and properly. There are different kinds of sulphur ointments. The best against itch are the searching kinds. Since the parasite gets into clothes and towels, these must receive attention. Heat will kill the parasites in clothes and towels.

ANGINA PECTORIS.

F. G. M. writes: Please describe angina pectoris and how to live to either cure or check it. Is there a difference between angina and pseudo-angina?

REPLY.

Angina pectoris is a neuralgia of the heart. The outstanding symptoms are pain and apprehension of impending disaster. The pain ranges from a feeling of weight or constriction to most violent pain. The pain or oppression is generally felt behind the breast bone. It is likely to shoot down the arm. It is caused by disease of the coronary artery, or first part of the aorta. Somewhat related conditions are angina due to exertion and coronary thrombosis. A diagnosis between these and angina pectoris can be made by taking the pulse and the blood pressure, making a cardiogram, and studying the history.

False angina is an entirely different matter. It is a rheumatism or neuralgia of the chest wall.

IT MIGHT BE HARMFUL.

Mrs. S. R. writes: Is half a teaspoon of bicarbonate of soda after dinner in a half glass of water harmful?

REPLY.

I think it would be.

LIABLE TO CIVIL SUIT.

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please tell me what the legal side is to "kiting" a check. A has not sufficient funds in the bank to put through a deal and asks B to "kite" a check. A cannot pay as he planned and B is left with worthless (temporarily) check. 1. Is A liable to suit? 2. Is B liable for anything but loss of money? 3. Is "kiting" a check illegal or irregular? H. A.

1. Of course, he is liable to civil suit.
2. Not on the bare facts stated.
3. Depends on who is deceived by it and upon the surrounding circumstances.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

COMPLAINTS INVITED.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—[Friend of the People.]—There is a fire plug on the northeast corner of Maypole and Western avenues that has been running pretty fast since July 16th. It is broken so that it can't be turned off and is causing considerable damage around this corner. It caused my basement to be flooded and lowers the water pressure in our apartments. H. C.

Immediately upon receipt of this communication an order was issued for the repairs of the hydrant referred to. There are 38,000 hydrants in the city of Chicago and each is inspected twice a year. During the six months' interval between inspections there is no other way of learning of broken or open hydrants and leaks in mains than through information furnished by citizens. The department of public works takes this occasion to thank the correspondent for calling attention to the matter.

A. A. SPRAGUE,
Commissioner of Public Works.

AN EVEN CHANCE.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A, a dairy farmer, removes B at the age of 13 out of an orphanage. A employs B as a farmhand and does not send B to school. At the age of 21 B received a sum of $300, his pay for eight years' work. At that time B had no place to go and kept working for A without wages, but the understanding was that B was to inherit later on. Five years after B reached the age of 21 the wife of A died, and on account of there being no children A took in his relatives, who exerted their influence, so A discharged B. 1. Can B sue A for back wages? 2. Can he sue A for depriving him of an education? B. W.

1. His chances would seem good enough to warrant the attempt.
2. No.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 29, 1915.

CHICAGO.—Four days have passed since the Rev. Edmund A. H. Kayser was found slain near his parsonage in Tolleston, a suburb of Gary. The police are no nearer a solution of the mystery, no nearer the capture of the murderer, than they were fifteen minutes after the German pastor's body was discovered by his parishioners. Theories are keeping the police busy and even these have been eliminated by Chief Pontius Heintz until only the war motive theory remains. A woman angle was fathomed and disproved.

LONDON.—The Germanic allies are continuing their efforts to smash completely the Russian army. While the Germans in the Baltic provinces under Field Marshal von Hindenburg are attempting to drive the Russians back to Dvina, the Austro-Hungarians, with the assistance of the Germans, have succeeded in breaking through the Russian positions on the Zlota Lipa river north and south of Brzezany, in southeastern Galicia.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y.—Former President Theodore Roosevelt issued another statement in reply to Secretary of War Garrison in the controversy brought about by Mr. Roosevelt's Plattsburg speech. Col. Roosevelt called attention to what he called the unpreparedness of our fleet, saying: "I point out to Mr. Garrison that for nearly two years in 1913 and 1914 the ships of the navy were never exercised in fleet maneuvering, and, as I am reliably informed, were never exercised in fleet or squadron gunnery. A moderately intelligent child of 6 knows that the failure for two years to undertake such maneuvers means a literally criminal deterioration in the fleet and cannot possibly mean anything else."

CONSTANTINOPLE.—Two British regiments were cut to pieces, leaving 3,000 dead on the field, in an attack by the allies in the Suvla bay region at the Dardanelles, it was officially announced. The Turks took much booty.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 29, 1901.

CHICAGO.—Defiant and seeking to free himself from all blame, Luke P. Colleran, chief of detectives, became officially a figure in the detective bureau scandal. Thumping the chair with his fists, swinging his arms, and asserting his pride in his administration of this scandal-ridden department, he gave testimony before the civil service commission, the last witness in the trial of Lieut. Peter J. Joyce. Colleran denied all knowledge of the bogus expense bill. He hotly repudiated the charge that $10 of the "rake-off" had gone into his pocket. He resorted to every method in his efforts to shift the wrongdoing to the shoulders of others.

PHILADELPHIA.—Eleven persons dead, four missing, and twenty-three injured, many probably fatally, are the results of a boiler explosion on the steamer City of Trenton. The ship was on its way from Philadelphia to Trenton when the explosion occurred. Passengers and members of the crew were hurled across the deck by the explosion. Many were scalded by steam and boiling water and others burned by the subsequent fire.

CHICAGO.—"This court will listen to arguments in the Allis-Chalmers company's injunction case on Sept. 16. Until that time the temporary restraining order will stand." With this announcement Judge Kohlsaat postponed the hearing of the arguments on the injunction restraining the striking machinists, molders, and patternmakers from acts of intimidation or threats intended as a menace to the safety of the nonunion workmen employed in the plants of the company.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 29, 1881.

WASHINGTON.—The condition of President Garfield is more hopeful. No unfavorable symptoms have appeared during the day. The fever and respiration are both higher than was expected, but in other respects the situation seems more favorable. Thus despair has again given place to hope, for yesterday there were few in Washington who expected that the President would live forty-eight hours. The general feeling now is that another crisis has been passed safely.

NEW YORK.—Vice President Arthur has been at his home all day and maintains the strictest seclusion. At his house the visit of Postmaster General James was strenuously denied at first, but was finally admitted. One man, who claims the confidence of the leaders, says that Mr. James came here instructed by the cabinet to ask Vice President Arthur to go on to Washington and assume the duties of the presidential office during President Garfield's disability, but the accuracy of this statement is not vouched for.

TOMBSTONE, Ariz.—Indians attacked the town of Eureka, N. M., two days ago and killed all the citizens, said to have been about seventy in number.

PARIS.—Gambetta was enthusiastically welcomed at a popular meeting held here to listen to a lecture on educational matters by Paul Bert.

RAILROAD WAGES.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—The attitude of the Chicago Association of Commerce in suggesting a reduction of wages of railroad employés is, to say the least, deplorable. They say the present level of railroad wages is above the war level, but that is no proof that they should be reduced.

Reviewing the wages paid by the city of Chicago to its employés, currently, it is difficult to find any wages as low as those of railroad employés, except in the street department. The average wages of railroad employés is $1,735 per annum or $5.56 per day, using 312 days as divisor. The street department of Chicago pays $5.50 per day for laborers without uniforms and $5.60 per day for laborers with uniforms. Truck drivers get $7, $7.50 and $8 per day. These are the most unskilled of the city's employés. Bear in mind also that the street sweeper's task is receiving, progressively, all the advantages of an automobile age when compared with the old days of horse drawn vehicles.

There are no wages paid in the railroad service which are relatively as high as those paid by the Chicago school board to its civil service employés, janitors, caretakers, etc. Throughout the city's budget the range of compensation is far above that of comparable occupations in railroad service.

The Chicago Association of Commerce seems to overlook the fact that there are 100,000 or more railroad employés serving the Chicago area, who are paying taxes to support this aristocracy of labor which absorbs the taxpayers' money.

J. E. BARRY, Secretary-Treasurer,
Ravenswood Lodge, No. 863, Brotherhood of Railway Clerks.

AT COMISKEY PARK.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Last Sunday I attended the White Sox-Yankee ball game at Comiskey park. I found only box seats left (so said the ticket seller), so bought two, paying $1.50 apiece. When ushered to our seats I discovered they were only 75 cent seats, so went back to the window and complained. I was told, "Sure they are 75 cent seats. You would have to pay $5 to a scalper. Do you blame us for charging more to a crowd like this?" Yes, I do blame them! I have gone to games there when not more than 10,000 attended, but was never offered a $1 seat for 50 cents because the teams were not outstanding. If we only went when Babe Ruth or some noted player was scheduled how long would the park last? Because a popular team is playing should we be penalized?

Well, they took me this once, but never again. A ONCE SOX FAN.

CULTIVATING PUBLIC TASTE.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Allow me to congratulate the management on the splendid description of the Arts building project in Jackson park. I know that it takes courage and public spirit to put this kind of matter on the first column of the front page; but I believe that the result in cultivating public taste will more than justify the experiment.

I am glad to see THE TRIBUNE accept the responsibility of great newspapers for molding as far as possible, instead of merely following, the public demand.

HENRY R. CORBETT.

THE NEW HATS.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Now that the new style hats are here [I sincerely hope not to stay], I suggest that they give riding habits and horses with every hat sold, because I really and truly think this is the most absurd style I've ever seen and the girls go "ga-ga" over them.

I have a round face [not fat], and I certainly look like a full moon in these hats. A. W.

A SUPERHIGHWAY.

Saginaw, Mich., Aug. 23.—I wish to congratulate you on the efforts you are making in getting the west side a superhighway. There should be an outlet for the west side, especially with the World's Fair coming in 1933. And now is the time to do it when people want work and are starving. C. H. KRETSCHMER.

UNCLE SAM'S DERANGEMENT.

Elmwood Park, Ill., Aug. 24.—Uncle Sam has gone nuts! He has a dual personality. On one hand we see him as a nursemaid who comes into the kitchen and tells us what to eat and drink. We wouldn't be surprised to see him in some back yard hanging up the baby's diapers. He pulls out certain weeds, buys up the surplus wheat crop, sends free seeds to the farmers and builds water works for certain enterprising cities. He acts as a nursemaid for the entire world. He sends warships for the relief of China, cancels half of the war debts, sends hundreds of millions of dollars to save Germany, England, etc., etc., and is ready to send more. It almost seems the federal reserve system was made for the sperial benefit of Europe.

On the other hand, Uncle Sam's a miser—Uncle Shylock to his own people. His federal reserve system can afford to send hundreds of millions of dollars to Europe but not a red cent for the relief of the sixty closed banks in Cook county. He must save a Chink, but a Chicagoan can go to hell. What if an American is out of work? What if he will lose his home? What if he does starve? What if he did lose the money he put away for a rainy day? Who cares as long as a Zulu islander is cured of the mumps by Nursemaid Uncle Sham?

Get a straitjacket, somebody! Uncle Sam's gone nuts!

JOHN FISHER.

FROM CONGRESSMAN SABATH.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—I have for many years pointed out that the reports of the prohibitionists and the restriction in charging all the crimes to the foreign born were neither justified nor warranted. Therefore I am pleased that the last Wickersham report, prepared under the direction of Dr. Abbott of the University of Chicago, clearly substantiates my position that the crime committed by the foreign born is much smaller in proportion to the population than that of the natives.

It is not that I have any desire to protect any alien criminals, as I have always advocated the strongest deportation measures for all those guilty of real crime, but deplore the deportation of those who merely, through no fault of their own, sometimes become so-called public charges and that only for a short space of time. I appreciate greatly that your paper is giving publicity to this report and thereby doing justice to the many foreign born in the United States who are loyal, law abiding citizens. I know that the same will also be appreciated by the hundreds of thousands of people who frequently have been justifiably attacked for the misdeeds of a few of their countrymen.

A. J. SABATH, M. C.

FARM RELIEF.

Dubuque, Ia., Aug. 23.—Chicago wants $3,000,000 and Detroit wants $10,000,000 for poor relief this winter. May I interrupt to ask what are the farmers going to do to give assistance to the suffering of the poor this winter? Mr. Farmer should lend his hand and from no quarter of this blessed land do I hear of any plan by farmers to help the unfortunate poor when the blasts of winter appear. I'd like to know.

PAUL NEVEIS.

THE PRICE OF MILK.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Perhaps some one can tell me why the milk distributors in Chicago are justified in charging the general public 13 cents per quart for milk when they are paying only 90 cents per hundred pounds or less for milk to the producers and shippers? T. J. S.

ROUTE MARKERS.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—What do these expensive road signs mean? You ride along and see "Route PG," "Junction with Route BI," etc. These signs are made of heavy metal and must have cost the taxpayers considerable money. Who is responsible for them? I have asked as many as fifty people what the signs mean and no one knows. What is the idea? E. KENNEDY.

Playing With Fire

By WILLIAM MAC LEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS.

Lee Sorocide is the owner of a ranch which drought has almost ruined and starved to ruin. Several friends from the east come as paying guests. Lee quarrels with her foreman, Ranse Brennan, partly on account of a new hand named Smith she hired without his permission and partly because she rejects his love suit. Brennan is discharged and swears revenge. Dunc Daggett, an old ranch helper, recognizes Smith as Jack Hadley, who killed a nearby miner and was murdered by outlaws. Hadley tells Daggett he is searching for the murderer of his father. Lee leases a Mexican ranch and starts the herd southward. Mrs. Doris Silver, a flirtatious friend of Lee's, goes with them to the Mexican rancho. Brennan drops in on her just before Jack Hadley, who has been sent on by Lee, arrives. Hadley drives to Palo Duro for supplies and takes Doris with him. Doris wanders off and is abducted, and Hadley has to fight several times to rescue her. To save himself and Lee from trouble with the government, Hadley starts taking Doris, to cross the border.

INSTALLMENT XII.

LOCKED IN.

"Where are we?" Doris asked drowsily as Hadley gently removed his supporting shoulder.

"Don't know. We've got off the road. I'm going to find out."

He left her in the car and moved toward the house, making sure that his weapon hung easily in its scabbard.

Some one flung the door open and called a question. "Who's there? Don't come any nearer."

The man was an American. He carried a rifle.

Hadley explained that they had lost their way. There was a lady with him in the car, he said.

The story passed muster. As Hadley came forward the man apologized.

"Have to be careful these days. We won't be so popular now this darn revolution's started."

"Has it started?"

"Went off with a bang yesterday. Met a fellow down from Nogales. The rebels have taken the city and that whole section. They're going strong west of Palo Duro too. I left there after dark."

"We're headed north," explained Jack. "How about getting across the border?"

"Couldn't possibly be done. It's closed. They're not letting any Americans through. So I hear."

Doris emerged out of the shadowy moonlight to stand beside Hadley. The other stared at her. In the silvery atmosphere her blonde beauty was startling. It seemed too amazing to be a reality.

"Like I said, the border's closed tight as a drum. Several Americans have been arrested and flung into jail. Barela is mighty particular about what news gets to the U. S. these first days."

"Who is Barela?" asked Doris.

"He's the high mogul among the rebels in this part of the country."

"What about this Megares? He's in it, isn't he?" Jack queried.

"Up to his neck. But Megares is an outlaw. You know how it is. He's a following, and a lot of the peons are for him. But he has no standing. In some at the head of the revolution would queer it with lots of respectable people and maybe with our government. So he'll stay in the background a while and let Gomez and Barela and the others take the limelight."

Doris slipped her arm under that of her companion.

"What'll we do?" she asked.

"Can't tell yet. But don't worry. It'll work out." Hadley turned to

We had a visitor last night.

Jack. "While you were at Palo Duro did you hear anything about a row today between an American and a bunch of Mexicans?"

"Did I? I'll say I did. The town was buzzing with it. I don't know who the guy was, but he sent about four greasers to the hospital. He was crazy with tequila, I guess."

"He wasn't, either," Doris denied indignantly.

The man looked at her in surprise. "Maybe not. I'm telling it the way I heard the story."

"Mr. Smith here was the man. They tried to abduct me and he rescued me. He wasn't to blame at all."

"I see."

"What I wanted to ask you was whether you know what the authorities are doing about it," Hadley went on.

The bearded man shook his head. "No, I don't. I expect maybe your case has got lost in the discard when the rebellion broke later. I expect the cities will have their hands full for quite some time."

Hadley had been thinking the same thing himself.

"Much obliged for what you've told us," he said. "We'll move along."

"Where are you going now?" Doris asked, as Jack started the car.

"Back to the rancho Costillo. Since the revolution has started we're in an entirely different situation. Nobody will bother much about us. We're too small fry."

"I wish we could have got out," she said.

"Yes."

Absently he agreed with her. But the warm little glow inside was contradicting the assent. He was glad the border had been closed. He was glad circumstances were driving him back to the rancho, to whatever adventure might be waiting there for him and for the girl who had driven her cattle across the thirsty desert with such pluck and competence.

Dunc Daggett met his boss about three miles from the ranch. She had been riding out to meet the herd and he in from it to report progress.

"Miss Lee, there's a bunch of about twenty-five hundred whitefaces in the Lazy R brand headin' thisaway, maybe ten-twelve miles back."

"How do they look?"

"Fine as the wheat, some gaunted yet but give 'em time an' they'll be as fat as split milk . . . We had a visitor last night."

"Who?"

"Mr. Ranse Brennan."

"What did he want?"

"I'd like to know. By Jacks, it kinda give me a turn to see him. What's he hangin' down here for?"

"What can he do? Do you think he's in with this plotting crowd?"

"I dunno." The old man's unshaven jaw fell. He sat there staring at her. "Dog my cats! D'you reckon that flopeared hound has been in with us all the time, that he was in cahoots with him to rustle Lazy R stock while he was yore foreman?"

"Don't let's be too suspicious, Dunc. Ranse worked for the Lazy R more than fifteen years. Just because he got to feeling his oats we don't want to think he is a dirty thief."

"Reckon you're right," the old man assented reluctantly.

She told him of what had taken place at Palo Duro.

Daggett slapped his thigh with a widebrimmed dusty hat. "Fought greasers. Wow! Doggone it, Jack Hadley will sure do to ride the river with, that boy."

Hadley said he thought there weren't more than seven or eight. It might have been eleven."

"Smith I meant, Miss Lee, not Hadley."

"Why not Hadley? That's his name. He told me so."

"Did he? Well, I'm right glad he did. It's no name to be ashamed of. Not reasons why he ain't using it just now."

"He said you'd tell me what his reasons are. He hadn't time himself."

Daggett told her the story of his friend's death and what the son had heard from a dying man after twenty years.

"I knew all the time he wasn't just a cowpuncher," she said. "Any one could tell that by looking at him . . . What's that dust over there? Is that a car coming?"

Her eyes watched the approaching car. It was in the valley below them, a mile and more distant. "Did he find out who the man is, the one working on a ranch near Spring River who was implicated in the murder of your father?"

"Not yet, Miss Lee. But he's done made a guess."

"Yes?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Why? Has he any evidence?"

"I dunno as he has. Onct in a while a fellow feels a thing in his bones."

"You don't think he has any silly idea of personal vengeance, do you?" I think I'd hate to be that man. Jack will hang on to his trail like a nigger's heel."

"I hope he never finds him," she said fervently.

"He'll find him. Don't make any mistake about him, Miss Lee."

Looking at the car, Lee gave a little exclamation of surprise. "It's Jack!"

She was right. The car presently drew up beside them. Jack grinned down at his boss.

"They've turned the key in the door that leads to the U. S. We're free, I hope, with you. The revolution has started."

"I'm sorry you didn't get through," Lee said.

It was not true in a way. In another way it wasn't true at all. He had come back to her. The joy of it warmed her slender body.

"One good thing is that everybody will be too busy to pay any attention to little party a Palo Duro yesterday."

"I hope so . . . You must be all tired out, Doris."

The young woman in the car nodded. "Just a bit. A bed and a bath will be wonders for me. It was rather a lark, though."

Good Morning!

Louise Dresser and Lionel Barrymore are two of a kind. They steal pictures from stars. Who stole Norma Shearer's thunder in "A Free Soul"? Lionel. Who, in "Caught," is making Richard Arlen be a nice doggie and go lie down in his corner? Louise!

Well, more power to the two of them!

Without Miss Dresser "Caught" would be "just another western." Her portrayal of Calamity Jane, queen of cattle thieves, and the hardest huzzy the old west knew, lifts the film from the slough of mediocrity and makes it worth your time and money.

Calamity Jane, a foreword tells you, was, two generations ago, a real character of the plains. This movie, you are informed, is founded on a legend of her life.

And then you see what supposedly happened when the young lieutenant assigned to arrest and bring to justice a gang of cattle thieves, one of whom is a murderer, laid his traps in Calamity Jane's saloon and dance hall, known as "The Bird Cage."

The story's outcome doesn't hold much surprise for the seasoned movie fan who, after the first reel or so, will have doped out the lieutenant's relationship to the lady he plans to jail. But the observer never loses interest in the yarn for the good reason that Miss Dresser does not permit him to do so. Great character actress!

Richard Arlen, Frances Dee, et al., acquit themselves commendably if conventionally. There's too much dialogue and not all of it's good. Direction, sets, scenery, photography, and sound pass muster.

It is the opinion of deponent that we should see Louise Dresser and Lionel Barrymore every chance we get, praying the while that, some time, we may find them pitted against each other in the same picture.

See you Monday.

Eleanor S. Hoyt Married to F. A. du Pont on Cape Cod

Marion, Mass., Aug. 28—[Special.]—Miss Eleanore Stone Hoyt and A. Felix du Pont, son of A. F. du Pont of Wilmington, Del., were married in the garden of The Anchorage, summer estate of Mrs. Katherine Stone Hoyt, the bride's mother, this afternoon.

The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. Walden Pell of Wilmington in the presence of more than 300 guests, social leaders from New York and Boston. The Hoyt estate is at Piney Point on Cape Cod. The young couple had planned a flying honeymoon; but the low banked clouds caused a last minute change of plans. That left behind the bride's amphibian plane, a gift on her 17th birthday two years ago from her father, Richard F. Hoyt of New York.

The wedding united the heir and heiress to about $110,000,000. The new Mrs. du Pont is the granddaughter of the late Galen L. Stone, Boston banker, and is said to be heiress to $50,000,000, with her husband the heir to $60,000,000.

Tokio Officials Welcome Lindy in 12 Hour Tour

Formal Functions Keep Flyers Busy.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Aug. 28.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was engaged in the principal functions pertaining to his four-day official welcome for practically twelve hours today in a torrid and excessively humid atmosphere which even the Japanese found trying, but which never wilted the colonel's cheerfulness nor his wife's interest.

Meanwhile steamship agents announced that Lindbergh had told them he intended to fly back to the United States, although he did not indicate the route to be taken.

"Why should we travel on steamers?" they quoted the flyer as saying when invited to use certain ships. "We have a good flying ship of our own and we certainly intend to use it."

Accompanied by Ambassador Forbes, Col. Lindbergh began a round of official calls, thanking the heads of government departments which had assisted his flight. The ministers of communication, war, navy, and foreign affairs were visited in turn, and then the premier and mayor of Tokio. These calls, though brief and formal, gave Lindbergh an opportunity to meet the principal figures in the government. He was accompanied to the war ministry by Col. McIlroy, military attaché, and to the navy office by Capt. Johnson and Commander Mellendy.

While Lindbergh was paying duty calls, his wife, with Mrs. Neville and Mrs. Mishi, wife of the foreign minister's secretary, went to an old teahouse overlooking the famous lotus pond, where they sat in a cool upper room enjoying one of the city's historic views. Afterward, they went to a print shop, where Mrs. Lindbergh bought several prints.

At noon the flying couple were reunited at the Imperial Aviation society, where they each received the society's white medal, the highest award it bestows for aerial accomplishment. The society gave a luncheon in their honor at which many notables were present.

In the afternoon Ambassador Forbes gave a reception at the Tokio club, attended by over 1,000 persons. Many British and other Europeans, as well as Americans, had returned from the mountains or the seashore to attend the function, which despite the intense heat was lively.

The full day culminated with a dinner given by the ministers of communications, war and navy at the Imperial hotel. The speeches were broadcast throughout Japan, those by Col. Lindbergh and other principals being relayed to the United States.

FRENCHMAN DRINKS TO JIMMY WALKER, WHO RETURNS TOAST

CANNES, France, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Cannes today paid homage to New York's dapper executive, Mayor James J. Walker.

"Hip, hip, hurray, Jimmy!" cried several thousand enthusiastic French citizens after he had deposited a wreath on the soldiers' memorial this afternoon.

"With French champagne I toast the greatest wet in America," said Deputy Mayor Picaud, after a solemn ceremony in a chamber of city hall gave place to a more informal meeting in the local mayor's office.

Seizing a champagne glass, Mayor Walker responded:

"If any proof is needed, I'll furnish it forthwith." Thereupon he put the glass to his lips.

To the music of the "Star Spangled Banner," Mayor Walker, preceded by two gendarmes in full dress uniform, carried a large wreath and deposited it at the soldiers' monument, while a crowd stood at attention until the anthem was finished. Then it broke into long cheers and spontaneous handclapping.

"Vive Jimmy!" the people shouted. Official posters were placarded throughout the city today announcing a municipal ball in Mayor Walker's honor tonight.

THE STAGE

"PEARLY GATES," described as a musical morality play, will begin an engagement at the Apollo theater next Monday night. It will be presented by a company of Negro singers which includes thirty principals and 100 choristers, under the direction of Prof. Frederick Hall of Clark university, Atlanta, Ga.

This production, which is composed of choral numbers, tableaux, and pantomimic episodes, is based upon the conceptions of heaven and hell in the minds of untutored southern Negroes. Its musical program contains 42 spirituals. It is an outgrowth of "Heaven Bound," the production of which in Atlanta under church auspices has attracted much attention as a manifestation of Negro folk drama.

They were divorced last August.

Prof. Compton Seeks Cosmic Ray Data at Mt. Evans, Col.

Prof. Arthur H. Compton of the University of Chicago, winner of a Nobel prize in 1927 for his researches in physics, headed a party of scientists who left Chicago yesterday for Mount Evans, Colo., to study the cosmic ray. A ton and a half of equipment, including an 1,800 pound lead sheath for the delicate electrometer which will be used in the work preceded them Monday.

Cosmic rays have been an object of intense interest by physicians for several years. They are the most penetrating variety known and because they are more intense in high altitudes and appear to come to the earth with equal force from all directions, they are believed to originate in interstellar space.

One of the larger questions which will have to be settled eventually regarding the rays, Dr. Compton said, is whether they are created by the disintegration of atoms, as most other types of rays are, or whether they result from the building up of simple elements into more complex atoms. If the latter is true, he said, it will upset the theory that the universe is "running down" through dissipation of its energy.

Bundesen Favors Health Tests for New Pupils

Physical examinations of the 100,000 children who will enter school for the first time next month were advocated yesterday by Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen. Correction of defects, the commissioner pointed out, would result in better school grades.

"Parents of these children can best meet their obligation by making sure that the stress and strain of school routine and new surroundings are not increased by physical defects that will retard the child's progress," the commissioner said.

Of more than one million children examined in the last eight years over 1,400,000 defects were found, health records reveal. Fifteen per cent of the children were found to be undernourished, 30 per cent had enlarged glands, 50 per cent had teeth defects, 18 per cent had defective eyesight, and 50 per cent had enlarged tonsils or adenoids.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS

Night Schools Open Sept. 21; Expect 52,000

Official Gives Details of Registration, Etc.

More than 52,000 Chicagoans are expected to attend evening classes in certain Chicago public schools this fall and winter, according to Dr. Charles J. Lunak, assistant superintendent in charge of evening schools. Classes will open on the evening of Sept. 21. Registration will be on the evenings of Sept. 17 and 18.

Chicago, alone of the larger cities in the country, showed an increased demand for night school instruction last year, Dr. Lunak revealed. To meet this demand there will be six accredited evening high schools opened this year, compared with three last year. Additional accommodations have been prepared, too, for the opportunity high school and grade school divisions.

The courses fall into seven divisions:

English for foreign language speaking persons.

Elementary subjects for those who failed to make the grades.

Lip reading classes.

Regular high school subjects.

Home economics, trade millinery, and dressmaking.

Commercial subjects.

Technical subjects related to trades and industries.

For those who desire to earn high school diplomas, regular high school courses will be offered in six accredited evening schools. Graduates from these schools are admitted to colleges, universities, and to state licensing examinations on the same basis as graduates of day high schools. The sessions consist of two semesters of 18 weeks each. Such instruction may be had at the Austin High school, 231 North Pine avenue; Crane, Oakley and Jackson boulevards; Englewood, 62d street and Wentworth avenue; Fenger, 112th and Wallace streets; Lake View, Irving Park and Ashland boulevards, and Schurz, Milwaukee avenue and Addison street. At those schools there also will be elementary classes.

Commercial continuation courses will be offered at the Jones school, Harrison street and Plymouth court. That school, particularly convenient for workers in the loop, will offer all varieties of commercial work.

At the Washburne school, 655 West 14th street, courses in trade apprenticeship will be offered. That school is operated by agreement between the board of education and the various unions. Classes are conducted in most of the trades.

For foreign language speaking persons there are courses in English, citizenship, United States history, and geography.

The following is a list of additional evening schools, with notation of courses offered, and divided according to location:

Stately Dances Made to Fit Present Styles

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Several new dances, to conform to the present styles in women's dress, dances which substitute grace and dignity for the prevailing syncopation, will be exhibited in Chicago next week. This was revealed yesterday.

They will be demonstrated at the eighteenth annual convention and normal school of the Chicago Association of Dancing Masters, at Congress hotel from Monday to Saturday.

With long evening dresses, demure coiffures, suggesting the sheltered women of the mid 19th century, the popular system of walking or hopping across the dance floor is a little grotesque, dancing masters contend.

Moreover, dancing follows the styles in popular music, and dance orchestras have been taking airs from operas, reviving the mellow Victor Herbert melodies and specializing in the newer songs are regarded by many as "sweetly sentimental."

So new dances such as the "waltz modern," filled with dips and the old "hesitation" steps, and the "fraternity glide," a slow, smooth dance suitable to trailing gowns will be introduced at the convention. Miss Marion Freeman, 59 East Adams street, principal of the normal school of the convention, makes that prediction.

The fraternity glide will be danced by Anna H. Keenan, Philadelphia, and the "waltz moderne," by Miss Dorothy Cropper, New York, according to present plans. There is some talk of introducing the "matchiche," which was popular when the former Irene Castle, now Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin, was a dancing star. The rumba fox trot will be demonstrated by Thomas M. Sheehy of Chicago.

The merica, a new dance of stately measures introduced in New York yesterday by the American Society of Teachers of Dancing in convention there, probably will not be shown here, but dancing masters throughout the country are attempting to establish the dance of grace, Miss Freeman said.

"Of course," she said, "we can not force them upon an unwilling public. The future of the dance always remains with the public."

Main Street Dictates the "Dance of Decorum," It's Said.

New York, Aug. 28. — (AP) — The rhumba of Cuba fame, the fox trot, rapid tango and other giddy glides were ordered banished today from America's ballrooms by dancing masters from many states in convention here.

In their place a new four-four rhythm, described as a "dance of decorum," was evolved after spirited discussions which had engrossed 150 dance exponents for a week. The new dance tempo, its backers explained, is faster than the waltz. It somewhat resembles the tango and consists of five movements, each of which was worked out by a different person and after much fitting and cutting inserted in the pattern which song and dance writers will be expected to follow in the coming society season.

Needs Jars for Apples.

"We have just received a large donation of apples from a charitable person, and we want to preserve them for use during the winter. With the large number of women and children we must feed each day this will be an immense help. Lack of jars will hinder us, however, unless we are able to secure them through your column. Do you think you can get us some half gallon jars? S. H. S."

Children Help Ice Fund on Eve of School

Children are having one last fling at raising money for the ice fund before the summer vacation is over and books and school desks call again.

Last evening the whole neighborhood around 2040 Hopkins place, Beverly Hills, was buzzing with excitement because almost every one was going to the Charles E. Judd home to see the play "Our Secret Ambition," written by Earle Dobbs Stevenson, 13 years old, and Mildred Hartough, 11. There were costumes and everything necessary to make successful a premiere of a couple of budding playwrights.

Others who aided in the cast were Thomas Moody Stevenson, Bruce Judd, Barbara Hartough, Janet Hartough. Charles Hanlon added to the program a group of songs. The proceeds of the production will be turned over to the fund that delivers free ice to tenement homes.

Another group of actresses got together in another nearby town a few days ago and gave a play, "Five Little Peppers," and earned $5.50 for the ice fund. The play was given at 235 South Marion street, Oak Park. Adults had to pay ten cents, but the children got in for five cents and to those who wished there was root beer to be had at five cents a glass.

Appellation of 'Girl' Is Borne Until One Reaches Age of 30

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I need help—a lot of it—please! I have to answer: "At what age does a girl become a woman?"

It seems a correspondent gets a pain in a pain-sector every time she sees women over twenty being referred to as girls, when they should be called women.

"If boys are men when they're thirty," she rises to inquire, "how can a woman be a girl at the same age?"

"How can she be a girl at forty? At forty-five? At fifty? Yeah, the writer says she sits in with a group of thirty to fifty-year-olds who say: 'We girls.'"

Newspaper writers are blamed by correspondents for encouraging the silly illusion. We speak of women of forty as girls. We won't let them grow up into women. Maybe girls make better copy than women, my correspondent argues. That's why they've got to be all girls. And beautiful girls to get their pictures or mention in the paper.

"A queer notion that," she says, "that woman remains in a state of perpetual childhood if she does not marry. When people speak of girls nowadays, one never knows whether they mean babies, young children, young women or middle aged. One constantly sees newspapers referring to women of all ages as girls if they're single, while women who may be younger and married are women. Could anything be sillier?

"I think that any female over twenty is a woman—'not a girl' and should be called a woman. Whether she is married or single has no bearing. You don't hear such goofy expressions as 'single boys and married men' but you do hear about 'single girls' and 'married women' constantly.

But you do hear the married men of middle age, too, saying: "We boys," and you hear them addressing their wives and her pals as "You girls."

I don't think newspaper writers are responsible for the "girl" racket. It's the women themselves. They hug the girl illusion tenderly. But I'd be reasonable in the face of all the sentimental attachment about girlhood and extend the term ten years, and let all at thirty be grownup women. That's the age at which the bud develops into the full-blown rose, isn't it?

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL J. POTTER

TREES DRY DESPITE RAINFALL.

Streets, turf areas, roof tops and trees and shrubs were drenched throughout Chicagoland Thursday evening and yet shade trees continue to show the effects of insufficient moisture supply. Fine shade trees are due to shed their foliage many days in advance of the first frost unless the owners supply large quantities of water in addition to any rainfall.

This is said by Chicago's landscaping experts to be true especially of the elms and maples which should retain their leaves until killing frosts but whose verdure already is turning gray in color and drooping as from early dormancy. Large supplies of moisture applied artificially would delay the drying up of the foliage.

Barrels of water are necessary to help trees of considerable size, as those which have extensive leaf systems are able to evaporate many barrels of water on a hot day. One of the easiest methods of watering a large tree is to take the nozzle from the hose and let water run gently for days at a time, according to Charles G. Sauers, superintendent of the Cook county forest preserve system.

In Paris, the streets are so laid out that householders are able to water their plantings easily through a comprehensive tiled system which permits water to run to root feeding areas. In any case, the watering is not recommended for the base of the tree, but should be applied around the "crown," which is equal on the ground in diameter to the height of the tree.

Be Loyal Friend to Your Child in Small as Well as Big Ways

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

If your small son and daughter can't depend on you, on whom can they?

If you turn against your boy or girl, where is there anything solid in their world?

You are bedrock to them, and if you fail them it's as if their feet stood on quicksand and the world has lost its security for them.

It's not so much about big things I'm thinking of now—like some serious misadventure or great need. Your loyalty and protectiveness would probably rise to that occasion and you'd stand by.

It's little things I mean—small loyalties, I suppose you'd call them. It's important for a child to feel his mother's and father's complete and absolute faith in him.

Many things occur to give you an opportunity to establish this feeling. One of the most frequent is when you are given a choice between taking your child's word and that of a grown person.

We adults have been led to consider a child's version of a circumstance as unreliable and to believe the word of a grownup because—first, we are told, we must be accurate, since he's grown up, and second, he must be telling the truth, because there's no reason for him to lie.

Grown persons aren't always accurate, as any lawyer can tell you. Memory and observation are often at fault, and their emotions, like excitement or anger, may further becloud the issue. Also, it is not pleasant, but it is true, that occasionally a grown person will have a motive for lying about a child—I know of two at this minute—one who lied from jealousy and one to put her own child in the right.

Many fathers and mothers have been unjust to their children because they would not take their child's word against that of an adult. Instinctively they believed the grown person against the child, but sometimes they seemed to do so because they hadn't the courage to openly doubt the veracity or accuracy of the friend or relative who was bearing witness against the child.

Be loyal to your child in small things as well as big.

The booklet, "Sex Education," will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Feathers and Veils Marked Court Frocks.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—This year's garland of ladies to make their bows at the Court of St. James's presented a variegated cluster of fashions. Most of these dresses came from the Paris couturiers, but the one common quality they shared was the feather and veil appendage. Court styles have got personal, just like fashions, for every thing else that women do, and the intelligence and taste that make chic in all branches of dress have become a necessity here also.

One of the outstanding ensembles seen at the last court is shown in the accompanying sketch. It was a queen among the dresses that swept up to the throne—elegant and dignified, brilliant and subtle, minus all derogatory touches, which, alas are sometimes observed even in such splendid clothes as those that go to court.

This dress was worn by the duchess of Portland. Molyneux designed it for her. It is made of white georgette crêpe embroidered in shining circles of silver, and the clinging skirt is made delicate and floating in appearance by the application of single strands of white ostrich sewed at intervals over the surface of its material.

The court train is made of plain white georgette, and with this trails the duchess wore twenty-button white suede gloves.

The simplicity of the cut of this Molyneux model is one of the reasons for its undeniable distinction.

Food Talk.

There's a new wrinkle in meats! Perhaps "wrinkle" is the wrong expression to use, but, after all, we still roast, broil, and stew the same animals, and parts of animals, year in and year out. What I actually am talking about is a new cut of beef which is good to the taste and, even better, good for the pocketbook.

This cut of beef is called a "cube" steak. It is taken from the hindquarter of the animal which we know as round steak. Ordinarily, though round steak is jucy and well flavored, it calls for judicious cooking over an extended period of time. In cube steak form it can be prepared for the table in two minutes, as it requires but one minute's searing on each side to arrive at the proper stage of doneness—a boon to women having a minimum of time in which to get a meal.

The cubing of the meat is performed by a machine which cuts it into quarter-inch cubes. However, the machine does not completely penetrate the steak, so that in appearance only one side of the meat shows the cut cubes, and the other side is smooth as a sirloin. Purchase one for each person to be served. They are approximately five inches by four inches, and three-eighths inch thick.

I haven't meant to mislead you when I referred to them as being "good for the pocketbook." Of course, the price per pound will vary with the individual butcher and season, but cube steaks are not expensive, nor are they as cheap as chuck and shoulder cuts having an average percentage of bone.

Let me know how you like them!

CUBE STEAK.

Wipe the steak with a clean, damp cloth. Warm a skillet and rub with the fat of the steak. Place the steak in the pan and sear quickly for one minute only on each side. Serve immediately. Garnish as you would a sirloin or tenderloin steak.

CHEESE PUFF.

5 eggs.
1 cup of milk.
1 tablespoon flour.
6 tablespoons grated cheese.

Scald the milk in a double boiler. Beat the egg yolks well and add to the milk. Add the sifted flour and salt, then the cheese, and blend until it is smooth. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites, and pour in a baking dish. Bake about half an hour in a moderate oven [350 F.].

JUNIOR GIRL'S DRESS.

The cape collar, also answering for short sleeves makes this an unusually pretty dress. The pin tucked shoulders are not covered by the collar, and French bows at the center front make a smart trimming. The curved seaming of the circular skirt is an idea copied from "grown ups'" dresses. Piqué, line, poplin, crepe de chine, and voile are attractive materials.

The pattern, 2529, comes in sizes 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 39 inch material with ¼ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Miss Richardson W. W. Crawford Will Wed Today

BY THALIA ——.

If you want to be fussy about dating the seasons, you might refer to Miss Frances Richardson's marriage today to Walter Webb Crawford as the last large wedding of the summer instead of the first large wedding of the fall. At any rate, as the first nuptials hereabouts to be celebrated with any pomp and ceremony since June, it brings a hint of the long series of weddings on the October calendar.

Only the families and close friends of the bride and groom will be present when the ceremony is performed at 4:30 o'clock at Trinity church in Evanston, but there will be a larger number of guests at the reception which will follow at Twin Oaks farms, the Wheaton residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph R. Richardson.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Frederick Bonner, will be her matron of honor, and the bridesmaids will include Mrs. Irene Hodgkins, Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, Mrs. Niblack Thorne, Miss Sally Ross of Madison, N. J., and Mrs. John Lewis Cochran. The groom's sister, Miss Harriet Crawford, who was to have been a bridesmaid, is prevented by illness from being in the party.

The masculine contingent is headed by John Lewis Cochran as best man and a group of ushers composed of William S. Covington, Carl Stibolt, Walter McDougall, Henry Faurot Stephenson Jennings, Paul Boston, Harvey Peabody Brush Jr., Robert M. Smith, Frederick Spencer, and John Henderson.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. John G. Richardson of Virginia, and her maternal grandfather, Mr. S. A. Walker of Washington, are here for the occasion. Other out of town guests include the groom's mother, Mrs. John Warren Crawford of Galena, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Templeton Brown [Jessie Hosmer] of St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Richardson gave the bridal dinner last night at the Chicago Golf club, where most of the wedding attendants and out of town guests are staying.

The little towers of mail on fashionable breakfast tables mount higher these mornings as the numerous debut tea and wedding invitations begin arriving. Yesterday people received cards for the garden tea Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw and her daughters, Mrs. John T. McCutcheon and Mrs. Clay Judson, are giving for Miss Theodora Shaw at Ragdale in Lake Forest on Saturday, Sept. 12, and for the debut reception Mr. and Mrs. David Joseph Molloy are to give the same afternoon in Lake Forest for Miss Catherine Pearson Molloy.

The cards for Miss Shaw's party differ from the conventional "at home" invitations and have a small oval sketch of a garden vista above the wording.

Invitations were mailed yesterday for the marriage of Miss Helen Howell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Howell, to John Barnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Ludington Barnes, which is to take place on Saturday, Sept. 12. Miss Howell's cousin, Miss Virginia Faulkner of Omaha, Neb., is to be maid of honor, and Miss Christy Mann, Miss Betty Kellogg, and Miss Jane Lucey are to be bridesmaids. Nelson L. Barnes Jr. will be his brother's best man, and Ezra Warner Jr., Edwin Faulkner, and Summitt Boone of New York City will usher. The service is to be read at 8:30 o'clock in the evening at the Howell apartment in Lake View avenue.

The marriage of Miss Marguerite Watson to Walter Field McLallen is to take place at Christ church in Winnetka at 4 o'clock the afternoon of Thursday, Sept. 17, and the reception will follow at the Walter B. Wolfs' Winnetka residence. Miss Watson has asked her sister-in-law-to-be, Miss Helen McLallen, to be her maid of honor, and the eleven bridesmaids are Caroline Smith, Elsa Armour, Hortense Henry, Geraldine Swift, Beatrice Kirk, Josephine Dennehy, Constance Hasler, Helen Stanley, Suzette Morton, Fayette Smith, and Ruth Crofton. All of them were contemporary debutantes of the prospective bride during the last winter season. Niblack Thorne is to be Mr. McLallen's best man, and the ushers will be James Hume, Press Hodgkins, John Erskine, Kenneth Knickerbocker, Victor Elting Jr., George Chapell Jr., Frank Wood Jr., Solomon B. Smith, Walter and Hathaway Watson Jr., the bride's brothers, and Thomas Hellyer. The bridal dinner is set for the Tuesday evening preceding the wedding. Miss Geraldine Swift is to have a dinner-dance for the bridal party at Shoreacres on Saturday, Sept. 12, and Mrs. James Addington is to have a kitchen shower on Sept. 9. Other pre-nuptial parties are being jockeyed into place on the crowded calendar of the days before the wedding.

Miss Nixon has come in from Lake Geneva after a three weeks' visit with the Martin Ryersons there and is to be at the Ambassador for a week before returning to Italy.

For Every Excursion from Truth There's Final Checking Up

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"A year ago I was engaged to be married to a girl I had gone with for several years. I loved her dearly but was foolish enough to lie to her for a long time. The lies I told her made her think I was very successful. She planned our marriage on this basis. Then, the truth was discovered two months before we were to be wed—and BANG, everything was over."

To continue Sad's story, the girl did eventually give him another chance. And just when they were getting up to the marrying point again, during which time he was forging ahead "just to show the girl," one day she completely changed her mind, and gave him the air—for keeps. This, after an eleven month probation period.

One of the things one lives to learn is the truth of most of the old copybook maxims. Most of us take a flyer at some time or another ignoring one or other of these homely old truths but very, very few escape the consequences. We live to learn that what the people before us lived to learn and write down for our benefit isn't old fogey advice that can be dismissed lightly. And that old timer about honesty being the best policy, no matter where, when or how it is called upon for application, just hasn't had anything in the way of homely truth to substitute for it.

I suppose in the courtship era, everybody is doing a certain amount of bluffing. The girl bluffing that her disposition is never ruffled; that there isn't anything she wouldn't do for her man if she were married to him. And the man putting his best foot forward for all he's worth, too!

Certain of these discrepancies as they show up later are forgiven. But bluffing about money is almost bound to be fatal. It's one of the bluffs you can't carry through, whereas you can put up a cheerful face if called upon. But you can't sign checks unless you have the bank balance.

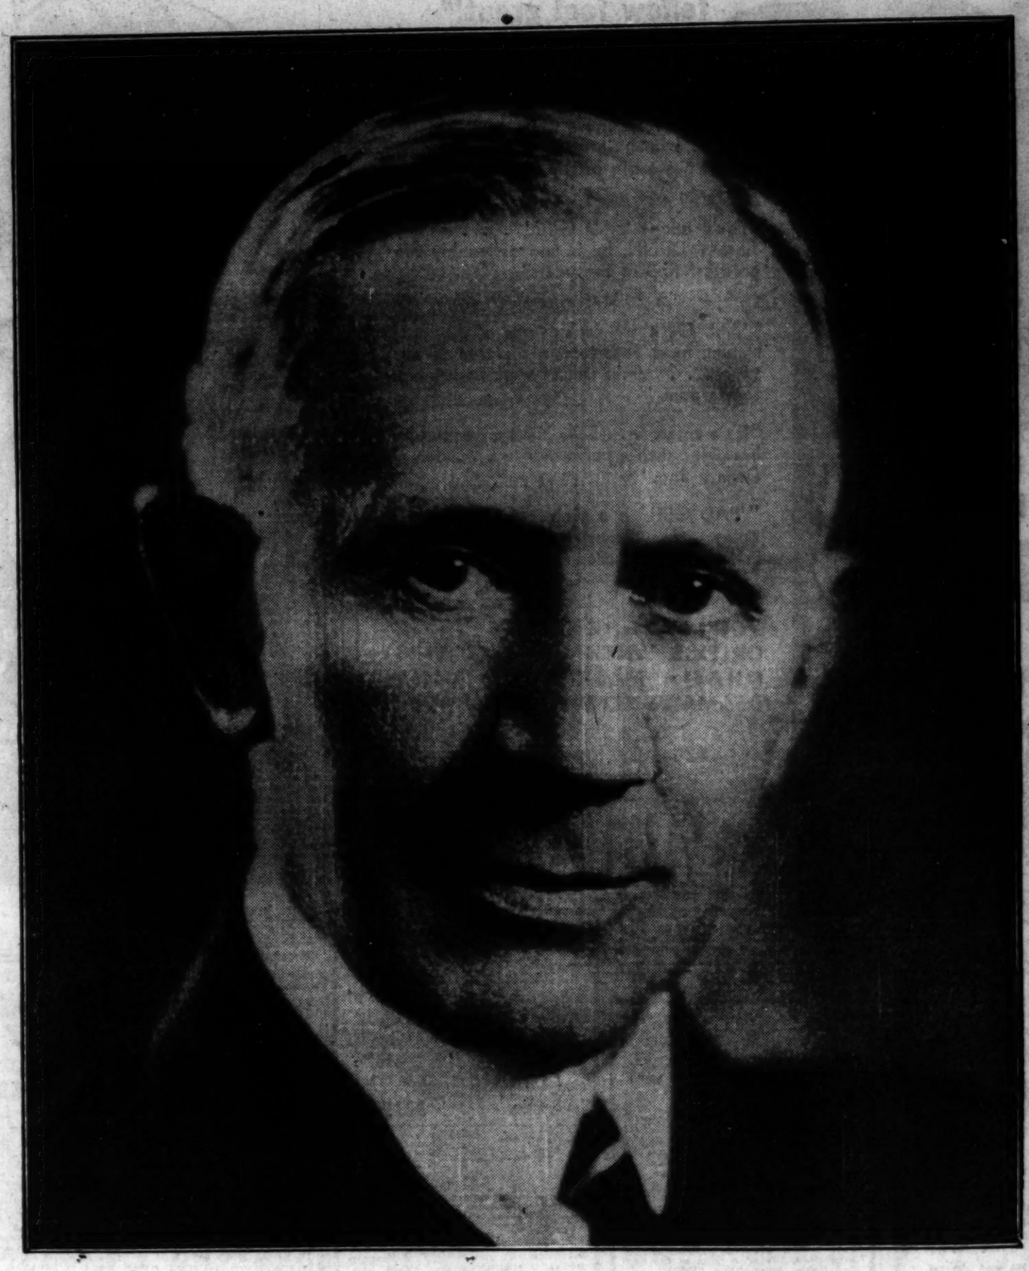
THE GREAT CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE

Tomorrow—

A NEW CARTOON by McCUTCHEON

The cartoons of John T. McCutcheon are world famous. They are the shrewd summary of years of observation of men and affairs. A few strokes of his pen interpret a business condition, or are a stirring defense of private rights. His picturing of the comic in daily life is all in high good humor, his attack on venality merciless. But it is when in his more intimate vein that his cartoons are probably most popular. Who did not follow with eager interest the progress of "An Heir At Large", or chuckled in deligh over the homely philosophy of J. Raglan Patchmore. Another of McCutcheon's famous cartoons appears tomorrow. Look for it.



Tomorrow's great Chicago Sunday Tribune brings to you another of John T. McCutcheon's splendid cartoons. The dean of cartoonists pictures in inimitable style a delightful study of childhood.

Also in the same issue you will find the latest and most complete news and pictures of local, national and foreign events, gathered and prepared by the world's greatest newspaper staff. Other special attractions are a page of beautiful reproductions in full color of two famous paintings, the latest news of Paris styles, illustrated in color, fiction, articles on beauty and health, appetizing menus, eight full pages of comics—sixteen strips in all, features on travel, home decoration, care of the children, and scores of other special articles which you will not want to miss. If you are not now getting the Sunday Tribune regularly at your home, be sure to leave an order with the nearest Tribune dealer today.

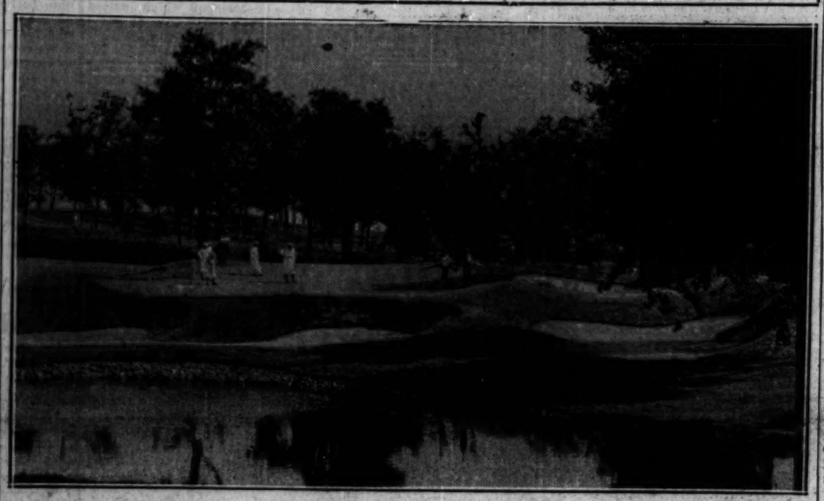
WHERE AMATEURS BATTLE FOR U. S. TITLE



The twelfth green at the Beverly Country club, the only water hole on the beautifully wooded course. The green lies in a grove of trees, with the pool in the foreground barring the approach from the tee side and a number of generous sand traps forming the inner defense.

EARLY ARRIVALS FOR U.S. AMATEUR SAMPLE BEVERLY

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The advance battalion of the army of 151 players who will march over the greens and fairways of the Beverly Country club when the thirty-fifth United States amateur golf tournament begins Monday undertook to sample the course yesterday and while so doing found that the Beverly bunkers and traps may have a formidable ally during next week's play. That ally was a miniature gale which swept the Beverly agriculture all day yesterday, bending the surrounding forestry into strange shapes and twisting many a drive and iron shot far out of line.

The wind was so disconcerting to several players during their trial rounds yesterday that they didn't bother to post a score after finishing. William Lawson Little Jr., the modest young man from San Francisco, who told Bobby Jones in 1929 that he would have eliminated the Atlantan if Johnny Goodman hadn't, achieved the best round of the day, a 73, two over par. He compiled it with a 38 on the outgoing nine and a par 35 coming home.

Voigt Next Best.

George Voigt, the New York star who didn't make good in golf until he was nigh onto 30, produced the next best card, a 74. Dr. O. F. Willing, the Portland, Ore., dentist, suggested that he would be around to argue with the younger generation by shooting a 77. Russ Martin, of Flossmoor, turned the Beverly layout in 78.

Other practice scores were posted yesterday by T. Philip Perkins former British amateur champion and one of the favorites for the title, 83; Ross Somerville, Canadian amateur champion, 81; Max Marston, national titleholder in 1923, 83; Watts Gunn, Bobby Jones' one time protégé and runner-up to his tutor in the amateur of 1925, 82; Roland Mackenzie, medalist in 1925, 82; Lester Bolstad, former Big Ten and public links champion, 82; Ellsworth Augustus, who will start the tournament with Jack Westland Monday morning, 82; Arthur Sweet, 82[and Johnny Goodman, Jones' conqueror in the 1929 meet, 82.

Tolley Decides to Compete.

The tournament proceedings were made more interesting yesterday with the sudden entrance of Cyril Tolley, former British amateur champion, into the meet. Unlike his fellow Britons in the meet, Johnny and Alaric de Forest, Tolley had not signified his intention of entering. He will be exempt from qualifying, as the de Forests were, but admission to the tourna-

HAAS IS LOST TO MACKS FOR REST OF SEASON

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 28.—(AP)—George Haas, injured center fielder of the Philadelphia Athletics, probably will be lost to the club for the rest of the season, including the World series, Manager Connie Mack said today. His wrist, broken several weeks ago, has failed to mend as hoped for.

"Doc" Ebling, club trainer, explained the trouble today as difficulty with the "knuckle bone" of the left wrist. He said efforts of Haas to swing a bat resulted in the bone slipping out of place, causing pain and weakness.

MULE HAAS

His place probably will be filled by Roger Cramer, who has been playing since the injury.

CUBS INTRODUCE NEW PAIR TODAY AT SECOND BASE

Adair, Herman in Home Debut Against Reds.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Something in new second base combinations will be on display at Wrigley field today when the Cubs resume what remains of their season's work at home. The Reds, who are of no particular importance in the baseball world, will perform in the role of visitors and by way of cheering them up Manager Hornsby is going to let Charley Root start against them. Red Lucas is expected to be the Cincinnati pitcher.

The new combination, which might, and then again might not, be a fixture for several seasons to come, will be Jimmy Adair from Reading at shortstop and Billy Herman from Louisville at second. Adair has been functioning in a regular capacity during the last eight games, but hasn't been seen by the home folks. The glimpse of Herman this afternoon will be the first for the customers as well as for his new mates, who are rather anxious to pass opinion on a lad representing $50,000 in real cash.

Adair Fields Well.

Adair thus far has been neither a sensation nor a flop. He has, at least, done well enough to warrant further experiment. Allowances must be made, of course, for the fact that he was thrown into four big league double headers in as many successive days. He covers ground well enough, but before deserving a high, final rating he must develop a stronger throwing arm and a little more power at bat. Herman, judging by his minor league achievements as compared to Adair, should be by far the better hitter of the pair of 22 year olders.

After doing the best they can against the Reds today and tomorrow, the Cubs will enjoy two off days following which they appear in Cincinnati for five games in four days. That will carry them up to next Saturday night. Then they come home to remain until the season closes.

SOX POINT FOR CUBS

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 28.—Right now the matter of the White Sox staying in the American League cellar isn't so important as training for the Sox-Cubs charity game on Sept. 9.

Tomorrow afternoon, at the resumption of the Tigers-Sox three game series, Victor Frasier will pitch. Victor likes to beat the Tigers, but what is more important, Victor wants to keep in tip top shape for the charity contest, for he has learned that he is the gent who is to be nominated to slay the proud north siders.

Bush Banks on Frasier.

"Frasier is my bet for Sept. 9," Manager Donie Bush said today. "He'll do quite a lot of pitching between now and then, but he'll have a full quota of rest for the big game.

"I figure the Cubs won't like Frasier's curve ball a tiny bit and he can show them a fast one as good as anything I saw in the National league in three years."

Mr. Bush didn't say as much, but the Sox, in addition to believing that it will be a distinction to win a notable contest such as the one on Sept. 9 is certain to be, feel that a Sox victory will smoke up the later city series more than a Cub victory.

Manager Bush also is anxious to have Smead Jolley ready for the charity spectacle, for he feels that Smead is the one to give the Cubs some of the socking thrills that Hack Wilson has been unable to supply.

In tomorrow's contest the Sox will face either Whitehill of Uhle, according to advance information from the Tiger camp. The selection is not alarming the Sox, for in two games Frasier has pitched this month against the Detroiters, he accomplished a shut out and one contest in which the Tigers made one unearned run.

Connie Mack

The Life Story of Baseball's Grand Old Man

(This is the last of a series of articles on the life of Connie Mack)

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 28.—Unlike a number of human landmarks whose principal distinction in their old age is that they haven't happened to die, Connie Mack, close on to 70, is a modern among men who are young enough to play 200 games of ball a year.

"Are you planning to break up this ball club as you broke up that other one?" says you.

"Do you know where I could pick up some men to make it a little stronger for next year?" says he.

"Now, back in your day, did the ball players——?"

"Back in my day? What was my day?" says Connie. "My club has won two pennants in a row and we've just about won another. Isn't this my day? Isn't it possible that next year will be my day, too?"

There is an impulse to say, "Yes, but at your age, Connie——"

Connie's Just as Young as His Baseball Team.

But what is Connie's age? In spite of the vital statistics this old man is as young in his spirit as the youngest major league manager in the industry and richer in experience. As young? Stanley Harris, the manager of the Detroit club, is still the youngest man handling a ball club in the major leagues, but Stanley, after his great success in Washington, has been hammered badly in recent years and you may be sure that he is lower in his mind today, with less confidence in his future, than Connie Mack. But he is quality, young Harris, and I fancy that he will come up again after a fight. But at this moment he stands where Connie stood seventeen years ago at the age of 52.

At 52 Connie Mack started over and his tenacity, not so much in the fight to rebuild his team, as in clinging to his youth, is one of those moral lessons that Upward and Onward philosophers of the magazines shouldn't overlook.

But how does a man cling to his youth? Not by conscious effort, I suppose, any more than one has fun by determined effort. Possibly Old Connie deserves no particular credit for his enthusiasm. He has happened not to succumb to any of the epidemics which have carried off people in his 69 years; no engine has landed in his lap in all his hundreds of thousands of miles of railroad travel; his health, due to moderate habits and good luck, has always been good, and he just happens to be so constituted that the age of 69 finds him full of mental and physical vigor and much more alive than any of those maundering patriarchs who, by newspaper tradition, are required to be interviewed on their birthdays.

He might have been a male crone at his age, but he has never recovered from his delight of 47 years ago when a fellow actually offered to pay him cash wages for playing a game he loved to play. He still has a deep, inward foreboding that one of these days some power will find out that he is receiving pay for enjoying himself and start charging him admission to the ball parks. At the risk of obtruding myself, I may say that I am constantly under a similar fear with regard to the business of attending the sport events on a salary and writing pieces about them.

This Might Have Been Uncle Robby's History.

"Was there ever anything as soft as the ball player's job?" said Connie. "Imagine, being paid for playing a game."

"Was there ever any job as soft as mine?" I asked. "Imagine being paid for going to the world series, to the training camps in Florida, to the big football games, the golf tournaments——"

"Not so loud," said Connie. "I think that waiter is listening. He might report us to some committee and we'd have to go to work."

Over in Brooklyn there is a fat old man who might have been the topic of many a newspaper biography this fall if the National league hadn't suddenly thrown out the kangaroo ball and thrown in the possum ball to undo him in his old age. Uncle Wilbert Robinson is all the man that Connie

MONEY CHAMP 7-5 CHOICE IN LINCOLN STAKE

Expect 30,000 to See $25,000 Handicap.

The Field

THE field for the running of the $25,000 added Lincoln handicap at Lincoln Fields this afternoon, arranged in the order of post positions, follows:

Horse.	Wt.	Jockeys.	Frb. odds.
The Nut	109	R. Finnerty	15-1
Paul Bunyan	113	J. Gianelloni	5-1
*Calf Roper	104	R. Jones	15-1
Chief John	109	C. Corbett	20-1
Sun Beau	129	C. Phillips	7-5
*Knight Com'der.	111	F. Chiavetta	15-1
Pittsburgher	110	R. Tilden	10-1
†My Dandy	104	C. R. Allen	10-1
Seguro	98	W. Moran	100-1
†Brown Wisdom	107	M. Knight	10-1
No More	108	L. Cunningham	10-1
Plucky Play	114	D. Trivett	4-1

*Peconic stable entry. †Reichert Brothers entry.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Old Sun Beau's sudden trip from Saratoga to Lincoln Fields didn't scare many of our best western handicap stars out of the $25,000 added Lincoln handicap which is to be renewed this afternoon.

Eleven westerners were named overnight to meet the world's greatest money winner in the mile and a quarter event. And the weather added new hope for a western victory when it soaked the Lincoln Fields racing strip with a downpour Thursday night and yesterday morning.

Sun Beau does not like a muddy track, but the weather, after drenching the course, turned right around and provided plenty of sunshine and a strong wind all day yesterday. Last night the track was drying fast and the prospects for a good or even a fast track at post time, about 4:30 o'clock, were bright.

Plucky Play Second Choice.

Of course old Sun Beau was the overnight favorite. The price was 7 to 5. If the track becomes fast by the time he tries for further enrichment of his bulging bankroll, he probably will be about 4 to 5, or perhaps less.

Plucky Play, which conquered the old fellow from Willis Sharpe Kilmers' stable in the recent Hawthorne handicap, was the second choice at 4 to 1, Paul Bunyan also had many backers. The price against him was 5 to 1. As for the others, you could just about write your own ticket, although the Kentucky crowd was standing nobly back of Pittsburgher and they promise to give him plenty of support this afternoon.

Sun Beau in No. 5 Place.

A victory for Sun Beau this afternoon will add slightly more than $22,000 to his world's money earning record of $334,044. The Lincoln will have a gross value of more than $27,000, with more than $22,000 as the winner's share. So if they hang out Sun Beau's number his earnings will total $356,000. This will be another world's record. But shattering world's records has become a habit to Sun Beau lately.

Sun Beau was unusually fortunate in the draw for post positions, being placed fifth with the slow beginners, The Nut and Paul Bunyan, next to the rail. But at a mile and a quarter every horse in the field should be able to pick a good path by the time he hits the clubhouse turn.

Expect 30,000 Crowd.

Sun Beau gives away many pounds to all his rivals. Plucky Play has a pull of 15 pounds; Paul Bunyan, 17 pounds, and Knight Commander, 19 pounds. It will be the first time Knight Commander has ever tried to go this distance. He has done everything else asked of him this year; perchance he can perform another miracle and show his heels to Sun Beau.

The Lincoln is the richest race of the season at Lincoln Fields. With Sun Beau ready to run, a crowd that may tax the capacity of the track is anticipated. With good weather it was expected that a record breaking throng of 30,000 might see the race. Such noted horses as Toro, Chance Play, Lady Broadcast, and Supremus have been winners of previous Lincoln handicaps.

STREET FINDS BALL HE CAUGHT OFF MONUMENT

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 28.—(AP)—So far as Gabby Street is concerned, the lost is found.

Today the Cardinal manager received a baseball that zoomed into his mitt from the top of the Washington monument Aug. 21, 1908, setting a mark for other big league catchers to shoot at.

For more than fifteen years—ever since Gabby joined up for service in the world war—the red and blue stitched sphere has been out of his possession. He wasn't quite sure what became of it until it arrived at Cardinal headquarters in a box from the friend in Newbury, Pa., with whom Gabby had left it for safekeeping.

Preston Gibson tossed the famous 500 foot pop fly to him, Street recalled, in harking back to those days when he was catching Walter Johnson. An even dozen balls streaked down the side of the obelisk before Gabby succeeded in getting his hands on one—the fourth for which he tried.

"It didn't strike with terrific force, as one might expect," Street said. "Just about like stopping a fast one from a pitcher with plenty of steam."

LADIES FIRST IS FINISH ORDER IN MOHAWK STAKES

Masked Ball Defeats Six Mere Males at Saratoga

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—For the second time in three days the only filly in the feature bested the colts and geldings racing against her. The Mohawk claiming stakes was the principal event here today and it saw W. R. Coe's filly, Masked Ball, run on top from start to finish to defeat six other starters. Wednesday Con Amore accomplished the same feat in the American Legion handicap.

Masked Ball was greatly favored by the weights, having only 100 pounds to carry, and Jockey L. Knapp made the most of his advantage by rushing to the front and running the others off their feet. At the end of the mile Masked Ball was a length before E. R. Bradley's Bathorse, which just nosed out the Sagamore stable's Follow On for third.

Closes at 4 to 1.

Mr. Coe has not before won the Mohawk, which was inaugurated in 1901, and before the running today there were not a great many who gave his filly much chance to score. She receded in the betting from 3 to 1 to 4 to 1, despite the fact that she is a good muddler and the racing strip was deep from heavy rains this morning.

The main support was for St. Frantis, owned by the daughter of Joseph E. Widener, Mrs. Milton W. Holden.

Follow On, Bathorse Battle.

Follow On and Bathorse were closest to the pace all the way with Follow On second in the early stages, only to be headed by Bathorse. Jean Bejshak drove the Sagamore colorbearer on again to head Bathorse, but Eugene James was just as strong a finisher and in the last few strides got Bathorse up and landed second. The time for the mile was 1:40 1-5.

SOUTH CHICAGO TAKES SERIES OPENER, 13 TO 4

Houston, Tex., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Jimmy McKirchy, South Chicago hurling star, tonight pitched his team to a 13 to 4 victory over Columbia, S. C., in the first game of the junior baseball world series, sponsored by the American Legion. McKirchy, a right hander with a sharp breaking curve, allowed only six hits and fanned nine.

A crowd of 7,000, including many American Legion and baseball notables, saw the game. Kenesaw M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, saw seven innings and then left to catch a train for Chicago to be at the bedside of his wife. Score:

WOOD HONEY gained steadily after going half the distance and, closing gamely on the inside after entering the stretch, wore down MUELLER and won going away. ADSUM was close to the pace at all times and outgamed MUELLER. Latter had the most early speed and withstood the challenge of STRATHCONA at the stretch turn, but weakened near the end. STRATHCONA stopped badly after taking a short lead approaching the last turn. The others were never serious factors.

TOWN LIMIT, given a good ride, raced on even terms with HARRY HIEOVER under restraint to the stretch, then drew out to open up a good lead and won under mild urging. ROYAL ROGUE, well up at all stages, took a good lead after entering the stretch and, showing little signs of weakness, led to the finish with ease. TIGER was outrun in the early stretch but came fast in the stretch and pulled up a trifle sore. TIGER PRESTO was outrun throughout. BOOSTER TWIST appeared to sulk and was far back throughout.

Two dollar mutuels paid: Gay Prince, $10.58 straight, $6.60 place, $4.00 show; De Swasey, $26.70 place, $9.54 show; Quatre Bras II., $7.66 show. Winner trained by F. Reuter. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:12½. At post 1¼ minutes.

GAY PRINCE met with slight interference after the start, but was in a prominent position at all stages and, coming fast when ready, took a good lead in the stretch and scored handily. DE SWASEY lost much ground by racing wide but closed gamely and was a factor. QUATRE BRAS II. lugged the rail in the run home and finished with courage. TUNDOT tired in the run home. ARDEL stopped badly when the stretch was reached. ESKIMO was far back most of the way and did not seem to favor the going.

SIXTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse $1,200. Two year olds. Claiming. Net value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50.

MAJOR BEN broke well and, showing a liking for the going, led all the way to be an easy winner. GOLD TIP made up ground and was going gamely at the finish, but LITTLE TONEY was uncomfortable from the start and saved ground in the stretch, then closed fast. SIDE STEP was badly outrun to the stretch, then closed fast, tired in the final furlong. PRINCE HERBERT and CLASBY'S CHOICE were shut off and lost all chance when CELTIC WAY came over sharply on the far turn. CELTIC WAY tired after dashing into a contending position.

TRANSGRESSION, much the best, went to the front when ready on the back stretch and, increasing her margin as she went, won in hand. SKRIP raced well up throughout and made a game bid after entering the stretch, but was not good enough. BLACK IVORY closed ground to be a game going third. PLAY BIRD and PHANTASIME weakened in the run home. OUTBURST was badly outrun.

Wood Honey Is Plenty Sweet; Pays $78.02

Camp Prince, owned by John Marsch of Chicago, was an easy winner in the Englewood purse, run over a muddy track at Lincoln Fields yesterday.

Coming from far back at the head of the stretch, Jockey Corbett picked the best going with him and had him up in time to beat De Swasey by three lengths, with Quatre Bras II. third. Abdel had been the early pacemaker, but quit as usual when stretch battle started.

The crowd made Eskimo the favorite, but this old mud runner of other days didn't like the going and was never a contender. There was a plunge on Camp Prince near post time and in the mutuels he paid $10.58.

The favorites took a bad beating all afternoon. The first outsider to bob up winner was Wood Honey, which races for Charles Bidwill and G. E. Lewis of Chicago.

He came bounding home in time to beat Adsum and Mueller handily, after being ridden all over the track. In the mutuels he paid $78.02 for a two dollar investment.

C. Bruce Head, the Lincoln Fields general manager, was happy even though he didn't have a wager of any kind on the youngster, for Wood Honey is the first son of Altawood to show a winning performance. Mr. Head owns Altawood.

The Humming Bird purse went to Colonial Belle, and although she has hung up a fine record here this season, the crowd made Givanna the favorite. Racegoers didn't know Colonial Belle could run in the mud. So when she got up in the last strides to beat Givanna she paid $3.14. Volta Maid, after leading for a time, dropped back and was just able to save third money. Colinial Belle has beaten much more stylish horses this season.

Annie Ree, the favorite, falled in the seven furlong second race. She ran far back and in last place most of the way. Town Limit, which found the track just to his liking, won handily, although In Haste was gaining rapidly in the last strides and got second money. She was going after Town Limit near the end, but Jockey E. Neal had started his drive too late.

Spanish Play, the hard working and consistent 3 year old in the stable of Dick Morris of Chicago, has gone amiss and will not race again this year. He will be sent to a Kentucky farm and turned out. He has been in hard training since early last winter and should come back to the races next year as a dangerous threat in the handicap division.

Who Says Mice Are Timid? They Live with TNT

BY BOB BECKER.

A "home" in a box of TNT could hardly be called either desirable or safe, but many a field mouse in the Savanna, Ill., munitions depot of the U. S. army has chosen to live in such a dangerous atmosphere, much to the annoyance and worry of Maj. George W. Graham, the officer in charge.

A few days ago, when we were prowling in the bottom lands of the Mississippi river, looking at the situation the drought has created for the big river and the water birds which live on it as a home, we visited the munitions depot. It was then Maj. Graham told us about the serious "conservation" problem which the field mice make for him and the army.

Anybody or anything that goes near the ammunition stored in the magazines of the depot gets a quick run by mounted police, an ominous crew of horseback and carrying very handy guns. But the U. S. guards mean nothing in the life of the mice. And TNT or any other explosive mean just nothing. A magazine filled with such dangerous army necessities is just one more building in which to live.

So they move into the magazines. They find many boxes stored there. Their sharp teeth gnaw holes into these boxes of TNT, go through the paper wrapped around the explosive and, with this excellent nesting material, the unwelcome visitors settle down to bring up families in a truly explosive atmosphere.

Maj. Graham said that in order to reduce every hazard it is necessary to remove the bold mice from the TNT apartments, so he has to set out poison ration and put it in the magazines. This method of combating the pests is effective.

Although the mice are very unwelcome in the magazines, Uncle Sam encourages pheasants, quail, and prairie chickens to live on the grounds of the depot. Every protection is given them as long as they don't mind residing on ground which an insurance man would rate as a triple hasard. There, the depot has become a big game refuge where bird life is increasing and where no hunting is permitted.

SYMPATHY NOT IN VOCABULARY OF FIGHT FAN

Hard to Explain Exulting Over Knockout.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 28.—I hope I never have to take the witness stand and prove to some clever cross-examiner that prize fighting is sport and explain how I derive a kind of joy from seeing some big, dumb stranger, whom I have no reason to dislike, knocked cuckoo by a punch on the chin or the base of the brain.

When I come upon a street accident and find the victim stretched out on the sidewalk with the greenish tinge in his face which comes of being knocked, as we say, for a loop, I do not hop around and yell, "Yea! a home run. Hooray for the Acme Hauling company's truck No. 4." Neither do I gloat over the victim yelling "Ludden, Kansas, 39 years old, of 224 Cypress street, married, a collector for the Buckingham Palace Gardens Realty Associates, Inc., is a bum. He cannot take it and he never could take it."

Call a Cop, Natural Instinct.

On the contrary, my instinct and that of most people, including even the most confirmed prize fight fanciers, is to call a cop and an ambulance, fan the victim with my hat, run to the drug store for some stinging whisky, take down a lot of license numbers and get sore at the driver of the Acme Hauling company's truck No. 4.

Yet, in all the prize fights I have seen, the flash of greatest beauty to me occurred in a preliminary bout one night that Dempsey and Firpo were dealing one another blows at the Polo grounds. In this preliminary, one of the boys swung a terrific—I almost said beautiful—right hand punch to the other boy's chin. The other boy was knocked unconscious instantly and fell forward in such complete anesthesia that he lacked even the instinct to fold his arms under his face as he hit the floor.

When Sympathy Abounds.

If he had been hurt to exactly the same extent by a slap on the chin from a hesitating boom or a fall on a dance floor in a hotel lobby, people would have come a-running from all directions and there would have been exclamations of "Give the poor guy a drink," "Who's got a flask?" "Rub his neck," and "He ought to sue," but when this occurred that night in the Polo grounds the customers stood up with a yell of delight and, far from resenting what had been done to this inoffensive party, the people on the aisle reached out to pat him on the back why did it as he went back to his dressing room. It had been a honest knockout, but why it was a thing of such beauty and why the victim's misfortune was so delightful to all, who never had seen him before and couldn't even recall his name a moment afterward, I can give no explanation satisfactory even to myself.

One of the main troubles with the prize fight industry right now is the lack of a champion who can knock people decidedly unconscious. There are plenty of excellent boxers in the profession, but the customers do not want to see boxers box, much preferring to see punchers punch and the victims go down helpless and, for the most, pretty badly lacerated.

Action at Any Cost.

I quite realize that in putting up some resistance prior to going down as victims may lose their eyes and ears they quit the ring in time, fall victim of a strange malady which blurs their speech and their minds, and makes them walk as though overcome with dope, known to the profession as fighter's dance. Regarded as people, these fighters are not bad lot and I would not wish to do any of them come down with fighter's dance, but when they are willing I much resent it if they do not run the risk, and so do the rest of the patrons of the manly art.

The comfort I have in confessing my depravity and that is that I am not alone of a large body of my fellow men and women, including some of the best people. There was a time when I stood in awe of wealth and position, but the awe was dissipated when I found the very best people, such as Tex Rickard called them, sitting at the ringsides in various parts of the country to enjoy the same sport, if I may give it that name as a working title, which I engage.

I had thought that the very best people were a superior lot. I was inclined to look to them for a high example and I might say that the upper crust in this country never did anything to discredit their pretensions to superior quality and compromise themselves in the eyes of the lower classes as effective as their turn to prize fighting. The lower classes, not knowing themselves, always were aware that they had pretty low tastes, of which the least praiseworthy was their passion for fights and the knockout.

Why the Difference?

But when they saw the better element turning to the arenas to enjoy their favorite sport they realized that the difference between themselves and the betters was not a spiritual difference but merely a contrast between the suit and the limousine, the cap and the plug hat.

I don't want to get beyond my analysis which is my maximum safe depth in discussions of this kind, but how one can explain why suffering humanity are distasteful to me in the ring, whereas when I go to see fights anything short of this is a sweet measure?

Sailors Card Busiest Day of Yacht Racing

Chicago yachtsmen will conduct one of their busiest programs of the season today, with three clubs in action. The Lake Michigan Yachting association regatta, under the auspices of the Chicago Yacht club, will be sailed off Navy pier this afternoon, while the Columbia Yacht club will hold one of the most unique races of the year, the annual midnight haul to the Indiana shoals buoy at Gary. The Jackson Park Yacht club will stage its annual Venetian night parade tonight, with Hi-Jinks day on the program tomorrow at the south side harbor.

Seventeen boats are entered in the midnight race to Gary, but additional entries are expected by Dr. Jay W. Lowell, chairman of the Columbia club's race committee, before the starting gun is fired. Prior to the start of the race, members of the various crews will assemble for a barbecue meal in the clubhouse at Randolph street. Carl Norberg's Victory, winner of last year's race, will not compete. It was damaged during the Mackinac race, and is now at Charlevoix, Mich. Commodore J. A. Hadwiger's Q sloop Virginia, three time winner of the Mackinac race, is favored to retain the universal time prize it won last year.

The list of boats competing, together with their owners, follows:

Cap'n Pierce [Pecknу-Myron]; Siesta [Malechy]; Renegade [Olaff-Shipman]; Sunshine [Schiff]; Virginia [Hadwiger]; Swanee [Lotz-Hansen]; Niobe [Gillespie]; Varied [Gerts-Ruhge]; Pat [Toner]; Sparkler [Porter]; Caprice [Norton]; Wanderer II. [Mason]; Osprey [Lowell]; Edith II. [McFarland-Holloway]; Patsy [Ortmayer]; Ridanva [A. J. Riva], and Windjammer [Christianson].

The L. M. Y. A. regatta has attracted a number of entries in all classes, including universal schooners, yawls and ketches; cruisers, Seawanhaka sloops, Q, R and S boats, stars, jacks and pups. The larger boats will sail over a ten-mile course, while the stars, jacks and pups will have a shorter distance to travel.

Connie Mack The Life Story of Baseball's Grand Old Man

Mack is, as ripe, as old, as worthy, as vigorous and much more amusing. He has what the Old Soak called a fellow feeling for the noggin and the seidel. He, too, was a catcher and on a comparison of their records, a better one than Connie Mack for he played with the immortal Orioles.

And he liked to play ball.

It was only a foul mischance that undid a ball club organized to slug that sprightly ball of the last decade and win the National league pennant by sheer muscle this year, thus averting a world series between two managers who are old enough to be grandfather to some of their players.

Uncle Wilbert Robinson will lose his job in Brooklyn at the end of the season but if some other club has the wisdom to take him over he will be young enough to make another start.

It isn't the game that keeps them young, but something in the men.

It's Still Playing at a Job to Him.

One afternoon, this season, Connie sat in the grand stand at the Yankee stadium, watching his ball club at infield practice. It is very well known that the two key men of his infield, Joe Boley, the shortstop, and Max Bishop at second base, do not have what Gen. Bullard described as the belly for the fight. They save themselves. They may not exactly malinger but their sinews are their tools and when they are ailing a little, they lay off. At this time, Boley and Bishop were indisposed and Connie was carrying on with a patchwork infield, using Jimmy Foxx, his first baseman, on third.

Waite Hoyt, the pitcher, one of the most interesting young men in baseball, was grunting and taking life very hard as old Kid Gleason, the coach, kept him stooping and reaching for grounders to melt the blubber off his middle.

"The game isn't keeping those fellows young," Connie said. "It's a job to them; a job playing a game. To me, baseball was playing at a job. It still is. If baseball weren't fun to me do you think I would be trouping in cold spring weather and terrible summer heat year after year to make money?"

Case of Breckenridge Proves Connie's Point.

In the spring of 1929 a young fellow named Breckenridge came down from Dartmouth college to join the Athletics, a member of an old Kentucky family with a high swift.

"I can't understand some of the boys," said the Old Man. "I paid this young fellow $5,000 to sign a contract. He pitched about six innings in easy games during the season and a few innings in exhibitions. For that we paid him about $5,000. Then we landed in the world series and won it. So he got about $5,000 more. I couldn't tell yet whether he would be a good pitcher or not but I thought that for all that money I was entitled to another look. But the boy's father is a lawyer in the oil country out in Oklahoma and he thought the boy ought to quit baseball and get going in the law. So Breckenridge left us. Maybe we didn't lose anything. We pay more than that, many a time, just for a look at a minor leaguer in spring training and send him back. But if he had loved the game, the law couldn't have taken him from us. He would have come back of his own accord. He would have gone anywhere we might have sent him for seasoning, just for the pleasure of playing ball."

Half an hour later the ball game was under way and down on the yard, his long, narrow head protruding from beneath the overhang of the dugout roof, one long, skinny shank bent onto the top step. Old Connie Mack was peering into the sun-glare at his nobody-has-ever-figured-how-many-thousandth game of ball. The athletes jogged out and back. Rube Walberg gave the Yankees four runs in the first inning and lost the ball game then and there.

He's Always an Inning Ahead of Everybody Else.

But Connie Mack was up on the stoop whenever the Yanks were at bat, waving his outfielders back and far over to the right for Ruth when he went up to hit; back again and a little more to the left when Gehrig approached. Each hitter was a new problem, each flyball a new emergency to the old man on the dugout stoop.

In the ninth the Athletics had had men on base and there was a great conference between Mack and Eddie Collins, for the relief pitcher who had displaced Walberg was due to hit. He tried and failed and the ball game was over.

The next morning George Earnshaw, a good hitter, himself, was talking it over.

"I think Connie made a mistake there yesterday," Ernshaw said. "We had plenty of pitching to finish the game and pinch hitters who might have made good. I thought I could have hit one there, but I didn't like to volunteer."

"Why not?"

"Well," Earnshaw said, "I tell you. I have a pretty fair opinion of me. I'm no man to run down George Earnshaw. But young as I am and old as he is, I have seen just enough of Connie Mack to know that most of the time he knows more about the way the ball game is going and can guess better and faster than any other baseball man I ever met."

MAIER DISPOSES OF EVERETT IN FIFTH ROUND

Two former Intercity Golden Gloves light heavyweight champions — Dave Maier of Milwaukee and Buck Everett of Gary—met in the ten round windup at Denemark stadium last night, the former knocking out Everett in the fifth round. Maier's southpaw style puzzled the Gary boy and he succumbed to a left cross late in the fifth round after being dropped for three nine counts. About 1,000 witnessed the show.

Young Stuhley scored his fifth straight victory by knocking out Augie Zabish in the first round of a scheduled six rounder in the semi-windup. Buddy Tompkins was awarded a six round decision over Bobby Stewart. They are lightweights. Mickey O'Shea won a foul from Dick Sisk in the fourth round. Midge Ljuzza and Sammy Goldman battled four rounds to a draw in the opening bout.

Favorites in U. S. Amateur Golf

EUGENE HOMANS.

This Princeton alumnus has a scholarly aspect which is very deceiving, for Homans has shown himself in his short career to be a very determined young man. It may be that he inherits this pugnacity from his father, Shep Homans, one of Princeton's most famous football centers. Gene is not the football type, being of a somewhat spare personal architecture, but he has made himself a golfer to be feared.

EUGENE HOMANS.

Homans is very much like a race horse which opens at 20 to 1, but is almost even money at post time. He demonstrated this in the national tournament at Pebble Beach in 1929, when he was a long shot before the meet began, but came from far back to tie Bobby Jones for the medal with 145. He suffered the same fate as Bobby in the match play that year, losing to Fay Coleman in the first round. Last year at Merion he was no more of a favorite, but he showed he's a real fighter by battling his way to the final, where he lost to Jones. In his first round match with Gus Novotny he was two down and four to go, with an almost impossible stymie facing him, at the 15th. He hopped it to win the hole and eventually the match. Against Charley Seaver in the semi-finals he was never up on the coast youth until the final green.

Homans, who hails from Englewood, N. J., is 23 years old. He won the metropolitan junior in 1925 and 1926, the metropolitan amateur in 1928, and the north and south amateur in 1930.

COGGESHALL AND HENNESSEY PLAY IN NET FINALS

Harbor Springs, Mich., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Harris M. Coggeshall, Des Moines, Ia., will play John F. Hennessey, Indianapolis, Ind., tomorrow to decide the Michigan open tennis championship. In the semi-finals today Hennessey won from Scott Rexinger, Chicago, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3. Keeping Lewis Thalheimer, Chicago, back near the baseline the entire match, Coggeshall scored the other semi-final victory, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2.

In the women's singles Mrs. Ruth Reise, Saginaw, Mich., defending champion, seeded second, was eliminated in the semi-finals by Eugenie Sampson, Winnetka, Ill., seeded fifth, 15-13, 8-6. Catherine Wolfe, Indianapolis, seeded first, took her semi-final match without difficulty from Miss Mary Zita McHale, Dallas, Tex., seeded third, 6-3, 6-2.

Jack Harris and Thalheimer were defeated by Jennins and George O'Connell, Chicago, 8-6, 6-1, 6-0, in the semi-final doubles, while Hennessey and Coggeshall defeated Clay Mahoney, Los Angeles, Cal., and Rexinger, 11-9, 4-6, 8-6, 10-8.

LOTT WILL NOT CONTEST WIFE'S DIVORCE ACTION

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 28.—(AP)—George M. Lott Jr., Davis cup tennis star, told the Philadelphia Bulletin today he would not contest a divorce suit filed here yesterday by his wife, the former Abigail Stapleford Allen. The suit listed no cause for the action.

Asked what grounds for the divorce were, Lott said: "The grounds probably never will be revealed."

"I have known about this for some time," he added. "Mrs. Lott and I discussed things a month ago before we came home from Europe. I have no definite plans at present."

Mrs. Lott is visiting in French, Wyo., with her parents. Her mother said over the telephone she did not know why her daughter sought a decree.

Mr. and Mrs. Lott were married in October at Elkton, Md., to which place they eloped.

went is liable to cause considerable thought among other amateurs, notably Don Moe of Portland, Ore., western amateur champion three times, who failed to qualify for one of the four places in his home district in the northwest. Agitation to bring Moe into the tournament on the strength of his record failed.

Five former champions — Jimmy Johnston, Francis Ouimet, Max Marston, Jesse Guilford, and Chick Evans —will perform in the battle of Beverly, but the greatest ex-champion of them all, Bobby Jones, will be present only in the role of spectator. Bobby is scheduled to play an exhibition match at Dayton, O., today but is expected here tomorrow night.

A. D. Lasker played host to more than 25 sport celebrities and newspaper men here for the national tournament at his Mill Road farm course near Everett, Ill., yesterday. Among those who braved the wind swept 13 holes were President William Veeck of the Cubs, Tris Speaker, Horton Smith, Jimmy Johnston, Johnny Dawson, Herb Graffis, Joe Graffis, and Francis Brown, Hawaiian champion.

Tournament officials are conducting an advance sale on admission tickets to the tournament which will continue at Spaldings until tonight and at the Morrison hotel and the club until tomorrow night. A book of six tickets, good any day during the tournament, sells for $6. The admission on Friday, the day of the semi-finals, will be raised from $1.50 to $2 and will be $2.50 for the final match Saturday.

WM. M. FARMER, SUPREME COURT PATRIARCH, DIES

Served 25 Years, Retiring Only Last May.

Vandalia, Ill., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Former Justice William M. Farmer, for twenty-five years a member of the Illinois Supreme court and a judge in various courts for thirty-four years, died today in Vandalia, the old capital of Illinois, where he spent most of his life.

Although he had been confined to his home a great deal for five years as the result of paralytic strokes, he continued his work on the Supreme court from his library until his resignation on May 18 last. He was 78 years old, and on the occasion of his last birthday anniversary, June 6, he bade farewell to his colleagues on the bench and received many visitors. A special election to fill his place was called soon after this and will take place next Monday. Funeral services will be held in the Vandalia Methodist church at 2 p. m. on Tuesday.

Mr. Farmer, who was often called the "Grand Old Man" of the Illinois Supreme court, was born on a farm in Fayette county. His father was one of the early farmers of the county. He went to the district school and to McKendree college, later reading law in a country law office, then coming to the Union College of Law in Chicago.

Extolled by Fifer.

He opened a law office in Vandalia, was elected state's attorney, came to the lower house of the legislature in 1888 and in 1890 to the senate. Gov. Joseph W. Fifer was in office then, and he wrote in his reminiscences fifty years later:

"He was a Democrat, opposed to me and my party politically, but, first of all, he was a citizen of Illinois. He never permitted partisanship to cloud his views upon questions that affected the people as a whole. He was honest and upright, straightforward always. I was gratified when he was elected to the Supreme bench. There he was the same devoted, righteous citizen.

Mr. Farmer was elected Circuit Judge for the fourth district in 1897, reelected in 1903, and assigned by the Supreme court to the Appellate court service. He was elected to the Supreme court first in 1906 and there remained, serving as chief justice during four court terms.

Four years ago the bench and bar of the state made his 74th birthday notable. More than 150 leading attorneys of central Illinois attended a dinner for him at Vandalia.

Stricken in 1926.

In 1926 he was stricken with paralysis and was confined to his home for many months. He fought through this and recovered so far that he was able to return to Springfield late that year for court sessions, and he was confident that he would recover fully.

His struggle since then to keep up with his cases despite his disability led to his being called the "spartan on the bench." He took care of his share of all the cases in rotation, one seventh going to each justice. He had his opinions ready on time.

DOOLITTLE ON MYSTERY TRIP IN MYSTERY PLANE

Takes Off from Local Field at 3:20.

With secrecy covering his movements, Jimmy Doolittle, crack pilot, took off at 3:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon for Wichita, Kas., on the start of a flight in a Chicago built mystery plane in which he hopes to break his flying record of 245 miles an hour. He landed in Wichita last night after a brief stop in Kansas City.

The take-off was from the Ford field at Lansing, Ill. Doolittle arrived at 10:30 o'clock and had the plane put into the hangar for adjustments. Then he made a test flight in which, 300 feet above the ground, he whizzed along at a clip of 250 miles an hour. He landed again, and more adjustments on the plane were made.

Evasive as to Plans.

Doolittle was asked when he would start his flight. He replied, "Tomorrow." Shortly afterward, however, mechanics completely filled the fuel tanks with petrol. This was the first time the tanks had been loaded to capacity.

Doolittle climbed into the cockpit. Attendants, when asked if he was to start the flight, replied negatively. However, less than two minutes before the hopoff it was confided that Doolittle was ready to start on the attempt to shatter his record.

Ultimate Goal Los Angeles.

Doolittle's ultimate goal is Los Angeles. From there, according to one report, he hopes to lower Frank Hawks' speed record to New York. Another report was that he would fly in the transcontinental races from Los Angeles to Cleveland in connection with the national air races in the latter city.

The plane being used by Doolittle was built by E. M. Laird in his factory at 4500 West 83d street. Laird believes the ship will travel 300 miles an hour. Reports are that the plane had sped from 268 to 273 miles an hour. Doolittle denied those reports in Chicago Thursday.

Dr. Harry Krauss, 25 East Washington street, gave him medical aid. His condition was not considered serious, but yesterday he complained of hard pains and shortly afterward died.

His Calumet farm, five miles west of Lexington, is one of the show places of Kentucky. It embraces several hundred acres and represents an investment of more than a million dollars. It was here that Mr. Wright bred and trained Peter Manning, the all-time trotting champion. Mr. Wright died without knowing that his prize trotter, Calumet Butler, won the $60,000 Hambletonian stake, harness racing's richest aventu, earlier in the month at New York. He is survived by his widow, Georgia, and their son, Warren.

FLEET AIRPLANES ARE POISED FOR NATIONAL RACES

122 Entered in Daily Speed Tests.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—The fiery, writhing tail of the army's "Flying Comet" plane diving from 10,000 feet over the heart of Cleveland officially opened the eleventh national air aces, in which $100,000 in prizes will be distributed among the 122 entrants in daily speed events. The races end Sept. 7.

LEE SHOENHAIR.
[Acme Photo.]

Fifty navy and marine corps planes will perform tactical maneuvers daily, as will forty-two army pursuit planes from the first pursuit group at Selfridge field, Mich. The first detachment of these planes, eleven from fighting plane squadron 9 of the marine corps, arrived late this afternoon under command of Lieut. L. H. "Sandy" Sanderson, noted marine pilot.

Twelve Boening pursuit planes, Wasp powered, the famous "Striking Eagles" of the navy, circled over Cleveland late today at the end of a flight from Norfolk, Va., where they left the U. S. S. Langley, aircraft carrier, for the trip over land to the air races.

Makes 250 Miles an Hour.

A hint of the speed to come was furnished by Lee Shoenhair, flying his small Laird biplane powered with a Wright whirlwind motor, this afternoon when he roared across the airport at 250 miles an hour, within striking distance of the American land plane record held by Lieut. Al Williams, former navy ace, which is 266 miles an hour. Lieut. Williams has a new Curtiss Hawk racer, powered with a Bliss Jupiter, in which he hopes to raise his record in the Thompson trophy race.

Fifty men and women, flying in the transcontinental sweepstakes Derby, arrived in East St. Louis, nearing the end of their flight from Santa Monica, Cal., to Cleveland. The finish will be at the races Sunday afternoon.

Russell Boardman and John Polando, New York to Istanbul flyers, are expected to land early tomorrow afternoon about the time the full contingent of pursuit planes from Selfridge field is expected.

Race headquarters was jammed with famous pilots. Casey Jones rubbed shoulders with Lewis A. Yancey, who flew to Italy. George Haldeman, ocean flyer, talked to Amelia Earhart Putnam. Ben O. Howard, Chicago air mail pilot, worked on Pete, the diminutive monoplane he built and flew to fame at the Chicago races. Maj. Ernst Udet, German war ace credited with 62 planes, flew from New York.

Atcherley Wrecks Plane.

An autogyro taxi service for city officials from a downtown parking lot to the airport is to be operated every day during the races, and special autogyro events will be frequent in the program.

Canada is sending the Siskin flight of the Royal Canadian air force to fly over Cleveland during the races.

Flight Commander Richard L. R. Atcherley, who has traveled the second fastest of any human, 332 miles an hour, cracked up his Blackburn Lincock British pursuit plane late this afternoon when testing it after its assembly. The plane was shipped to Cleveland from Great Britain for Atcherley's use in the national air races. The speed pilot was extricated from the wreck and rushed to a hospital, where his injuries were said to be superficial.

The body of Mrs. King will be brought to Chicago for burial. Funeral services will be held in Graceland chapel at 10:30 a. m. Monday.

Surviving Mrs. King besides Mrs. de Moulin are a son, John Andrews King, of Lake Forest; a brother, Martin Brothers, of Chicago, and a sister, Mrs. Richard B. Fuller, of New York city.

NBC CHAIN BUYS PART INTEREST IN STATION WMAQ

Announcement was made yesterday that the National Broadcasting company has acquired "a portion of the stock" of radio station WMAQ, a subsidiary of the Chicago Daily News, and will assume management of the station.

No statement was given as to the monetary consideration involved or the amount of stock purchased by the broadcasting company. Niles Trammell, vice president and local general manager of the company, said that these matters were known only to himself, Merlin Hall Aylesworth, president of the company, and Frank Knox, new owner of the Daily News. It is understood that N. B. C. purchased 50 per cent of the WMAQ stock.

The formal announcement of the sale states that the acquisition of WMAQ stock and the management of the station were reached in an agreement with Mr. Aylesworth. The reasons for the deal were not given. Some reports were that the National Broadcasting company desired the unlimited services of a newspaper station. Others indicated that it was a stroke against its business rival, the Columbia Broadcasting system.

WMAQ has been on the Columbia hookup. This hookup will end Nov. 1 as a result of the station's affiliation with the National Broadcasting company. Four other Chicago stations are on the NBC chain—W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station; KYW, WIBO, and WENR.

The new management of WMAQ contemplates no especial changes in its policies and programs. It is understood that the Daily News will retain control of the station and will continue to hold the license.

GERMAN AVIATOR REACHES CANADA; CHICAGO IS GOAL

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Making rapid progress across the northern tip of the continent, a plane which unexpectedly arrived on this side of the Atlantic today after taking off from Greenland, was believed to be headed for the small Eskimo village of Povungnituk on the eastern side of Hudson bay. It was piloted by the German flyer, Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau.

Von Gronau's ultimate destination is Chicago.

Holds Up Seven Persons and His Total Loot Is $2

A one man holdup spree ended early this morning with the capture of Eddie Kleinowski, 32 years old, of 1736 Girard street as the bandit. He held up Lester Halloway, 1505 North Campbell avenue, and Miss Ann Walons in front of her home at 1744 Girard street and took $1. Next he menaced five men in an automobile in front of 1720 Lincoln street and got another dollar. During the robbery he fired two shots. The shots were heard by Policeman Charles Kelly of the North Racine avenue station, who captured Kleinowski.

2 Gun Robber Gets $325; Ties Collector to a Post

A masked bandit armed with two revolvers and an unarmed, unmasked confederate trapped Samuel Friedman, 1247 Independence boulevard, a bill collector, in the hallway at 1008 West 71st street. They took $325, a platinum ring valued at $600, and a $60 watch, tied Friedman to a stairpost, and departed.

NEW REBELLION LOOMS IN LISBON; DEAD ARE BURIED

Dictator at Services for Slain Soldiers.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LISBON, Portugal, Aug. 28.—Lisbon buried its dead today, but with very little hope for a peaceful future, since it is common gossip that the rebellion, which broke out on Wednesday, was not "the" revolt. It was not, at least, the one that was expected.

Leaders of the constitutionalist element, now residing comfortably in Spain, are reported to be plotting another and larger revolt against Dictator Carmona, and are said to be in league with a portion of the ever conspiring army.

81 Funerals Held.

Throughout today funeral processions wound through Lisbon's hilly streets. There were about 81 funerals. Some were for soldiers who died in putting down the revolt. Some were for rebels killed in battle, and some were for neutrals who died during the fighting.

Soldiers who died for Dictator Carmona went to their graves on gun carriages, escorted by military bands and dragoons. There was so much splendor that widows and mothers, many of them in torn shawls and most of them barefoot, walked mutely beside the flag draped caskets, their awe of the surroundings seemingly stifling the sentiment they had displayed in the morgue, where they had screamed with grief over the cheap coffins where the dead lay in new uniforms and shoes.

Dictator Carmona, frail and white mustached, attended the services for the slain. Behind him, almost hidden was young Prof. Oliveira Salazar, minister of national economy, whose rigid economies, including the "salvation tax" on salaries of state employés, was partly responsible for the outbreak.

Pushcarts for Rebel Dead.

In contrast to the brilliant funerals of the soldiers, the slain rebels, civilians and former soldiers alike, went to their graves on pushcarts.

Even army officers involved in the movement, who will be deported to far off colonies, admitted that many civilians in the rebellion turned out to be communists and that they, therefore, were not given arms. Meanwhile it was learned on the best of authority today that England was prepared to declare the uprising "bolshevik" if it got out of hand and intervene. The government here pretends to believe that Spanish communists have been directing a bolshevik movement, and the government press declares that the Spanish republicans are in sympathy with it.

REPORT FRANCE WILL RENOUNCE SYRIAN MANDATE

PARIS, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The Havas agency tonight gave out a report from Geneva that the French government intends to renounce its mandate over Syria.

The announcement will be made at the next meeting of the council of the league of nations, the agency reported, and France will make the renunciation after negotiating a treaty of alliance with the authorities of the mandate territory.

Application will be made, it was said, for Syria's admission to the league.

(Syria has been under the mandate of France since 1920. The area of the mandate is about 60,000 square miles and the population about 3,000,000.)

Beat Broker in Loop Office as Holdup Fails

Using brass knuckles, two men yesterday beat Paul A. Leschuck in his brokerage office at 331 South La Salle street, when he told them that he didn't have $5,000. They demanded that amount after walking into the office and observing that "things look pretty prosperous here." The attempted holdup was so quietly staged that none of the employés in the office was aware of it until the men attacked Leschuck. They escaped.

CUBA IMPRISONS RICH AMERICAN'S SON AS REBEL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Aug. 28.—James Dayton Hedges, son of Dayton Hedges, wealthy American business man and a resident of Havana, was arrested today, with Joaquin Bacardi, Juan Bolivar Ferrer, and Ramon Martinez Romero, and is now in prison, charged with conspiring to overthrow the government.

Hedges' father was formerly president of the American club in Havana. He is now a member of the board of directors of the club, and perhaps the most prominent American in Cuba. Joaquin Bacardi is the son of the famous rum manufacturer in Santiago. The other Cubans are prominent in business and social circles.

The four, who were riding in Hedges' car, defied orders of motorcycle police to stop. Police pursued the auto through the main thoroughfares from the business section to the fashionable Malecon driveway. Hedges stopped the car after shots by the police. Documents reported to reveal conspiracy plans were confiscated.

HOOVER NAMES WEEK TO PLAN WAR ON FIRES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—[(AP)]—President Hoover today proclaimed the week of Oct. 4 as Fire Prevention week and solicited "the assistance of each citizen to help lessen the loss, needless waste, and suffering from fires largely preventable."

The President said fires in the United States last year caused a direct property loss estimated at nearly 500 million dollars, an increase of $40,000,000 over 1929, and that deaths and injuries resulting from fires exceeded 35,000 in 1930.

"The purpose of national fire prevention week is to focus attention on the hazards of fire and to promote preventive measures."

GROCERY SALES CLIMB 9 PCT. IN MIDDLE WEST

Reserve Bank Cites July Business.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Despite dull times, it is evident that the American family larder is about as well stocked as ever. Even abnormal unemployment hasn't greatly affected the generous habit of eating well. These facts are brought out in the monthly review of business conditions in the middle west issued by the Chicago Federal Reserve bank.

"Declines were general during July in reporting lines of wholesale trade with the exception of groceries, which generally showed a 9 per cent gain in aggregate sales over the preceding month, the increase being contrary to the usual seasonal trend. In the other lines, hardware sales declined 10 per cent; dry goods, 18 per cent; drugs, 4 per cent; shoes, 22 per cent, and electrical supplies, 2 per cent.

Larger Than Usual.

"The recessions in hardware, dry goods and shoes were larger than usual for the period, with those in drugs and electrical supplies about average. Declines from a year ago were smaller than in a similar comparison for June in groceries, dry goods and electrical supplies, but greater in hardware, drugs and shoes.

"In the first seven months of 1931 grocery sales decreased 10 per cent from the same period of 1930; hardware, 14 per cent; dry goods, 25 per cent; drugs, 13 per cent; shoes, 20 per cent, and electrical supplies, 33 per cent. Stocks, though remaining well above 1930 levels, had increased at the end of July over June in drugs and shoes. Ratios of accounts outstanding to net sales during last month were higher in the majority of lines than either a month previous or a year ago.

"Department store trade declined somewhat more than seasonally last month, the review says. Sales of 90 reporting firms totaled 29 per cent less than in June, against a decrease of 24 per cent in the nine year average for the period. Sales in Chicago, however, were only 9.4 per cent below July, 1930, and sales for the first seven months of 1931 were 12½ per cent under the corresponding period in 1930. The decline in commodity prices appears entirely accountable for the smaller sales.

Auto Dealers Do Better.

Automobile dealers did relatively better in July, compared with last year, than in any month thus far this year. "The number of automobiles sold at wholesale and retail by reporting distributors and dealers in the middle west declined slightly further in July from June, although a considerable number of firms had sales totaling equal to or larger than the June volume," the bank says. "The decrease of only 3 per cent from last July in the number of cars sold at wholesale compared with a decline of 24 per cent in their value. This disparity is practically due to lower prices prevailing this year and to smaller sales of higher priced cars.

"The difference of only 3 per cent from last year in number of retail sales and of 10 per cent in their value is the smallest decline recorded since January. In the year ago comparison, also, many distributors and dealers showed larger sales this July. Sales continued the downward trend that began March and remained far below the 1930 level. Deferred payment sales of 32 dealers reporting the bank averaged 43 per cent of their total retail sales, against a ratio of 49 per cent in June and of 43 per cent in July, 1930."

Business Fights to Remove Government as Competitor

BY SCRUTATOR.

Coincident with the filing at Springfield of an application for a charter for the Federation of American Business Men come statements from some of the organizers indicating that this new organization intends to play an important part in the nation's affairs.

The association's announced purpose is summarized in the slogan on its letterhead: "Get the government out of private business."

Public interest is already awakened although the work has only begun, has encouraged the organizers.

Twenty states have been brought into the organization. Twenty-two major industries, including a large representation of farmers, agricultural trades, railroads, public utilities, and labor, had delegates at the conference Tuesday night when a permanent organization was voted.

Is Frankly Political.

This headway has been made with no paid solicitors and no large office organization. Most of the members have come in voluntarily after reading of the movement. Others have joined after receiving letters explaining the aims of the association.

Reasoning that the most effective way of combating abuses arising out of the actions of political bodies is to carry the fight directly to legislative halls, the Federation of American Business frankly announces that "it may be understood right now that it is strictly political in its purpose," but adds that it will be nonpartisan and nonfactional.

"It proposes to crystallize and organize public sentiment, not only against further government encroachment in business, but it proposes to force government out of the business and industries which it has evaded," says one of the association's bulletins.

"It recognizes it as the right of government to regulate the conduct of commerce and business to the extent necessary to insure the security of citizens, but it denounces government competition with its citizens as subversive of the liberty and welfare of its people."

Attention is called to the work being done in the creation of public sentiment in favor of a return of government to its original principles by such groups as the American Federation of Labor, American Legion, U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National League of Women Voters.

Has Ready Made Public.

The federation proposes to cooperate with these and coördinate the efforts of all who are opposing powerful minorities packed behind movements to force government competition with private enterprise.

To preserve its general appeal to all lines of business not more than five members of the directorate of twenty-five may be from any one industry. Funds are derived from membership dues. Associate members will pay $5, regulars $10, sustaining members $25, and life members $500.

From the original name, Federation of American Business Men, the word "men" has been deleted so that women, too, may be included.

The federation has a large, ready made public already thinking along the same lines. If it adheres to the policies outlined it is in a position to exert a powerful influence for sanity in the attitude of government toward business.

HOOVER MAY SAVE REALTY BONDS FROM 'BEAR' RAID

Asks Bankers to Discourage Greed.

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—President Hoover is determined to protect the real estate mortgage market from manipulation by professional speculators, according to a report current today in Wall street.

WM. G. POTTER. [A. P. Photo.]

This was the subject, it is understood, discussed at the conference between the President and four New York bankers in Washington, Wednesday night.

Apparently news has reached the President that speculators are taking advantage of the current depression to pound down the prices of mortgage bonds. Then these bonds, representing valuable properties, are bought up at bargain prices. The practice, it is said, resembles very much bear raiding in the stock market.

Suggests Refusing Credit.

The President, it is said, suggested to the Wall street bankers that it might be a good idea to refuse credit to these speculators where proof existed that their operations are destructive of values and confidence. This could not be confirmed either in Washington or in banking circles.

It was reported some time ago in the street that large pools had been arranged by real estate speculators to buy up New York city real estate at bargain counter prices.

In recent months some buildings have been knocked down to a price below their assessed valuation. This led to the supposition that a reduction in taxes would be asked of the city.

Ready to Pick Up Bargains.

These pools were said to be prepared to spend vast sums over the next five years in picking up bargains. There has been no suggestion that they were deliberately wrecking the real estate market, but only that they stood ready to pick up properties as they fell in their laps. One pool was understood to have $50,000,000 to spend in this way.

Operators buying real estate at present depressed prices stand to make enormous fortunes when conditions improve, it is pointed out.

The bankers attending the conference were William C. Potter, president of the Guaranty Trust company; Charles S. McCain, president, and James T. Lee, vice president of the Chase National bank, and George W. Davison, president of the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company.

Weekly Reviews Note Signs of Rising Trade Activity

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 28.—With the dullest month of the year gradually approaching its close, trade reviews issued today agree that the need for merchandise in some lines of trade during the fall will promote greater activity in the manufacturing field. Reports of business conditions emanating from various parts of the country carry a general note of cheerfulness, it is pointed out. R. G. Dun's Trade Review says:

"Concrete evidence of improvement is present in some localities, while in others a change for the better in sentiment is noted. Advances in activity are pronounced, particularly in New England, and in the canning and tobacco districts of the south. Purchases for fall requirements have helped to improve business at wholesale, but the variance in the size and number of the orders received from the different sections reflects the diminished buying power in some localities on account of the existing adverse agricultural conditions.

Substantial Showings.

"In spite of the cool weather in leading retail centers during the week, distributive totals made substantial showings. Sales for the season are not greatly below the 1930 levels, if allowance be made for the decline in the prices. The favorable showing, in most instances, was made possible by the alluring price appeals and intensive sales effort."

"Buying of school supplies, cooler weather in many cities, and the running of large 'sales' in a continued determined effort to dispose of summer stocks," are cited by Bradstreet's as factors which have combined to enable retail volume to about hold its own in this slow period.

"Wholesaling and jobbing, on the other hand, present a more favorable picture than in some weeks. A belated seasonal pickup is in evidence; orders apparently are being received which ordinarily would have been booked considerably earlier.

More Wholesaling Activity.

"The reports still carry the old story of extreme caution among retail buyers, but with the coming season so near, more wholesaling activity was bound to occur. This has been reflected in some manufacturing increase among the so-called light industries.

"It is interesting to note that for some time such of these as silk, cotton, wool, and shoes have been running counter to the general slow business trend. One reason is that their products are more necessary to existence than those of the heavy industries, and therefore their development requires less confidence in the future of business. This quality is certainly still lacking in the latter, and such lines as iron and steel, automobiles, machines, and building materials continue undoubtedly slow. Collections throughout the country are also slow; very few cities report them up to last year, and none better."

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 28.—With the help of some reassuring foreign news and the weekly trade reviews telling of improved business conditions, the bull party today was able to stage the best and most active stock market in two weeks. Gains of from 1 to 3 points were recorded throughout the list.

Although the advance in favorite issues attracted considerable profit taking and brought out some fresh speculative selling by bear professionals the sales were well absorbed and closing prices in a majority of cases were around the best levels of the day.

Reports that arrangements had been virtually completed for the extension of a substantial credit to the British treasury by Franco-American bankers and that formal announcement to that effect expected later in the afternoon would be the signal for a brisk little rally in stocks helped the bull element to keep things moving forward. Some encouragement also came from the unusual spectacle of a three day advance in bonds. Evidence of a slightly better public interest in the market was seen in the further rise in brokers' loans for the week.

U. S. Steel Advances.

United States Steel, as usual, furnished the cue for the upturn. The stock at one time crossed 90, which seems to about mark the upper end of the present ranging ground, and it was able to hold 1¾ points of its gain in spite of late afternoon realizing. Other pivotal issues recovered from a good fraction to more than 2 points and the fast movers, responding quickly to short covering, jumped ahead, some of them as much as 4 or 5 points.

The improved tone in railroad obligations found reflection in a better demand for carrier stocks of the investment type and the group made the best showing in several days. Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, New York Central, and others rallied with determination from their recent low levels.

On the other hand, Chicago and North Western preferred, which ordinarily is inactive, took an unaccountable nose dive. The last recorded price several weeks ago was 92, but today the stock opened at 58 and finished at 67 on a turnover of 1,100 shares.

Small Preferred Issue.

While the North Western has lowered its common stock dividend to $4 annually, which rate is regarded as none too secure, there have been no serious misgivings over the $7 preferred dividend. There is $22,398,955 preferred stock outstanding and dividends require only $1,567,650 a year, whereas net earnings last year exceeded $7,900,000.

For many years North Western preferred was regarded as a gilt edged investment. In 1902 the shares sold as high as 274½ and its lowest price during the 1921 depression was 95. Its high and low prices in 1929 were 145 and 134, and the low price last year was 101.

Groups which normally profit from seasonal upturn of business in the fall were in favor. Amusement shares were prominent on the tape, with Radio-Keith-Orpheum, Loew's, Warner Brothers, and Paramount drawing a moderate following. The movies have had a lean summer, but the approaching end of the vacation period will find attendance at the picture houses picking up. Merchandise and office equipment stocks also attracted speculative interest for seasonal appreciation. Chain store stocks have been moving up quietly now for weeks.

The utilities kept step with the procession and the motors fared about par.

Individual features were more numerous than common. National Cash Register achieved a new high for the move in response to buying by some of the same interests which sponsored the bull campaign in behalf of that issue last year.

U. S. SOON TO HOLD 5 BILLIONS OF GOLD; NEW WORLD RECORD

New York, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The pockets of Uncle Sam soon will bulge with more than $5,000,000,000 in gold. This will be the largest reserve in the history of any nation.

The gold reserve on Aug. 26 amounted to $4,992,000,000, while impending shipments from South America will increase this amount. A shipment of $4,255,000 is being sent to New York from Argentina on the steamer Western Prince, and Uruguay plans to send $5,000,000. In addition receipt of $965,000 from Mexico was reported today by the Federal Reserve bank of New York.

It became apparent that the United States would pass the five billion dollar mark when it was indicated at Buenos Aires that the Argentine government would meet the $50,000,000 notes maturing Oct. 1 with gold which is being withdrawn from the Caja de Conversion. Thus far this month receipts from Argentina have amounted to only $5,329,000, but heavy shipments are looked for in the next few weeks.

The most recent statement on the world's gold supply was that of June 30, 1930, and the figure was $10,500,000,000. Next to this country, France has the largest gold reserve. On July 31 France's reserve was estimated at around $2,300,000,000.

N. Y. Savings Banks Gain Accounts, Lose Deposits

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 28.—Savings banks of the state of New York reported a gain of 10,360 accounts during July, but a loss of $2,326,198 in deposits, according to the Savings Banks association of the state of New York. The decline in deposits of the savings banks was the first for any month this year. It compares with a gain of $12,297,817 in July, 1930. Prior to 1930 substantial drops in the volume of savings banks took place each July, indicating that a seasonal recession is normally to be expected in that month.

Savings banks of New York City, which have consistently shown large gains in recent months, experienced a drop of $7,871,449 in deposits during July, but gained 7,490 accounts. Total deposits in the savings banks of the state at the close of July were $5,090,230,571, compared with the record high of $5,092,556,769 at the close of June. Total deposits of New York City savings banks came to $4,024,802,737 on July 31.

SEARS-ROEBUCK MAY HAVE LARGE STATE ST. STORE

State street's long talked of new department store, the opening of the now closed Leiter stores building with a completely equipped merchandise establishment by Sears, Roebuck & Co., is expected to take place late in the fall, it was learned yesterday. This is the eight story building, extending from Van Buren to Congress, which at one time housed the Siegel, Cooper & Co. department store. It has a frontage on State street of 400 feet.

E. J. Pollock, vice president and controller of Sears, Roebuck & Co., said that negotiations which have been under way for several months are progressing to the point where the possibilities were that a deal would be closed, but that no formal notice would be made until the lease had been signed and then a joint statement by Sears, Roebuck & Co. and the trustees of the Levi Z. Leiter estate would be issued.

Daniel V. Harkin, president of the Union Bank of Chicago, and one of the three trustees of the Leiter estate, said yesterday that negotiations were continuing and that things looked encouraging for the establishment of another big department store on State street.

NEW YORK BANK CLOSES; DEPOSITS ARE $9,500,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 28.—The Bank of Europe Trust company was taken over today by the state banking department when its books at the close of business yesterday revealed that the deposit liabilities were approximately $9,500,000.

State Superintendent of Banking Joseph A. Broderick said that the depreciation in the value of its investment securities had so impaired the capital structure of the bank that it was deemed unsafe and inexpedient to permit the institution to continue functioning.

In the semi-annual statement of its condition on June 30 last the bank reported total deposits of $12,708,919; total resources of $14,831,672, and discounts amounting to $3,841,270.

SUES TO PREVENT PARAMOUNT-PUBLIX STOCK REPURCHASE

New York, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Joseph Balter of Boston today filed suit to restrain the Paramount-Publix corporation from continuing to fulfill a repurchase agreement under which it is buying back at $80 a share issues of its own stock with a current market value of only $20 from theatrical corporations to which it issued them in exchange for interests. Fourteen theatrical corporations, in different parts of the country, are also made defendants.

Balter, a minority stockholder, said 152,000 shares already have been repurchased at a loss of more than $3,000,000 and in his petition asserts that, in view of the financial depression and the depreciation in the capital earnings of Paramount-Publix, the fulfillment of the contracts would be "ruinous and unreasonable." The contracts were made in the spring of 1929 and involved the transfer of 354,226 shares, the petition said. Under the agreements, the stock must be bought back between now and next March.

Mr. Balter describes himself as owner of 300 shares of Paramount-Publix, bought at $60 a share in February of last year. A hearing on the motion for temporary injunction will be held before Justice Alfred Frankenthaler Monday.

BANK URGES NEW EXAMINATION OF TARIFF PROBLEM

Active discussion of tariffs in this country and abroad emphasizes the need for a reëxamination of their basic principles and effects on trade in the light of changing economic conditions, according to the Index, published by the New York Trust company.

"Many leaders of finance and industry," says the Index, "both abroad and in the United States, have become convinced that existing tariff walls are contributing substantially to prevent restoration of international trade and prosperity. Considered opinion to this effect in this country has grown markedly since the Hawley-Smoot tariff act of 1930 raised the general schedule of duties to unprecedented heights.

"Approximately 50 countries have raised some, or all, of their import duties since June, 1930. In Europe, Central and South America, the orient, and within the British empire there has been a general epidemic of tariff raising as well as of stricter enforcement of customs regulations during recent months. Canada also has provisionally increased its tariff duties on some two hundred different items, many of them being among the principal imports to that country from the United States."

Pointing to the tariff agreements recently reached in Europe, the Index says that these and recent discussion of the subject in the United States show the extent to which the depression has encouraged a general reëxamination of economic principles and practices.

"Undoubtedly," the review states, "this reëxamination will bring about a more informed understanding of the complex tariff problem."

EGYPT SOUNDS CALL FOR WORLD COTTON PARLEY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—(AP)—The Egyptian government today sounded the call for an international cotton conference while seven southern senators were discussing the domestic low price problem with the farm board.

Minister Sidarouss of Egypt transmitted to the state department a formal note from his government suggesting a world meeting and the appointment of an international committee to deal with the cotton crisis.

It was forwarded to the farm board during its conference with the southern delegation, devoted to the examination of a number of plans for meeting the situation.

The board considered, among other plans, Senator George of Georgia said, his own proposal calling upon the board to purchase between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000 bales of cotton from farmers who agree not to plant next year.

Great Western Reports I.C.C. Value as $69,307,547

Published reports of the final valuation figures of the Chicago Great Western railroad and subsidiaries comprising the system appear to have caused some misapprehension of the facts, W. G. Lerch, vice president, asserted yesterday.

"The final valuation figures of the Chicago Great Western given out by the interestate commerce commission and published in the press generally on Aug. 27," he said. "Indicated a valuation for rate making purposes of the Great Western system, which includes the Mason City and Fort Dodge railroad and the Wisconsin, Minnesota and Pacific railroad, of $66,612,000, whereas the correct figures given in the report of the commission just received are $69,307,547."

United Artists, Fox Film Agree to Work in Harmony

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Lou Anger, representative of Joseph M. Schenck, president of the United Artists theater chain, said last night dissention between United Artists and the Fox Film corporation had been settled.

The settlement means that Fox will show United Artists pictures in cities where there are no United Artists theaters, it was understood. Fox executives at Los Angeles, however, declined to comment. It was explained that Schenck was in New York, where he was expected to enter negotiations with Harley M. Clarke, president of Fox.

When the break came last November, Schenck, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Charles Chaplin and other actors signed a statement charging the Fox theater chain with a monopoly "organized to stifle our individual endeavor and that of all other artists and producers."

HEAVY SELLING STOPS SPURT IN PRICE OF CORN

Condition in Nebraska Shows Decline.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Coarse grains were the market leader on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. Corn moved up 1½@2¼c from Thursday's finish to the highest level since Aug. 11 on the December delivery as the result of fairly general local and commission house buying based on sensationally bullish crop reports from Nebraska. Then, too, there was a forecast for possible frost overnight in parts of the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

The advance in the September, which lifted the nearby delivery to a high of 44¾c, brought in heavy selling by a broker who gave up the name of a leading commission house on his sales, but which the trade felt was for a professional operator. The selling caught the pit in a somewhat overbought condition and a break of 2¾c from the top followed, sellers of offers who had protected themselves on the bulge going out of their holdings on the way down, and the finish was at the bottom with a net loss of ¾c at 42½c.

Nebraska Condition Lower.

New crop deliveries of corn finished unchanged to ¼c lower with December at 38¾c to 39c and May, 48¾c to 43¾c. There was some selling of corn against purchases of rye during the day.

The Nebraska midmonth crop report made condition of corn 57, a drop of 14 points, as compared with the government Aug. 1 figures, and 24 points below the condition given around July 15. The trade had not figured on such extremely heavy deterioration in the state and there was fairly general buying as a result, especially as the northern third of Iowa is officially reported as in bad condition. The two reports gave rise to a belief that the private crop estimates to be given out next week might suggest a smaller crop for the country than recently anticipated.

Heavy rains were reported over part of the corn belt overnight, and will be decidedly beneficial in checking deterioration. Shipping demand for corn was again good with local sales of 120,000 bu, while the country sold 72,000 bu to arrive.

Oats Market Firmer.

The oats market again showed a firm undertone, and despite the late weakness in corn the finish was unchanged to ¼c higher. September closed at 21¼@21¾c; December, 23c, and May, 25¾c, the nearby future at the outside figure of 22¾@22¼c, showing 3¾c above the low of Monday, and the highest since Aug. 14. There was some buying during the day which was regarded as short covering.

Changing Market in Wheat.

Action of the wheat market was somewhat of a disappointment to the bulls, and while it advanced ½c early with corn, the close was ¼@⅝c lower with September at 47c; December, 50¾c to 51c, and May, 56c. A good part of the trade during the day was in buying September and selling December at 4c difference, and there was also spreading between here and Winnipeg and Minneapolis.

Northwestern wheat markets were strong, with Minneapolis September closing fractionally higher at 59⅛c, or 12½c above the same future at Kansas City, equal to around $1 per brl on flour. Choice No. 1 amber durum at Minneapolis was quoted as high as 68c at the last, or nearly 4c higher than on Thursday and 12½c above the outside figure quoted for dark No. 3 northern.

Reports of light frost at several points in the Canadian northwest, and also of heavy rains, had a strengthening effect on Winnipeg early, but the latter reacted with other markets and finished ½@¾c lower with October at 55½c. Liverpool was ¼@½d higher at the last with October, 56¾c.

Season's Widest Difference.

The latter was 9¼c over Chicago September at the time it closed, compared with 5¾c on Aug. 7, as shown by the Modern Miller's comparative prices, and was the widest difference of the season. Winnipeg October, which was only 1½c over Chicago September on May 8, was 8¼c over yesterday.

While the widening of the spread between Chicago and the English markets puts domestic wheat closer to a world's parity there has been relatively little demand for hard winter reported of late, although Europe has been taking an average of around 500,000 bu high grade Manitobas daily the last week. No. 1 hard at the gulf was quoted at 1¼@1⅜c over Chicago September.

Buying of rye here against sales at Winnipeg by spreaders gave the former a firm undertone and the close was unchanged to ¼c higher with September at 33¾c; December, 36¾c, and May, 40¾c.

CHICAGO STOCKS PRESENT FIRM FRONT AT CLOSE

endix Holds Its Place as Trading Favorite.

Shares on the Chicago Stock Exchange yesterday presented a firm front and the close found issues bearish minus signs far in the minority. The range of prices was considerably more restricted than was the case on the big board at New York, few changes noted being greater than fractional. Trading continues to hold its place as the favorite. It advanced 1,000 to 23¾ on a turnover of 14,900 shares. Interest in the company's new combination vacuum gear shift and wheeling device is of course receiving added to for enlarged trading in this issue. Borg Warner held steady at 30¾ on a smaller volume of business. Stude Cord, too, closed with no change of 9¾. Both issues during the session touched points higher than the close.

Seeks New York Listing.

The United States Radio and Television, which has been active in trading lately, gained 1 point to close at 4. The corporation yesterday made application to list its common stock on the New York Stock exchange. It is stated that the application covers 152,605 shares of no par stock and that trading likely would start next week. Trading in the issue here is fairly active, 5,400 shares changing hands.

The company specializes in the manufacture of midget radio sets and reports remarkably good business. Earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30 are expected to set a record, probably amounting between $5 and $6 a share. It has assets of approximately $2,000,000 and at the moment its stock is the highest of any radio issue listed on a major exchange.

R. H. Macy, which has been another active issue, slowed down to a turnover of 2,500 shares and the closing price of 1¼ was a minor fraction lower than on Thursday. It is stated that this company has perfected new policies in its noon department and that it will shortly announce new reductions.

Utilities Are Firm.

Utility shares were firm, particularly those carrying the Insull label. Commonwealth Edison and Public Service shares were slightly better on the new small transactions. Middle West was ¼ to the good on a turnover of 7,850 shares, while Insull Utility secured a gain of ⅛ on a moderate turnover.

Elsewhere some moderate gains are reported, including Walgreen, 2¾, and Corporation Securities, likewise up ¾.

Directors of Swift & Co. voted the regular dividend of 50 cents a share payable Oct. 1 to stockholders of record Sept. 10. The stock yesterday closed at 25¾, no change from the previous finish.

The hog market fluctuated rather broadly as top prices approached within 15c of the $7.00 line early Saturday. Prime light and light butchers reached $6.85 on the 10@25c basis, but many buyers quickly withdrew their support and prices sagged materially in midsession.

Part of the advance was erased before the close, with the finish barely steady with the general selling Thursday. However, large local interests made offerings with more freedom than they could be obtained at Thursday's quotations, and only 1,500 pen lots and inferior grades remained at the close.

Average Price Up 5 Cents.

The extreme top showed an advance of 5c over the average for the whole week, was up 5c at $5.75. The range of hog prices keeps narrowing rapidly. The top and average prices yesterday were only $1.10 apart. On July 27 the spread amounted to $2.00, and on the corresponding day in both 1930 and 1929 the top and average prices were $2.50 apart. In 1926 the spread was $3.00, only 10c away from the widest on record.

The bear raid in heavy grades of hogs that buyers started Thursday was carried over into yesterday's session and the few scattered lots of offerings available had to go over the week at another cut in quotations. Receipts were meager and no strictly good yearlings were offered. The best weighty steers and heifers showed the week's 25@50c loss. Baby beef heifers weighing 622 lbs brought $8.60, but heavier kinds were quoted up to $9.75. Good grain fed cows brought $5.25@6.15, while grassy stock sold largely at $4.00@4.50. Calves were in fair demand at the recent advance in prices. Stockers and feeders were offered, but demand was fairly good at previous quotations.

A Paying Proposition.

Cattle feeding has been a paying proposition during the last few weeks and some attractive profits have been made on the best grades of steers and heifers that are eligible to top quotations. Many of the $9.50@10.00 cattle at recent sessions cost $7.00@7.75 a hundred last fall.

Hartman Bros. & Nisbet of La Salle county, Illinois, this week marketed a shipment of 1,350 lb cattle at $9.85 that cost $7.80 as feeders in October. While on they averaged 698 lbs. Their feed consisted of silage, cottonseed cake, plenty of corn and clover hay. Putting up the last five years, this firm has shown a good margin of profit in cattle feeding, but they are of the opinion that cattle feeders are allowing themselves to become too excited over the fact that steers are making money, and investments in cattle stock have been running into millions of dollars during the last few weeks.

Best Lambs Steady.

Sheep receipts yesterday were the largest for Friday since early in June and buyers were hard pressed to find the very best selections in line with the previous day's best time. Packers were sorted harder at slightly lower prices. City butchers took native lambs at $8.25, while packers bought at $8.35, getting both natives and westerns within that range of prices. Heavy lambs rejected from the supply of lambs sold largely for slaughter at $7.50@8.00, although a few went to feeder buyers at $5.75 and below. Fat ewes brought $4.50 and under. Feeding sheep were steady, while demand showed weakness.

NEW JERSEY TOWN APPEARS LIKE A TOY VILLAGE AS GIANT GERMAN AIRPLANE FLIES OVER ROOFS. When the DO-X came roaring up New Jersey coast on way to New York it flew over Seabright, N. This afforded an opportunity for this picture, taken from an escort plane and showing the immense size of the DO-X as indicated by comparison with houses below. Therefore, when we build, let think that we build forever. Let it be for present delight, nor for pre use alone; let it be such work as descendants will thank us for, and as think, as we lay stone on stone, a time will come when those st will be held sacred because our h have touched them, and that men say as they look upon the labor wrought substance of them, "See! our fathers did for us."

I beheld a mighty tower.

Its flying buttresses and turrets ... sang a Gothic song five hund... reat above the hurrying throngs of the youngest of the world's great commercial capitals.

From a lofty staff at the topmost point of this structure enormous in its girth yet so exultant in its upward thrust that it gave the impression not so much of hugeness as power, floated an American flag.

The picture of the vast, dark ... of richly carved stone against the ... sky and, far aloft, the waving col... was memorable.

Many a man hurrying across ... wide bridge at the foot of the to... slackened his pace a little and loo... upward.

Curiously, thought I, this is one ... the sights of this illustrious town.

It was mid-afternoon.

Through the broad entrance of ... tower groups of people manife... intent upon one purpose, and that ... exhilarating and care-free one, ... passing.
